PREFACE.

The present volume relates to the Kadur District, which borders on the Western Ghats and, besides the lofty Bâbâ Budan range, embraces some of the most mountainous country in Mysore. Within this region is the birthplace of the Hoysaḷa family, who ruled the country with such distinction from the 11th to the 14th centuries. Here also is the monastery of S'ṛiṇgêri, founded by S'ankarâchâryya, the great Hindu reformer of the 8th century. Its abbot Mâdhava, known as Vidyâraṇya or forest of learning, was instrumental in founding the Vijayanagar empire, which succeeded that of the Hoysaḷas. The inscriptions throw a good deal of fresh light on the history of these two powers, and on that of the S'ṛiṇgêri maṭha.

But information of much importance is also made available regarding the earlier Kadamba and Ganga dynasties, and some of the minor principalities of the west. The Siragunda stone (Cm. 50) is a most valuable record of the early Gangas; and the inscriptions in Kadur and Tarikere taluqs describing the later Ganga rulers of Âsandi supply new information of special interest.

The publication of this and associated volumes has been greatly delayed by the ravages of plague, which first broke out in 1898 and has returned at frequent intervals since. The interruptions to office and printing work from this cause have been most disheartening. It is a fortunate circumstance that when engaged in the field in collecting the materials, I pushed on the survey so as virtually to have gone over the whole ground before the appearance of this dreadful disease. Otherwise it would since that time have been impossible to visit many parts of the country for the purpose of copying inscriptions. I hope however now to be able to issue the companion volumes at shorter intervals, as the bulk of the matter is already in print in the original.

INTRODUCTION.

The number of inscriptions dealt with in this volume is 621, all belonging to the Kadur District. They were copied in situ mostly in the field seasons of 1889 and 1890, and embrace a period of nearly 1400 years, from about 450, the approximate date of the earliest, to 1811, the date of the latest. Possibly there is no representative of the 6th century. The following are the heads under which may be arranged all those of the inscriptions which can be assigned to specific dynasties or periods :—

The remainder are left unclassified, as they contain no precise indication of the period to which they belong.

The inscriptions are reviewed in this Introduction under each dynasty or group according to the heads above given, as far as possible in chronological order, attention being drawn to whatever presents itself as demanding special notice.

In order to save space, the following abbreviations have been adopted for the names of taluqs :—Kd. = Kaḍûr ; Cm. = Chikmugaḷûr ; Mg. = Muḍgere ; Kp. = Koppa ; Sg. = S'ṛingêri ; Tk. = Tarikere.

It may be convenient here to recapitulate all the abbreviations made use of in this connection in the present and previous volumes, as they frequently recur in the text.

Kadambas.

The origin of the Kadambas as related in the highly important Tâlgunda pillar inscription (to appear in Vol. VII) has already been given by me in the Introduction to Vol. IV. of this Series. The first Kadamba inscription in the present volume is Kd. 162. It is engraved on four copper plates, now in the hands of a resident of Birûr. The outer side of the first plate is blank ; and the letters of the inscription (see facsimile) are neither cut so deep nor formed so carefully as in many of the Kadamba grants. The plates record a donation by the king Vishṇuvarmmâ, eldest son of Krishṇavarmmâ and grandson of S'ântivaravarmmâ, in the 3rd year of his reign, on the 5th day of the bright fortnight of the month Phâlguna. The grant consisted of the Kataṭṭâka village in the Sindhuthayârâshṭra, divided into shares bestowed on 85 Brahmans, several of whom are named, and of lands near the bridge over the Karṇṇêsaka river, bordering on the Nandapada road.

The inscription commences with the usual Siddham, followed by obeisance to the triad Hara, Nârâyaṇa and Brahma. The epithets applied to the king Vishṇuvarmmâ, who makes the grants describe him as specially favourable to the Brahmans, as being of the Mânavya-gôtra and a Hâritîputra, and as (fully) versed in the views he had adopted on the sacred writings.[1] His father Krishṇavarmmâ is described as sovereign of the southern region (dakshiṇâpatha-vasumatî-vasupati), which was adorned with his outspread umbrella, and as the performer of the horse-sacrifice. His grandfather S'ântivaravarmmâ is described as the master of the entire Karṇṇâṭa region of the earth (samagra-Karṇṇâṭa-dêśa bhûvarggá-bharttâram), which was adorned by Vaijayanti (or Banavâsi), rendered glorious by eighteen chieftains enriched with the swift (or swiftly acquired) spoils of war (raṇa-rabhasa-pravṛitta l-artthâshṭâdaśa-mâṇḍapika-maṇḍita). The principal epithet we miss among those given to the Kadambas in most of the grants is the one stating that they were "anointed after meditating on Svâmi-Mahâsêna and the group of Mothers." On the other hand, the dominion of the king's father and grandfather is more clearly described than usual in the grants, and the information about the eighteen chieftains in Vaijayantî is new. Who these were we do not know.

As regards the date on which the grant was made, the particulars given are of no assistance at all in determining its period. For the identity of the donor, the only clue seems to be contained in the Bannahaḷḷi plates, discovered in about 1888 when digging at that village, which is in the Chikmugalur taluq. They therefore properly belong to this District, but being owned by a resident of Halebid and brought to my notice there, they appear under Hassan District in Vol. V. They give us the following succession of kings :—Krishnavarmmâ, performer of the horse sacrifice ; his son, by the daughter of Kaikêya, Vishnuvarmmâ ; his son, Simhavarmmâ ; and his son Krishnavarmmâ, holding Brahma as supreme (parama-Brahmaṇya), who makes the grant. The date of this inscription also does not admit of verification.[2] But we have here a Vishnuvarmmâ, the son of a Krishnavarmmâ who was the performer of a horse sacrifice, and so far they agree. The Birûr plates are therefore the older, their donor being the grandfather of the donor of the Bannahaḷḷi plates.

Among the various Kadamba kings with whom we are acquainted the name S'ântivarmmâ occurs twice, in both cases as the son of Kâkustha or Kâkusthavarmmâ. The first of these is in the Tâl-

[1] This difficult phrase has been rendered by Dr. Kielhorn—"studying the requital (of good or evil) as his sacred text" (Ep. Ind., VI, 15) ; and by Dr. Fleet—"thoroughly well [illegible] the system of private study and prayer that they [illegible]" (Ind. Ant. VI, 27).

[illegible] have been published by Dr. Kielhorn (Ep. [illegible] impressions by Dr. Fleet, to whom I had [illegible] regard to the translation, I would here merely remark, with all deference, that gandharva has to be taken in this place in its meaning of "horse" and not as "the art of music." Vatsarâja is always cited as a standard of horsemanship.

[2] In his notice of this inscription, (Kan. Dyn. 290), Dr. Fleet, who says that he quotes from his own reading, makes a mistake in giving Vishnuvarman as the name of the father, and Krishnavarman as his son ; the latter being the father, and the former the son.

gunda inscription, which ends with him: the other is in the Halsi inscriptions (Ind. Ant. VI, 22 ff). The latter cannot well be connected with our grants, as they give quite a different series of successors to S'ântivarmmâ, unless we assume that these are descendants through another son. Although the name appears in this form in one of the inscriptions (p. 25), in another (p. 24), it is given as S'ântivaravarmmâ, the same as in our present grant. These may therefore be taken as alternative forms representing the same person. No reason consequently appears why the series in the Bîrûr and Bannahaḷḷi plates should not be carried on from that of the Tâlgunda inscription. We can in fact by so doing make up a provisional continuous list of eleven generations, and may at the same time combine the information from the Halsi plates. Thus—

These eleven generations of the main line would extend over more than two centuries. And if the Kadambas lost their independence in the 6th century by the conquests of the Chalukya king Kîrttivarmmâ, the period of the above reigns must be assigned to not later than the 4th and 5th centuries. The statement in the Ganga inscriptions that Mâdhava or Taḍangâla Mâdhava, the fifth king, (whose period would be about 350), married the sister of the Kadamba king Krishnavarmmâ fairly tallies with this estimate. Kaikêya, whose daughter Krishvarmmâ married, is a familiar name, but he cannot at present be identified.

With regard to the contents of the inscription under notice, it will be observed ho[illegible] man recipients named are clubbed together under their gôtras as the Kurukutsas, the [illegible] Kâśyapas and so on, and not given separately as we generally find. The locality of [illegible] said to be the Sindhuthayâ-râshṭra. This may perhaps stand for an outlying district of the Sinda country, which was in Dharwar and Bîjâpur districts and neighbouring parts (see remarks below on Mg. 36). The Sinda kings claimed to be descended from Sinda, who was the offspring of a union between S'iva and Sindhu (? the river Indus), and was nourished on the milk of a tigress.[1] The Nandipada road might possibly be connected with the road to Nandigad, near Halsi, mentioned in Ind. Ant. VI, 22. The Karuṇêsaka river and other places named may perhaps be identifiable by some one with local knowledge.

We next come to Kp. 38. It states that when Âḷu-arasa, with the second name of Guṇa-sâgara, was ruling the Kadamba-maṇḍala,—Âḷu-arasa, the mahâdêvî and Chitravâhana, on Kundavarmmarasa coming to his end, confirmed certain grants to the Kiḷgâna god. That the Âḷupa king was father of Chitravâha we know from the Sorab plates of the Chaḷukya king Vinayâditya, dated S'aka 614 (A.D 692), in which it was on the application of this Chitravâha-mahârâja that the grant was made.[2]

The Âḷu, Âḷva, Âḷupa or Âḷuva kings are mentioned as having been subdued by the Chaḷukyas at the beginning of the 7th century. Âḷva-khêḍa is also given as the western boundary of the early Hoysaḷa kingdom. There is no doubt that they belonged to South Kanara. We might have put the present inscription under the heading of Âḷvas, but that Âḷu is here given as the actual name of the king. It is also said that he was ruling the Kadamba-maṇḍala. For this reason the inscription has been put under Kadambas.

The Kadambas were subdued by the Chaḷukyas in the latter part of the 6th century. We can hardly go wrong in assuming that Kundavarmmarasa was a Kadamba; and it would seem as if he were a representative of the family, who had retired to a life of seclusion in the retreat of the temple at Kig, where this inscription was found.[3] Why the king Âḷu Guṇasâgara was in possession of the Kadamba-maṇḍala we do not know. No overlord is mentioned. But in the Sorab plates above referred to his son Chitravâhana appears as if subordinate to the Chaḷukyas, and in the inscription referred to by me in Ep. Carn., Vol. IV, Intro. p. 10, we find at a later period a Chitra-vâhana ruling Âḷuva-khêḍa and the Six Thousand, under the Râshṭrakûṭa king Prabhûtavarsha Gôvindarasa.

In Cm 128, which is not dated, we probably have a Kadamba in Mâdivarmmâ. He is described as pure and true, of illustrious character, of resolute will, the husband of Bâlamma, beautiful as Kandarppa, and dazzling the three worlds. A list is given of warriors who died with him, one of them being his mane-magatu[4] or major-domo named Eṛega.

Gangas.

The oldest Ganga inscription in the present volume is the Siragunda stone Cm. 50, and it is of special interest, being perhaps the oldest stone inscription of that dynasty that has been met with. Hitherto the fine Talakâd stone inscription[5] of the first year of S'rîpurusha held that position; or perhaps the Dêbûr stone of S'ivamâra.[6] The surface of the present stone is much abraded, as it was not found built into or set up in any secure position, but lying loose on the ground; and being of a small size, only 2' × 1' 6," the wonder is that it has survived so long. The contents, as usual in these old stones, are expressed in the tersest of terms, but convey a good deal of information in a few words. The inscription states that śri-Nirvvinîta's younger (or little) son (kiṟiya-magandir) assumed the Kongoṇi crown from Kâḍuveṭṭi (or the people of Kâḍuveṭṭi) and the Pallava king (or kings). The second sentence is not so clear, but appears to say that his (that is Nirvvinîta's) younger brother thence being angry, the people of Nandiyâla granted him a share (amasa-ḷâlu) in Paḍevail (or ? the western plains).

Although the form Nirvvinîta has not before been met with as the name of a Ganga king, we have Avinîta and Durvvinîta, who were father and son. The details here given enable us to identify Nirvvinîta with the latter. For an inscription at Humcha (to be published in Vol. VIII) gives us the information that Durvvinîta captured the celebrated Kâḍuveṭṭi on the battle-field, and placed his own daughter's son on the throne in Jayasimha-vallabha's (or the king Jayasimha's) hereditary kingdom,[1] that is the Pallava kingdom. This must be the same transaction. Kâḍuveṭṭi was evidently the name of a man, and from him became the name of a family and of a place, the modern Kârvêti-nagara, a Zamîndâri in the North Arcot District, now in possession of a family of Reḍḍis.[2] It seems also to have been used as a synonym for the Pallava kings, and may account for their other designation of Kâḍava, which occurs in many inscriptions, expecially of the Hoysaḷas. An inscription at Mêlâgâṇi, dated S'aka 958, describes a certain person as Kâḍuveṭṭi-vamśôdbhavam, Kânchîpurâdhiśam.

The Ganga king S'rîpurusha is said, in the Humcha inscription already quoted, to have slain the valiant Kâḍuveṭṭi of Kanchi in battle at Vilarde[3] and captured his Pallava umbrella. He also took away from him the name Permmânaḍi, which all the Ganga kings after that time assume.[4]

The second incident mentioned, which seems to have led to the inscription being placed on the stone, we have no knowledge of from other sources. But Nandiyâla, it will be seen from Vol. IV of this Series, (Intro. p. 28) was at a later time a State somewhere in the west of Mysore. Kd. 158, which is from Asandi, also seems to refer to the same rulers. But the present stone, from the events recorded in it, must be assigned to the end of the 5th or beginning of the 6th century.

The next [redacted] 36 and Kd. 145, of the time of S'rîpurusha, the former on copper pl[redacted] the latter on stone. The first are the Jâvali plates, entirely in Sanskrit, dated in S'aka 672 expired. This date, from the details given, has been calculated by Dr. Fleet, and he informs me that it works out quite accurately for Monday, the 20th of April, 750 A.D.[1] In view of the discussions which have been raised in regard to such records already published by me, this confirmation of an exact date is important. For the present grant is said to be made in the 25th year of the king's reign, which perfectly agrees with the statement of the Dêvarhaḷḷi plates (see Ep. Carn. Vol. IV, Ng. 85) that S'aka 698 expired (776 A.D.) was the 50th year of his reign. These two dates being thus determined, we have fixed points from which to check the chronology of the other kings.[2]

The genealogical portion of the inscription now under notice corresponds with that of the Dêvarhaḷḷi and other plates, and ascribes the same characters and achievements to the various kings in almost the same terms. The king S'rîpurusha, also called Prithuvî-Koṅgaṇi, makes the grant while residing in his victorious camp at the village of Maṇṇe. This is the Mânyapura of the Dêvarhaḷḷi plates and other inscriptions, and has been identified by me with Maṇṇe in the Nelamangala taluq of the Bangalore District. The grant consisted of a village named Bellûr, situated in the Sindâ-vishaya, in the western portion of the Maṇale-âḷke Three Hundred, on the east bank of the Peṇṇe river. It was bestowed upon 120 Brahmans, of whom eight principal ones are named. The lands of the village are said to be daily patrolled by the officers of Koṅgaṇi-mahârâja, to protect them against the raids of a Mûrllapa (or Mûrbbapa) Râja; and their boundary on the east was as far as the tracks of the horses (or the cavalry outposts). The grant, like others, was engraved by Visvakarmmâchâryya, which I have shown was the hereditary title of the court engraver.

The Sindâ country, as before stated, was to the north of Mysore, and extended over parts of Dharwar and Bijapur Districts. But it also extended to the east over Bellary District, for the agrahâra of Kanchagâṛa Beḷgaḷi mentioned as in Sindavâḍi (see Mys. Ins, p. 306) has been identified by Dr. Fleet with Kunchagar Bellagul of the maps, on the east bank of the Haggari or Vêdâvati river. This is in the north-east of the Bellary District, not many miles from the junction of this river with the Tungabhadrâ. Maṇale, again, must have been in or contiguous with the Chitaldroog District, as among the signatures to a grant at Bemmattanûr, the modern Chitaldroog, (see Mys. Ins. p 12) we find a Boppa-Gauḍa of Maṇale. This name, though not the same, reminds one of the Marandale mentioned as the northern boundary of the early Gangavâḍi kingdom. The statements in our present inscription seem clearly to indicate that Bellûr was on the frontier of S'rîpurusha's territory. The farther clue that we obtain from the mention of the Peṇṇe river makes it impossible to locate the village which was granted, and the Maṇale Three Hundred in the western portion of which it was

[1] I am indebted to him for the following statement of the case:—"The Vrishabha-sankrânti occurred on the Monday, at 22 hours 57 minutes after mean sunrise [for Ujjain]. The moon entered Uttara-Phalguni on the Monday, at 3 hours 13 minutes by the Brahmasiddhânta system; or 6 hours 10 minutes by the Garga system; or 18 hours 22 minutes by the equal space system. And therefore, by all the three systems, she was in Uttara-Phalguni at the time of the sankrânti. The tithi, Vais'âkha s'ukla 10, began on the Monday at about 38 minutes, and ended on the Tuesday at about 2 hours 12 minutes. And it is quoted correctly with the Monday; because it was current at the moment of the sankrânti."

[2] The antagonism which has always been displayed by Dr. Fleet against the Gangas is so far relaxed that he has made, as he says (Ep. Ind. V, 152) "a first serious attempt to determine the real history and chronology of the family". But with regard to his "genealogical and successional list" thus "put together," he subsequently finds (ibid. VI, 40) that "certain additions and modifications might be made and certain corrections ought to be made," and "it was mortifying not to be able to make them" owing to the matter being already in type. Further notice therefore is not here called for of a scheme which its author himself declares to be inaccurate.

situated, elsewhere than to the east of the Pennêr,— the Ut[redacted]nnâr,—which flows through the east of the Bellary District, though I have not [redacted]ames on the map that can now be identified with them. Of Mûrllapa (or Mûrbbapa) Râja, also, I have found no other mention. The Maṇale Three Hundred province is described as the Maṇale-âḷke-tri-śata. What distinction is indicated by the introduction of this Kannaḍa work âḷke or government into the description it is difficult to say. Maṇale might perhaps be the name of a man, in which case the meaning might be—the Three Hundred under the government of Maṇale.

The other inscription of Srîpurusha's reign, Kd. 145, informs us that his son Vijayâditya was ruling " this nâd ", which apparently means the Âsandi-nâḍ, unless it is the Gangara-nâd mentioned in Kd. 144. His servant (âḷ) Eṛamma, who was in Channavur, governing Âsandi (presumably the town itself), seems to have planted a thorny fence or put up some other entanglement round the boundary for the greater protection of the place. Of Vijayâditya we know very little. He is simply mentioned in inscriptions as the brother of S'ivamâra (S'rîpurusha's eldest son, and successor on the throne), and praised for his bravery (see Ep. Carn. Vol IV, Yd. 60). Whether he actually came to the throne is not very clear. From Kd. 144, which probably belongs to the same period, not much can be made out. Only one sentence is plain, and that forbids some one, whose name must be in the first part, to enter the town and eat (or ? possess land) there. In Tk. 32 and 33 we have inscriptions of Duggamâra, who was also a son of S'rîpurusha.

We next have four inscriptions of Nîtimârgga, Cm. 133 of his 1st year, Kd. 141 dated S'aka 822, Cm. 3 of his 6th year naming him also as Râchamalla, and Cm. 8. The first of these belongs to the first year (prathama-râjyad-andu) of Nîtimargga Konguṇivarmmâ, with the usual titles, also styled Permmânaḍi. Amṛitarâsi, the bhaṭṭâra of some tîrtha, performed a vow, and out of the money he collected caused images of Nandi and Bhagavati to be made, and erected a temple in Koḷûr-nâḍ. Kd. 141 is of the same king's reign, but is dated, which furnishes the period for all four grants. It merely records the grant of a village to Mârasinga-Gâmuṇḍa, apparently in Âsandi-nâḍ. Nothing certain can be made out of the mention of Noḷamba. Cm. 3 is of the same king's 6th year, but he is in addition named Râchamalla. He made a grant of land at Kiriya-Muguli (Chikmugalûr) Cm. 8 is another inscription of the same reign, but among the king's titles is included jayad-uttaranga. Mâdhavarâja-Dêva made a grant to a Brahman, and built a maṇṭapa at the Hiriya-Muguli agrahâra (Hiremugalûr).

Regarding the identity of this king Nîtimârgga Konguṇivarmma Râchamalla Permmânaḍi,—we have the following grants to refer to:—in Vol. IV of this Series, Ch. 134 of his 1st year; in Vol. III, Nj. 97 and 98 of his 5th year; Ml. 30, dated S'aka 831, and TN. 91, recording his death. The only two actual dates we have therefore are S'aka 822 (A.D. 899) and S'aka 831 (A.D. 909).

The next three grants are of the time of Satyavâkya. Cm. 42 styles him Satyavâkya Konguṇivarmmâ and also Permmânaḍi. It is dated in S'aka 832, and informs us that Kali-Ganga was ruling the Dêvaḷige Seventy, when the grant was made. Cm. 129 describes an expedition, apparently against Âsandi, by Ayyappa, who established his camp at Kalikaṭti (Kaṇikaṭṭe in Arsikere taluq), with all his household. He was attacked by Mâdivarmmâ[1] and others, who were rewarded for their exploits by Permmânaḍ and Ereyappa. Kd. 140 states that Kali-Ganga fell fighting against Ayappa-Dêva at Kalkaṭti. From Kd. 6 it would appear that Ayyapa[2] had actually established himself in some part of the country, for the grant is made by his orders. The year is given as Virôdhi, which would correspond with A.D. 929.

[1] This is the Mâdivarmmâ of Cm. 128, mentioned at the end of the section on the Kadambas above.

[2] The name is spelt in all the different ways given in this paragraph.

We have besides only the date A.D. 959, but we have the prince Ereyappa associated with the king, and we have battles with Ayyapa-Dêva. The king is the Satyavâkya mentioned in TN. 91 as Nitimârgga's eldest son. In Hg. 103 (Vol. IV) we have Nîtimârgga Permmânadi associated with Ereyappa, who was ruling Nugu-nâd and Navale-nâd. He must apparently have been another son. In Sr. 147 (Vol. III) we have Satyavâkya Permmânadi and Ereyappa together, in which the term Yuva-râja is it seems applied to the former. In Kp. 38 (Vol. IV) we have Satyavâkya Permmânadi ruling in S'aka 828 (A.D. 906). This is three years earlier than the latest date we have for his father in Ml. 30 (Vol. III). The inference is that he must have been united with his father in the government before the close of the latter's reign. In Nj. 130 (Vol. III) we have Permmâdi, the Mahâdêvî and Ereyappa in company. In Nj. 139, in the 22nd year of Satyavâkya Permmânadi we again have Permmâdi and Ereyappa acting together. As regards Ayyapa-Dêva, he was, as I have shown in the previous volumes, a Nolamba king, and he appears in connection with Ereyappa in the Bêgûr stone (Bangalore District).[1]

Our next inscription, Kd. 159, is dated in S'aka 883 (A.D. 961). No mention is made of the reigning king, but its date shows that it belongs to the Gangas. It is a memorial of a female devotee of Âsandi, whose family came from Dvârâvatî.

The next, Kd. 1, is also dated and is of a similar character but of greater importance. It informs us that Pâmbabbe, Bûtuga's elder sister, performed penance for thirty years, and died in S'aka 893 (A.D. 971). She was Padiyara-Dorapayya's or Immadi-Dhora's senior queen, and surrounded with all manner of luxury and wealth. But, probably on her becoming a widow, she renounced all she had received, and devoted herself to a life of penance. This monument was erected by her three sons, each of whom inscribes his devotion on a separate face of the stone. Bûtuga was the Ganga king who slew Ereyappa's son Râchamalla and secured the throne for himself (see Md. 41, Vol. III). We have for him there the date S'aka 872 (A.D. 950). As regards Dhora, it seems most likely that he was the mahânripa Dhorappa whose daughter Voddiyavvâ was married by Vandiga or Vaddiga, a follower of Krishna-Râja, as related in the Sangamnêr plates dated S'aka 922 (A.D. 1000).[2] This Krishna-Râja was probably the Râshtrakûta king Krishna III, Kannara, or Akâlavarsha, who reigned from A.D. 939 to 968, and whose sister was married to Bûtuga.

We next come to Kd. 147, dated in the 11th year of the reign over the Srî-râjya or fortunate kingdom, a well known title of the Ganga kingdom[3]—of Satyavâkya-Permmânadi, the year Angira, &c. corresponding with A.D. 972. The king's name was Mârasingha, and the Brahmans of Tagare-nâd appeared before him to complain of the oppression of a chief named Naraga, who was consequently put to death with all his family and servants. Mârasingha or Mârasimha is known as the Nolamba-kulântaka. According to Nj. 192 (Vol. III) S'aka 890, the year Prabhava, was the 5th year of his reign, and according to the present inscription Angira (S'aka 895) was the 11th. His death we know from S'ravana Belgola No. 38 and the Mêlâgâni inscription,[4] took place in S'aka 896 (A.D. 974). The Naraga whose destruction is here recorded is also mentioned in the S'ravana Belgola inscription above referred to, where he is described as the S'abara-pradhâna, and as a most formidable opponent, equal to Kâla, Râvana and S'isupâla. I am under the impression that he was a chieftain in the west of the Chitaldroog District, where a long inscription connected with him has been entirely defaced.

The two inscriptions Kd. 8 and 9, are connected with a Lôka-Vidyâdhara, or Vidyâdharayya. The same person appears in Nj. 155 and 156 (Vol. IV), in the former of which he makes an application to Satyavâkya-Permmânaḍi. He therefore seems to belong to the time of Mârasimha.

The last notice of the Gangas relates to a family of that line who were ruling in Âsandi, under the Hoysaḷa kings. The following was the succession (see Tk. 61, Kd. 148, Tk. 83 and 85):— Vaijarasa, whose son was Nâḍarasa, whose son was Vaijarasa, whose son was Barmma-bhûpa or Bammarasa, whose son was Nârasimha. They assume all the Ganga titles. Vaijarasa was ruling in A D. 1081 (Tk. 65). Nâḍarasa was ruling, in 1104 (Tk. 62). Barmmarasa was ruling in 1130 (Tk. 66), in 1173 (Tk. 85), and down to 1191 (Kd. 146). Nârasimha was ruling in 1191 (Kd. 157), in 1230 (Tk. 83), and some time later (Tk. 72).

Of Vaijarasa we have the following account in Kd. 148. He was an uncompromising general under Ereyanga, and was the hero of a remarkable feat. When Aggada-râya ran off into the Bêḍara-banki forest,—in front of Hemmâḍi (the Châḷukya king Permmâḍi, see Kd. 111), he shot a single arrow which not only pierced through the skull of the fugitive but went on without stopping and hit the eye of a kite flying in the sky. For this he received from Hemmâḍi the title of kaṇṇamba (eye arrow). Of Barmma it is said, among other praises, that he could talk down the fifty-two, whoever they were. Of Nârasimha we are told (Kd. 156) that when the Mâḷava king with all his elephants, the warlike Lâḷa king, the Gûrjjara king with all his horses, and the Chôḷa king, united came against him, he subdued them by himself, being placed in supreme command by king Ballâḷa. We are further told (Kd. 157), that on the death of his father and mother he sent to S'rîparvvata and obtaining ornamental linga stones from the Pâtâla-Ganga there, set them up in the names of his parents as the gods Brahmêśvara and Gangêśvara. This was in 1191. In Kd. 146, which relates to the death of Bammarasa, the particulars given seem to indicate that he fell in battle. A follower named Bammaya-Nâyaka also resolved to win fame at the same time, and being killed, showed him the way to paradise (saggada hâdiya tôrasidu). Hariyama-Nâyaka, the son of the latter, set up this vîragal.

Sântas or S'ântaras.

The S'ântara kings had their first capital at Paṭṭi-Pombuchcha-pura, the modern Hombucha or Humcha in the Nagar taluq. They were Jains, and trace their descent from Jinadatta-Râya, who was lord of the Northern Madhura, and of the Ugra-vamśa. Jinadatta subdued the country southwards as far as Kalasa (Mudgere taluq), and northwards fortified Gôvardhangiri (Sagar taluq). The capital was afterwards removed to Sisila and then to Kârkala, both in South Kanara. The Kârkala rulers eventually became Lingâyits, and adopted the title of Bairasa-Woḍeyar.

Owing to want of precise dates it is difficult to arrange the inscriptions with certainty. The earliest appears to be Kp. 37, which is engraved on the back of the same stone as Kp. 38, noticed above under the Kadambas. It records some regulation made about the temple endowments at the time when Chitravâhana was ruling Ponbuchcha, and Nâgenna was the adhikâri of Kilga (or Kig). This Chitravâhana is evidently the Chitravâha mentioned along with the Âḷu king Gunasâgara in Kp. 38, and stated to be his son in the Sorab plates (see above, p. 5). The date of the inscription is therefore about 690 A.D. Why Chitravâhana was ruling Ponbuchcha, which was the S'ântara capital, does not appear Some of the terms in the inscription are obscure. At the close special instructions are given as to how the division of the grain produced in the temple land is to be made in order to determine the share of the palace office (aramane-tâṇa). This was to be carried out by Sênavarasa and the dharmma-garaṇiga or accountant for religious endowments. Perhaps a ...rd was stationed here by the palace for the protection of the temple, and therefore supplied ... from the temple lands.

The two inscriptions Kp. 39 and 40 are on one side of the same stone as the above, and evidently of somewhere about the same date; but later, or they would not be engraved on the side. They both record grants to the bhaṭṭa of the Kilga temple, in S'ântarasa's kingdom of the world, or S'ântarasa's reign (S'ântarasa-prithuvî-râjyadul).

On the other side of the same stone is engraved Kp. 41, in which we have Prithuvî-bhallava (i. e., vallabha) S'ântarasar ruling Ponbuchcha. This must therefore be a good deal later, when the S'ântaras were again in possession of their capital. Tk. 30 also mentions a S'ântara.

Here must be noticed two very old stones at Vastâra, Cm. 92 and 93. They do not refer themselves to the S'ântaras, but as according to tradition Vastâra was founded by the S'ântaras, the inscriptions belong to their period. The first of them says that the sole ruler (or-âḷarum) Sundari gave the Sundari Chareṭṭi temple to Mâravarmma-svâmi. The remainder and the second consist principally of imprecations.

Meanwhile we have Kp. 1, 2 and 3, inscriptions engraved on boulders in the river at Bâḷe-Honnûr. In the first we have mention of a Mâra, son of Mayûravarmmâ. His mother was the sister of Vinayâditya of the Dattâḷvara-vamśa. He is described as a sun to the lotus the S'ântara-kula, a garland for the lady the Kâdamba city, a royal swan to both banks of the Tungâ, and as having the Kuntala country for his mistress. The second states that Mâra rules over the whole world (pâḷitâ khiḷa-bhûtaḷaḥ). The third informs us that he was the chief disciple of the great muni vâdibha-simha Ajitasêna, for whom he put up this memorial (niśidhikâ). We are thus furnished with a number of details. The best clue to the date of the inscriptions is the mention of Ajitasêna, the vâdibha-simha. In No. 54 at S'ravaṇa Beḷgoḷa[1] we have Ajitasêna with this same title, and Mallishêna-Maladhâri, who performed sallêkhana in A.D. 1128, was his disciple. An inscription at Belur further informs us that Ajitasêna was guru to the Hoysaḷa prince Ereyanga, and that Mallishêna-Maladhâri was his agra-putra. Ereyanga was appointed Yuvarâja in 1062 and died before his father Vinayâditya, whose reign ended in 1100. We may therefore assign the inscriptions under notice to about 1070 A.D.

With regard to the other particulars given, Mâra seems clearly to be a S'ântara king, but his father's name Mayûravarmmâ is distinctively Kadamba. His mother, again, was a princess of the Dattâḷvara-vamśa. We have already had occasion to refer to the Âḷvas (see above, p. 5) and there would appear to have been various branches of them. In Vol. IV of this Series we had the Changâḷvas, ruling in the north of Coorg and west of the Mysore District; in the south-west of the Hassan District we shall meet with the Kongâḷvas; and here we have the Dattâḷvas. Possibly the latter name may point to a derivation from Jinadatta. Mâra is said to be a garland to the lady the Kâdamba city. The latter can only be Banavâsi, and we must suppose that he had some official residence there. The statement that the Kuntala country was Mâra's nârî, wife or mistress, would naturally mean that he was the king of that country. But this seems impossible, and the meaning may perhaps be that he was subordinate to the Châḷukyas, whose dominion was called Kuntala. The boast that he ruled the whole world, again, must be taken as poetical flattery, as the statement that he was a royal swan to both banks of the Tungâ seems to show the location of his kingdom.

One other point however calls for notice, which is, that the river in which the rocks are on which these inscriptions are engraved is apparently called in them the Tungâ. But on the spot the names Tungâ and Bhadrâ are applied in just the opposite way, and in all the maps that I have referred to, as far back as a hundred years old, this stream is marked as the Bhadrâ, the twin stream to the west, which farther on unites with it to form the Tungabhadrâ, being marked as the Tungâ. From the evidence of other inscriptions (see Cm. 77) there seems to be a mistake here in calling this stream the Tungâ. And yet this is the natural inference, as there would apparently be no sense in praising the Tungâ on rocks in the Bhadrâ.

We will next take Kp. 14, dated S'aka 1079 (A.D. 1157), when Bhujabala Vira-Sântara-Dêva was ruling. His queen was Bâchala-Dêvî, described as of the Sallivâḷara-kula, and daughter-in-law (sose) of S'rîvallabha-Dêva. Whether the Sallivâḷa were another branch of the Âḷas or Âḷvas (see above) it is difficult to say. As regards S'rîvallabha, this term generally refers to the Châḷukya emperor, but from what is said the inference is that he was Vîra-S'ântara's father. He could not then, as far as we know, be a Châḷukya. Who he was, therefore, remains doubtful. The Prithuvivallabha S'antarasa of Kp. 41 seems too far back.

In Kp. 43 we have a king whose name is perhaps Vidyâdhara, who was lord of Pombuchchapura, and would therefore be a Sântara. He was subordinate to the Châlukya king Tribhuvanamalla, and his date would thus be about 1090 A.D. He is described as holding Mahêsvara supreme, as plunderer of everything in the Chôḷa camp, and as his father-in-law's warrior, but the inscription is not complete.

There are two other inscriptions, Mg. 37, dated S'aka 1076 (A.D. 1154), and Kp. 10, dated S'aka 1085 (A.D. 1162), which I do not know whether to place under the Hoysaḷas or here under the Sântas. In both of them the mahâ-mandalêśvara Jagadê[ka]-vîra[1] Hoysaḷa S'ânta (or S'ântara) Mâru-Dêva is ruling the kingdom, perhaps the Kalasa kingdom. Neither contains anything of importance, but the second records the death of the king's younger sister Sâviyabbarasi.

The inscriptions of the Kalasa Kârkala kingdom will be found in a separate section farther on.

Taryalla.

A very curious old inscription, the only one of its kind, is Cm. 63. It professes to belong to a line of kings called Taryalla or Kuśa-Taryyalla, but is unfortunately too much defaced to allow of continuous decipherment. It begins with the ancient form Siddham, and is throughout composed in Sanskrit. Manu, Ikshvâku, Hariśchandra, Dilîpa and Râghava are declared to be the progenitors (vamśasyâdyâdirâjâḥ) of the line called Kuśa-Taryyalla. In that family was Saka-svâmi Hari Vishṇu Trivikrama,—all meaning Râma,—by whom the Solar race was purified. His son was Kuśa; whose son was Kukuśa. The latter had two sons, Mallikâri and Mârikâri (or Mûrikâri), who slew .. .. śêna, a hunter (vyâdha) difficult to conquer. The famous Mârikâri having come to this country (iman dêśam), where from is not stated, performed the birth (jâta-karma) and other ceremonies for Taryyalla. A Kâśyapa apparently also performed some ceremonies, perhaps for Srutakîrtti, who was devoted to Brahma (parama-brahmaṇya). The latter's son was Nâgakîrtti, who established schools (śâlâḥ) for the four divisions of learning. His son was Sangama, also a parama-brahmaṇya, who made a great war like those of old, as is described in 25 nibandhas. His son was Taryalla, who made this grant to 25 Brahmans. The śâsana was composed by Paṇḍasvâmi, a Kâśyapa, a grammarian and versed in the purâṇas, who was the purôhita or family priest to Taryalla. He has evidently done his best for his patron.

All this information is quite new, and there is no other inscription to throw any light upon it. Though not dated, the record is undoubtedly very old, and several expressions in it remind one of the Kadamba grants.

[1] In the first inscription, owing to a big dent in the stone, we only see Jaga...ma...

Sênavâras.

Here may be brought in the Sênavâra inscriptions from the same neighbourhood. Kp. 37 mentions a Sênavârasa in about 690. But the oldest issued in their own name appears to be Cm. 95. In it grants are made by Jîmûtavâhana-Sênavâra,—who is described as a sun to the Khachara-vamśa, having the serpent flag (phaṇi-dhvaja), and supreme lord of Kûḍalûr-pura,—for a temple of Jîvitêśvara he had erected at Chittavaḷḷi, the place where the stone is. In Cm. 61 we have Mâra-Sênavâram, who in addition to the titles above given, claims to receive homage from all the kings of Vidyâdhara-lôka, to be the master of Hêmakûṭa-pura, to have the lion crest (mṛigêndra-lâñchchhana), and to be his father-in-law's warrior (mâvana banṭa). He erected several temples, and made grants for the gods in them. Cm. 62 has a date, but the figures are defaced. It appears to correspond with A.D. 1058. In this we have Mârasimha-Sênavâram, without any titles, making grants of land to temples. In Cm. 75 the Khachara-Kandarppa Sênamâra is said to be ruling the kingdom of the world. A Jain named Niravadyayya erected a Jinâlaya and bestowed upon it the land received from the king, while other persons also made grants for it. In Cm. 76 we have Sênavâra, with no distinguishing name, but with all the titles given to Mâra-Sênavâra in Cm. 61. He built a temple and some grants were made. The closing verses are in his praise, and describe him as his father-in-law's lusty elephant. Cm. 94 belongs to Mârasingha-Dêva-Sênavâram, who has substantially the same titles as above mentioned. He is said to be a bee at the lotus-feet of the goddess Padmâvatî, and to have been born in the family of Gaganachara-chakravartti, which is the same as saying he was a Khachara. But we are informed that his father being unable to slay the enemy who killed his grandfather Jîvitavâra, he himself slew him; and rebuilding the temple of Jîvitêsvara which his grandfather had erected, but which was in ruins, he endowed it. Who was the enemy referred to we do not know. But we have here three generations of Sênavâras, whose names may be set down as Jîvitavâra (of Cm. 94), Jîmûtavâhana (of Cm. 95), and Mâra or Mârasimha (of the other inscriptions).

Châlukyas.

There are a few Châḷukya inscriptions, in several of which the Hoysaḷas are subordinate rulers, and in another, a king who was lord of Pombuchcha-pura and therefore should be a S'ântara. Of these inscriptions half are of the time of Tribhuvanamalla, and the other half of the time of Permmâḍi, but the dates do not always agree with those of the reigns of these kings. Tribhuvanamalla's inscriptions date from 1090 to 1137 A.D., and Permmâḍi's from 1136 to 1203. These titles therefore must refer to various kings. The Hoysaḷa kings who acknowledge their supremacy run from Poysaḷa or Vinayâditya to Ballâla. Only three of the inscriptions are dated in the Châlukya-Vikrama era.[1]

Not much information relating to the Châlukyas is to be obtained from these inscriptions, and they are noticed under the Hoysaḷas and S'ântaras respectively. The earliest Chaḷukya mentioned is Iriva-beḍenga, in Mg. 11 This is a name of Satyâśraya, and the inscription therefore belongs to about 998. Then in Tk. 34 Vikramâditya-Dêva occurs. In Kp. 43 the king is said to be in Kalyâṇa. Kd. 164 does not give the name of the king. Kd. 35 to 38 describe the king as Bhûvallabha-Permmâḍi-Râya, ruling in Kalyâṇa over the Seven-and-a half-lakh country. In Kd. 76 and 30 he is called Tribhuvanamalla-Permmâḍi-Râya or Hermmâḍi-Dêva, and in Kd. 72 only Tribhuvanamalla. From the dates, Bhûvallabha must represent Bhûlôkamalla, and the latter Tribhuvanamalla must be Jagadêkamalla.

1 The abbreviation C. V. will be used for this when there is occasion to mention it.

Chôlas.

The only inscription that can be placed here, and that only incidentally, is Cm. 25. The information it imparts is very meagre. We are told that in some connection with a great minister and general, in the year Pingala, a man named Chôḷaya killed a tiger in Chôḷapura, in front of Chôḷa. This king's name is not mentioned. The date must be 1197 A.D., as in Cm. 26, which follows, we have mention of Chôḷaya's son in the time of Hoysaḷa vîra-Ballâḷa-Dêva.

Hoysalas.

A number of interesting particulars are added to our knowledge of the Hoysaḷa kings by the inscriptions of this District, which was in the heart of their kingdom. These are—

The identification of Sosevûr, the place of their origin.
The reign of a Kâma Hoysaḷa, father of Vinayâditya.
Vishṇuvarddhana's queens and children; the place and date of his death.
The date of the crowning of Ballâḷa II; his queens.
The dates of—the birth of Nârasimha III;
the crowning of Ballâḷa III, and of his death;
the crowning of Ballâḷa IV or Virûpâksha Ballâḷa.

The first is the identification of Sosevûr or Sosavûr,—the S'aśakapura of Sanskrit versions,—with Angaḍi in the south of the Mudgere taluq (see Mg. 9, 15, 16, 18), till lately included in the Manjarabad country.[1] This is the scene of the incident between Sala and the tiger, related in so many inscriptions, which led to his becoming the founder of the Poysaḷa or Hoysaḷa line of kings (see Cm. 20 and 137). The temple of Vâsantikâ-dêvi, at which it occurred, is still represented by the present Vasantamma temple, which enjoys a great local reputation. There are other temples there in ruins, containing some fine carving, which attest the former importance of the place. The name means a market or shop,—a rare thing in that mountainous country covered with forests. It is a common part of several names in Kanara, such as Uppinangaḍi, Bellatangaḍi, Hosangaḍi and so on. The change was made in the time of the Vijayanagar kings, and perhaps from political motives. Thus in 1359, under Bukka-Râya, the place is called Sosavûr (see Mg. 25), but in 1539, under Achyuta-Râya, it is called Angaḍi (inscription in Belur taluq). The Hoysaḷas were therefore, to start with, a family of hill chiefs in the Western Ghats of Mysore,—the Malepas over whom they rose to become predominant, thence assuming the title of Maleparoḷ-gaṇḍa or Malaparoḷ-gaṇḍa, which is used as their signature in some of their grants, and also appears on their coins.

Another point of great interest is the discovery of a king named Kâma Hoysaḷa, hitherto unknown, who is described as the father of Vinayâditya. All the inscriptions so far met with put Vinayâditya after Sala. Some state that there were kings between (see Kd. 51 and 16), others represent Vinayâditya as the son of Sala (see Cm. 20), while some seem to identify Vinayâditya with Sala (see Kd. 143). The intervention of Kâma is fresh information, and his relation to Sala has yet to be determined. But as regards Vinayâditya, three inscriptions in the Arsikere taluq (Hassan District), without any mention of Sala, begin with the mahâ-maṇḍalêśvara nṛipa-Kâma-Hoysaḷa. Then two (dated S'aka 1075 and 1080) say his son (âtana taneya) was Vinayâditya, and the other (dated S'aka 1084) says his son's son (âtana ta[ne[2]] yana taneya), was Vishṇu. It seems probable that the first is correct and that the intermediate name in the latter is omitted. Of this king Kâma-Hoysaḷa we have further evidence in Mg. 19, at Uggihalli, which belongs to the 7th

[1] Regarding its situation as described under Vijayanagar see Mg. 25.
[2] This letter is omitted, but without it there is no meaning.

year of his reign though not otherwise dated. But in this he is described as Râchamalla-Permmâḍi-yenipa Kâma-Voysaḷa, that is, he was called or known as Râchamalla-Permmâḍi. This is a distinctive title of the Ganga kings, and it is not clear how he came by it, unless indeed he was the son of a Ganga princess.

Another inscription, Mg. 18, at Angaḍi itself, seems to have some connection, but the ruling king's name is unfortunately gone. From the sentence "thus celebrated through the munis of Gangavâḍi was king Râjamalla," it would appear that this might be the missing name, and therefore represent Kâma. On the other hand, it goes on to praise a king named Mâra, as if he were the Râjamalla previously mentioned. The only Mâra that can be adduced is the one in Kp. 1, 2 and 3, who is indeed said to be a nephew of Vinayâditya, but this Vinayâditya is described as of the Dattâḷvaravamśa. On the other hand, there are Mg. 73 and Kp. 10, in which we have Jagadê[ka]-vîra Hoysaḷa S'ânta (or S'ântara) Mâru-Dêva, but these are later, and belong to the time of Nârasimha. We must hope that farther light will be forthcoming to clear up these difficulties.

The next Hoysaḷa inscription, Cm. 38, also presents some inexplicable features. It is dated in the Vikra[ma]-gâla (which is most unusual)—1070, the year Paridhâvi,—and this corresponds correctly with A.D. 1012. But it is assigned to the reign or kingdom of (Vinîta or) Vinayâditya-Poysaḷa-Dêva, who is described as Biṭṭimayya's ? mâva (father-in-law), the word is not clear. There was a minister of this name in the time of Vishnuvarddhana, but he may not be the same person. Moreover the date 1012 seems much too early for Vinayâditya. Mg. 21 and 9 of the same reign also contain discrepancies in the date.

The following are the principal points of interest in this kings's inscriptions. Mg. 13 seems to imply that he had a banner on which were written the six letters Ra-kka-sa Ho-ysa-ḷa, which must therefore have been one of his titles. In Kd. 161 he has the name Tribhuvanamalla-Poysaḷa-Dêva, which is a common designation for him in the grants, and is described as ruling along with his son Ereyanga-Dêva. Kd. 33 represents the latter as if ruling alone, but Kd. 142 shows that even in A.D 1096 he was still only Yuva-râja. In Cm. 160 are given incidentally the boundaries of Vinayâditya's kingdom, namely, Konkaṇa, Âlva-khêḍa, Bayal nâḍ, Talekâḍ and Sâvimale. The first two are North and South Kanara ; Bayal-nâḍ is the Wainâḍ; Talekâḍ probably means the south and east of Mysore dependent on the late Ganga capital occupied by the Chôḷas ; Sâvimale was somewhere to the north and has not been identified. The king's residence was in Sosevûr. The queen Kaleyala-Dêvi took a great interest in promoting a marriage between Mariyâne-daṇḍanâyaka and Dékave-daṇḍanâyakitti, and the king bestowed on him the lordship of Sindagere. This was in A.D. 1048.

Of Ballâḷa I the same inscription gives us nearly all the information we possess. It informs us that Mariyâne-daṇḍanâyaka of the second generation had three beautiful and accomplished daughters, worthy to grace as queens three separate royal capitals. These three girls Ballâḷa wedded on the same day in one pavilion in Beluhûr (that is, Belur) and as "wages for their wet nursing" again granted the lordship of Sindagere to their father. This was in 1103. The same account was given in Ng. 32 (Vol. IV)

For Biṭṭiga or Biṭṭi-Dêva, afterwards known as Vishnuvarddhana, the earliest date we have here is A.D. 1100 in Kd. 164, but as we have a grant by Ballâḷa in 1104 (Hassan taluq), there is reason to believe that Vishnuvarddhana did not come to the throne till then. The relation of his conquests occupies a considerable portion of many inscriptions. Cm. 99 describes him as marching in 1116 against Pâṇḍya, probably the chief of Uchchangi, with whom a battle took place at Dumme, no doubt the hill on the Shimoga and Chitaldroog boundary. It was in this year (as I have shown in Vol. IV.) that he recovered Talakâḍ, and drove the Chôḷas out of Mysore. He must have been accompanied by his brother Udayâditya, for Cm. 70 informs us that Udayâditya's daughter died apparently at Vijayitamangala, which is the original name of Bêtmangala in the south-east of the Kolar District. The extent of his conquests is indicated in Cm. 130, where he claims to be a Brahma in creating a new world, with splendid temples for mountains and great tanks for seas; he plundered Aśvapati, Gajapati and other kings, was a terror to the Chôḷa, Kêraḷa, Pâṇḍya and Pallava kings, overcame Narasimhavarmmâ (who is mentioned in connection with Talakâḍ), and caused Kalapâla, or king Kala (of Nilagiri) and other kings to fall like winged white-ants into the flame of his valour. He assumes the title Kanchigoṇḍa (the capturer of Kanchi), says that his victories were proclaimed there by beat of drum, that Madhura was squeezed in the palm of his hand, and that Jananâthapura (a name of Mahâbalipura, known as the Seven Pagodas, on the east coast) was destroyed by his general. He was thus ruling over the Gangavâḍi Ninety-six Thousand, the Noḷambavâḍi Thirty-two Thousand and the Banavase Twelve Thousand. Mariyâne (above referred to) and his brother Bharata were ministers. The former is said to have made many conquests for the king, while the latter had apparently married the king's daughter, named Hariyale, for it says her father was the Mârâya. In Mg. 22, which is dated 1129, the boundaries of the kingdom are given as,—east, the Nangali ghat; south, Kongu, Chêram and Anamale; west, the Bârakanûr ghat; north, Sâvimale. The king is said to have terrified Sômêśvara, the lord of Chakragoṭṭa, as well as the Gauḍa, Mâlava, Chôḷa and Tri-Kaḷinga rulers. We also learn from this inscription that Vishnuvarddhana at this time had a son, named Kumâra-Ballâḷa-Dêva, called the eldest son, as if he were not the only one. He is also said to be ruling and must therefore have grown up. He has not been met with elsewhere, and as no more is heard of him later on, must have died soon after. There were also sisters younger than himself, the eldest of whom was Hariyabbarasi or Hariyala-Devi, the one mentioned above; but her husband is here called the lord or vibhu Singa.

In Cm. 137, dated 1130, we have a further statement of the king's exploits. His hostility was directed against the Chôḷa, Kêraḷa, Lâḷa, Mâḷava, Kongâḷva and ? Changâḷva kings. He pushed away Chôḷa, terrified Khacha, was angry with Mâḷava, made Anga tremble, swallowed up Kaḷinga, and tormented Kêraḷa. The provinces over which he ruled were Kongu, Nangali, Talakâḍu, Gangavâḍi, Nolambavâḍi, Banavâse, Hânungal and Huligere. Cm. 161, dated 1137, contains a long account of the Mariyâne and Bharata family. The king it appears now performed the tulâ-purusha ceremony, and among other gifts, granted them a village for their basadi. In 1139 Kd. 80 gives the same provinces in the kingdom as above, except that Halasige and Beḷuvala take the place of Huligere. His exploits at this time are well described in Kd. 69, which says that he seized the central ornament of Mâḷava's necklace; terrified Chakragoṭṭa, going after and capturing Sômêśvara's elephants; nor did he stop then,—for pursuing after Adiga, who hesitated, thinking "He will not do what he says"—he captured his country and his capital Talavana-pura. The lion of the king's valour, having sported in plunder at Talakâḍ, attacked the lofty elephant Uchchangi, calmly marched by Banavâse, daringly seized Beḷvala, and sprang forward with joy to the Perddore, planting his feet on Hânungal. In Kd. 79, dated 1140, we are told that his great queen (mahâ-sati) Dêvaki-Dêvi assumed the crown. No such queen is elsewhere mentioned, and the same verse is used in an inscription in Hassan taluq of S'ântala-Dêvi, but she died in 1131 (see S. B. 53). In Cm. 122 of the same date, the king had taken up his residence in Bankâpura, and his queens (see Kd. 96) now were Bammaḷa-Dêvi, who was the paṭṭa-mahâdêvi, and her younger sister (anuje)[1] Râjala-Dêvi, who was the piriy-arasi. The former was of the Pallava-kula, as we know from Ng. 3, dated 1134 (Vol. IV); but the latter it is said was related to the Châlukya-vamśa.

In Kd. 102, dated 1141, the boundaries of his kingdom are as last given above, but the provinces are stated to be the Gangavâḍi Ninety-six Thousand, the Nolambavâḍi Thirty-two Thousand, the Sântalige Thousand, the Banavâse Twelve Thousand, the Hanungal Five Hundred, the Halasige Twelve Thousand, the Mogelle Three Hundred and the Hayve Twelve. There is a Sâhani-Mallimayya mentioned, who is described as the younger brother of..... cheya-daṇḍanâyaka, great minister of the ornament of the Châlukyas, the emperor Noḷamba-Dêva, and as the..... of Turuka-Dêva with all his forces in Aritaṭṭa-kshêtra. Kd. 104 repeats the list of provinces, and a grant is made by a chief, one of whose titles is the Kadamba-kanṭhîrava. Other lists of his conquests are given in Kd. 51, 30, 16, Cm. 104, Kd. 149 and 117. In Kd. 4 and 103 we are told that his own country he gave to Brahmans and temples, and ruled over the foreign countries he had won. Three oceans being his western, eastern and southern boundaries, he made the Perddore (or great river, the Krishna) his boundary on the north.

Cm. 96, dated 1141, contains incidentally what I take to be a record of the king's death. He is called the senior king Biṭṭi-Dêva, and died in Bankâpura. Boppa-Dêva-daṇṇâyaka brought the body to Mudugere, where a fight took place for the elephant and treasure, and the chief men of the nine mandes of the Taḷige-nâḍ Thousand obtained from Nârasinga-Dêva a grant for the son of a Gauḍa who was killed in the battle.

Nârasimha I was Vishṇuvarddhana's son by his wife Lakshmî-Dêvi. The earliest date we have for him here is 1140 (in Cm. 4). It is during his reign that we have Hoysaḷa Sânta or S'ântara) Mâra previously referred to, ruling (see Mg. 37 and Kp. 10). Of Nârasimha we are told (Kd. 51 dated 1169) that the Maleyâlas, Kongu, the Vanga king, the Tuḷuvas, the Pâṇḍya, Paundra and Ândhra kings, the Chôḷas and Lâḷas, ... the Yavanas and Sakas, the kings of Simhaḷa and the seven islands in the middle of the sea trembled before him. In Kd. 30 we have some particulars regarding a fendatory family of Nirugunda, and some additions occur in Kd. 33 and 37. Kariya-Bamma, for his bravery while the Châḷukya emperor Âhavamalla was looking on, received from him the titles gaṇḍa-tala-prahâri and dodd-anka-baḍiva. His grandson Mâcha, for killing a certain enemy, obtained from (the Hoysaḷa) king Vishṇu the title of sitagara-gaṇḍa. The latter's son Malla slew Rêvaka, captured two elephants in the fierce war with Changâḷva, and charging Changâḷva's elephant on horseback, captured his umbrella. Mâcha's eldest son was Chaṭṭa, whose son-in-law Malla seized the top-knot of Pâṇḍya's goddess of valour, pulled it off and brought it to vîra-Ballâḷa-Dêva. The last date here for Nârasimha is 1172 in Mg. 6.

Ballâḷa II was anointed to the crown on the 22nd of July 1173[1] (see Kd. 4,136,139) in the capital Dôrasamudra. Cm. 21 and 22, dated 1178, refer to his conquest of Uchchangi. Pâṇḍya, it is said, overcome in battle, abandoned the hill, and forsaking his prancing horse and the throne on which he sat, took refuge in the middle of a forest, even there consumed by fear Of the hill itself it is said that the king of birds (Garuḍa), who soars at will over the three worlds, is unable to fly over the highest peak of Pâṇḍya's splendid droog; yet from desire for that hill of Uchchangi, vîra-Ballâḷa captured it without trouble and tossed it about as if playing at (the games) annekal or tirekal (see note, p. 37 of Translations). Other inscriptions inform us that on Pâṇḍya submitting to him, Ballâḷa took pity on him and restored to him his kingdom. In Mg. 33, dated 1179, there is mention of a fight with the Kalachurya king Sankama-Dêva. In Cm. 87 Ballâḷa is said to be living at Sâyirarave (the thousand groves). In Kd. 156 and 143 his kingdom is described as the Seven-and-a-half Lakh territory. In Mg. 5, dated 1194, and Cm. 54 and 55, dated 1195, we are told that he had raised the north (baḍagal-etti); and in the first that he laid siege with the four kinds of forces to the fort of Dusthe, where some disaster seems to have occurred to a part of his army.

[1] S'aka-varsha 1096 reneya Vijaya-samvatsarada S'râvaṇa-s'uddha 11 Âdivârad-andu.

I cannot find any place of this name. In Mg. 4, of 1194, he is said to have taken up his residence in northern Noṇambavâḍi (probably in Uchchangi-durga or the neighbourhood), and in Cm. 157 and 158, of 1195, it appears as if his queen Kêtala-Dêvi was carrying on the government; perhaps she was regent while the king was engaged in distant expeditions. In Kd. 127, of 1202, her name is said to be celebrated from Sêtu to Hima, that is throughout India; while the king was living at Hallavûr (which also I cannot find), having trampled on Chôḷa and Kaḷinga (or ? Chôḷa-Kaḷinga), thrashed and slaughtered the Mâḷava army, harrassed the .. ?. of Nêpâl, and plucked up Pâṇḍya. In 1203 he was residing at Lokkigundi, which is in Dharwar. In 1205 he was again at Hallavûr (Kd. 130). In 1207 he had made a victorious expedition as far as the Heddore or Kṛishṇa (Kd. 134), and next year among his titles (Kd. 117) are included,—smiter on the cheek of Bhillama's army and driver off of Jaita-râhuta,—and he was living at Hallavûr then and in 1211 (Kd. 118). Bhillama and Jaitugi were Yâdava kings of Dêvagiri. In 1218 he is said (Kd. 129) to be a thunderbolt to the mountains the Chôḷa, Varâḷa, Lâḷa and Magadha kings, to Vanga, Kaḷinga, Konga, Nêpâḷa, Turushka and Sêvuṇa, and is styled the emperor of the south (dakshiṇa-chakravartti). The name of his queen is given as Baichala-Dêvi, and he was in his own capital Dôrasamudra.

Nârasimha II appears in 1222 (Cm. 56) marching south against Ranga. In Kd. 12a, of 1233, he is described as the setter up of the Chôḷa king, the day of judgment to Makara and other kings, the confiner within narrow limits of the Pâṇḍya empire. In Cm. 20 we are told that on seeing the haughty Sêvuṇa king's generals coming against him, he was enraged, and urging his elephant toward them, slew the undoubted heroes Vikramapâla and Pâvusa, who were mad on war.

Sômêśvara went to live in the Chôḷa kingdom at Kannanur, where he was from 1233 to 1249, (Kd. 12a, 83, Cm. 150, Kd. 85, Cm. 20). This is near S'rirangam in the Trichinopoly District. In 1240, when he was marching against Gaṇḍa-Gôpâla, a son was born to him, apparently on the 11th of August,[1] Narasimha III (see Kd. 100). In 1252 he is said (Kd. 101) to have marched to Halugere and returned, and to be in Dôrasamudra. In reviewing his reign, Kd. 125 says he speedily subdued the Chôḷa king and the foremost leaders of the Pâṇḍya king, and ruled in peace.

His son Narasimha III appears in 1257 (Cn. 1) in Dôrasamudra. He is styled (Kd. 143 uprooter of the Magara kingdom, establisher of the Chôḷa kingdom, and promoter of the Pâṇḍya family. The same inscription gives a list of the âchâryyas of the five maṭhas of Âsandi-nâḍ. Cn. 44 mentions a burglary committed at a village near Hiriya-Mugule (Hiremugalûr) and Basavanhaḷḷi (part of Chikmugalûr).

Ballâḷa III was anointed to the crown on the 1st Feb. 1292[2] (Cm. 36). Marakâla, an emissary from Sundara Pâṇḍya, came with stores and vehicles and demanded the Khândya agrahâra, but was opposed by Kâḷala-Dêvi's son Pâṇḍya-Dêva-mahâdêva (see Kalaśa Kârkaḷa rulers), who slew him and captured all his belongings. Some fighting took place in consequence with his partisans, the people of Taligenâḍ and Dêvaligenâḍ. Cn. 103 refers to the same affair. Kd. 75 incidentally records the death of the king, who was killed fighting against the Turukas at Beribi on the 8th Sept. 1342[3].

This was six years after the date of the establishment of the Vijayanagar dynasty, but notwithstanding the king's son Virûpâksha-Ballâḷa (or Ballâḷa IV) was anointed to the crown (Cm. 105) on the 11th of August 1343,[4] and signs the grant he made,—śrî-Vajrêśvara-dêva. But we find in Kp. 17 and Cn. 103 references to grants made by Ballâḷa to the god Virûpâksha. This ends the Hoysaḷa dynasty.

Kalasa Kârakala.

The Kalasa Kârakaḷa kingdom (see Mg. 41) was on extension below the Ghats into South Kanara (see Mg. 64) of the original S'ântara kingdom of Pombuchchha. Kalasa is above the Ghats, in Mysore, and Kârakala below the Ghats, in South Kanara, in about the same latitude. The inscriptions of this State in the present volume range from 1246 to 1598 A.D. In the earliest, which are mostly on copper plates at Kalasa, we find queens in supreme power,—Jàkala-mahâdêvi in 1246 and 1247, and Kàlala-mahâdêvi from 1270 to 1281. But one of the stone inscriptions there, Mg. 65, gives what appear to be the names of the three kings preceding Jâkala. These were vîra-Baidu-Dêva, in S'aka 1132 (A.D. 1209), Malla-Dêva and Mâru-Dêva. On the death of the latter, the paṭṭada-piriy-arasi (or crowned senior queen) Jàkala-mahâdêvi succeeded. She therefore seems to have been his widow. In the same way Kâlala-mahâdêvi is also described as paṭṭada-piriy-arasi, but there is no indication as to whom she immediately succeeded. There is nothing to show that they were not supreme and independent. They were probably Jains, although all the grants made under them were for the god Kalasêsvara or Kalasanâtha. But the Jaina and S'aiva creeds were curiously mixed up here, for in Mg. 67 the grant is said to be made because it was the great day of the gods Kalasanâtha and Jinêsvara (Kalasanâtha-dêvarige Jinês'vara-dêvarige mâ-devasav âgi), as if they were in some way associated. There is nothing of importance in the grants.

In Mg. 74 and 69 we have Bâla-Dêva or Râya-Ballaha-Dêva ruling in 1284 and 1285 A.D. The grants are on copper plates and of the same character as the above. But the second confirms the tradition, supported by many other grants (see Mg. 88), that the Kalasa country was a Thousand nâḍ, administered by three Hebbârs or Hebbâruvas.

Next comes Vîra-Pâṇḍya-Dêva, on two stones, Cm. 35 and 36, in which he is described as Kâlala-Dêvi's son. The first is much defaced, but the second is dated S'aka 1213 (A.D. 1292), at the time when the Hoysaḷa king vîra-Ballâḷa-Dêva (III) was anointed to the throne, and they both probably record the same events. They state that a certain Marakâla, belonging to Samudra-Pâṇḍya's house (mane), came with all his property and vehicles, where from is not stated, and demanded (or begged for) the Khâṇḍya agrahâra. Whereupon Pâṇḍya-Dêva attacked and slew him, cutting him to pieces, and seized all his property and vehicles. Some local chiefs apparently stood up for him against Pâṇḍya, and the stones are memorials of warriors who fell in the fighting which followed. Cm. 106 also mentions Kâlala-Dêvi's son. In Mg. 68 we have a copper plate grant of A.D. 1297, in which Vîra-Pâṇḍya appears to be ruling independently. It records a grant to the god Kalasanâtha.

We now jump to A.D. 1419 in Mg. 46 and 47, where we find Bairarasa-Oḍeyar at Kârakala under the Vijayanagar king Dêva-Râya (II). We then come to A.D 1440 in Mg. 42, when Vîra-Pâṇḍya-Dêva was ruling the Kalasa kingdom, under the same Vijayanagar king.

Next follow Mg. 50, 54 and 48, in which Vîra-Bhayirarasa-Oḍeyar is ruling the Kalasa kingdom under the Vijayanagar king Immaḍi-Narasinga-Râya. The first two date in A.D. 1493 and the last in 1501. In the latter no overlord is mentioned. With these we have the special title assumed by Bhairarasa, of ari-râya-gunḍara ḍâvaṇi (cattle-rope to champions over, or among, hostile kings).[1] The third inscription mentions the king's younger sister Balamâ-Dêvi.

We now come to four inscriptions of the time when Immaḍi-Bhairarasa-Oḍeyar was ruling, under the Vijayanagar king Krishna-Râya. Mg. 39 and 41 belong to A.D. 1516, Mg. 62 to 1524, and Kp 47 to 1530. The second of these informs us that Immaḍi-Bhairarasa-Oḍeyar was the son of Bommala-Dêvi and son-in-law of Hiriya-Bhairarasa-Oḍeyar, no doubt the king of the preceding paragraph. That king is also described as ruling the Kalasa kingdom. The same is said of the present one in Mg. 39. But in Mg. 41 he is said to be ruling the Kalasa Kârakala kingdom, and in Mg. 62 to be ruling the kingdom below and above the Ghats. Kp. 47 mentions him only as on the throne of Kârakala. Mg. 41 contains some interesting details. It says that the mighty (bhujabala) mahârâya of Vijayanagara invaded the Tulu country and encamped near Mangalur. Bhairasa-Odeyar fled, and made a vow that if the imperial army should retire and he return in peace to his country, he would repair the temple of Kalasanâtha. And so events came about, and Sûrappa-sênabôru, described as his wise man (buddhivanta) and his head minister (s'ira-pradhâna), was entrusted with the work of carrying out his vow. Mg. 62 furnishes an example of the apparent scarcity of money in those parts, for the temple funds were taken for a marriage ceremony and lands given instead. There are other instances of a similar procedure (see the inscriptions at Kalasa). In Kp. 47 we are informed that while Bommala-Dêvi's son Bhairarasa was on the throne of Kârakala, his younger sister Kâlala-Dêvi was governing the Bagunji country in her own right (sva-dharmmadalu). She was evidently a Jain, and made grants for a Jain temple on the death of her daughter Ramâ-Dêvi.

The next inscriptions of this house are Mg. 64, dating A.D. 1542, of the time of Achyuta-Râya of Vijayanagar, and Mg. 40, dating 1552, of the time of Sadâsiva-Râya. In these we have Vîra-Pândya(or Pândyappa)-Vodeyar, who was the son of Chandala-Dêvi and son-in-law of Bhairarasa-Odeyar, no doubt the Immadi-Bhairarasa of the paragraph next above. In the first of these inscriptions he is said to be ruling the kingdom above and below the Ghats; in the second he is said to be ruling with the crown of Keravase, probably his capital at the time, but a Bhairaras-annâji is said to have the pârupatya (or management) of Kalasa.

We next come to Mg. 60, also of the time of Sadâsiva-Râya, dating 1555, when Immadi-Pândyappa-Vodeyar was ruling, as in the preceding case, with the crown of Keravase, and there was the same manager at Kalasa.

Finally we have Kp. 57 and 50, of A.D. 1588 and 1598. No overlord is mentioned, Vijayanagar having now fallen. Bhairarasa-Vodeyar, son of Gummata-Dêvi, was ruling with, it says, the crown of a secure empire (sthira-sâmbrâjya). The first records a grant for a temple of Gôpâla-Krishna, and the second for a Jain basti, both in the Koppa country.

The following is the list of these rulers, not quite continuous, but covering a period of 466 years from A.D. 1132 to 1598, as contained in the present inscriptions. The descent seems to have been through sons-in-law, the aliya-santâna of the West Coast.[1]

Ballu-Dêva, A.D.	1132
Malla-Dêva
Mâru-Dêva
Jâkala-mahâdêvi, (? his widow)	*1246-7
Kâlala-mahâdêvi	1270-81
Bâla-Dêva, Râya-Ballaha-Dêva	1284-5
Vîra-Pândya-Dêva, son of Kâlala-Dêvi,	1292-7

Immadi-Bhairarasa-Odeyar son of Bommala-Dêvi, son-in-law of Hiriya-Bhairarasa-Odeyar (his younger sister was Kâlala-Dêvi)	1516-30
Vîra-Pândya-Vodeyar, or Vîra-Pândyappa-Vodeyar son of Chandala-Dêvi, son-in-law of Bhairarasa-Odeyar	1542-52
Immadi-Pândyappa-Vodeyar	1555
Bhairarasa-Vodeyar, son of Gummata-Dêvi	1588-98

[1] Since writing the above, I find the following statement in the South Canara Manual:—All the Jains of Tuluva, except the priestly class, follow the Aliya Santâna rule of inheritance. (I, 68).

I may here quote Buchanan's remarks in 1801 on these rulers. He says "the Byrasu Wodears are the most powerful of the Jain Rajas of Tuluva;" and he was informed that "the Jain Râjas of Tuluva were independent of each other and of all other powers, and were descended from the kings of Vijayanagara by Jain women."[1] The Bhairarasa Woḍeyars lost their kingdom and came to an end with the conquests of the Keladi kings Venkaṭappa-Nâyaka and S'ivappa-Nâyaka, early in the 17th century.

Vijayanagar.

The earliest grant of the Vijayanagar kings in this volume (and one of the earliest known) is Sg. 1 of 1346. Harihara, in order to celebrate the festival of the victorious establishment of his empire from the eastern to the western ocean, made a grant for the maṭha of S'ṛingêri, together with his brothers and other relatives, of nine villages, to the guru Vidyâtîrtha or Bhârati-tîrtha-śrîpâda, who had been instrumental in founding the dynasty.

The progenitor Sangama (see Kp. 25) was descended from the Lunar race, through Yadu and Krishna. He had five sons,—Harihara, Kampa, Bukka, Mârapa and Muḍdapa. Of these five, Bukka, the middle one, was the chief, like Arjuna, the middle one of the five Pâṇḍavas. As the point of his sword danced about, the Turushkas shrank up, the Konkaṇa S'ankapârya fled with haste from the field of battle, the Ândhras sought shelter in caves, the Gûrjaras were enfeebled, the Kâmbhôjas lost their courage, the Kaḷingas suffered defeat. His queen was Gaurâmbikâ, by whom he had a son Harihara (II). To whom and to Pampâ was born a son Bukka (II).

Meanwhile of Bukka I we have some interesting statements in Mg. 25, which is unfortunately very much defaced. One of his generals seems to have taken Uchchangi, and he and the senior councillor were unwilling it says (in some connection) to give up Sosavûr (the birthplace of the Hoysaḷas), the situation of which is described as in the Kali-naḍiyama-nâḍ Four Thousand, known as the Kâkare-nâḍ, of the Paḍiyagbaṭṭa (or ? Western Ghats). It is a pity the passage cannot be fully made out, as there is reason to suppose that the founders of the Vijayanagar dynasty may have been chiefs under the Hoysaḷas. Bukka's son Virupaṇṇa was ruler of Kalasa and Âraga. (Mg. 52)

Harihara II is described (Kp. 34) as the cultivator of Karṇâṭaka learning. His younger brother ... pa-Râya was ruling Âraga in 1377 (Kp. 19), and his son Chikka-Râya in 1381 (Kp. 31). A grant made by the king in 1400 is dated on the 1,644,370th Kali day (Mg. 2). His son is called Dêva-Râya in Kp. 26, and is the same as Bukka II of Kp. 25, Pratâpa-Râya of Kp. 33 and Pratâpa-Dêva-Râya of Sg. 29. Pratâpa-Râya had a son Bhâska-Râya (Kp. 33). In Kp. 32 we come to Mallikârjuna, who in Kp. 44 is called Dêva-Râya (III). Mg. 50 and 54 bring us to Kaṭhâri-Sâluva Immaḍi-Narasinga-Râya. In Mg. 88 we come to Krishna-Râya, and Mg. 41 tells us of his expedition into Tuḷuva in 1516. In Kd. 31 Achyuta-Râya appears, and in Tk. 13 Sadâs'iva-Râya. In Cm. 79 we have Venkaṭapati-Râya, in Cm. 103 Râmachandra-Râya, and in Cm. 153 S'rî-Ranga-Râya.

Most of the grants are concerned with either the Âraga, the Kalasa Kârkala, or the Balam-Belur kingdoms (see those sections). Âraga is in the Tîrthahalli taluq and was the capital of what is sometimes called the Male-râjya or hill kingdom, extending over the south-west of the Shimoga District. It was being ruled by Mâdarasa in 1369 (Kp. 6), and in 1377 by ... pa-Râya, younger brother of Harihara II (Kp. 19). In 1378 it was ruled by Virupaṇṇa (Kp. 30), who was a son of Bukka-Râya I, and is called Yadugiri Virupaṇṇa-Râya or Voḍeyar. He was previously, in

[1] Travels, II, 254, 258.

1370, ruling the Three Thousand kingdom (Kp. 57), that is Kalasa. In 1381 we find Chikka-Râya, a son of Harihara II, ruling Âraga (Kp. 31). In 1403 Viṭhaṇṇa or Viṭhala was the ruler (Kp. 52) and continued till 1410 (Mg. 85). He was a Brahma-Kshatri, the grandson of Sankapa, a minister of Harihara-Râya, and was the son of Bommana and Virupâmbika (see Kp. 52 and 53), the latter a florid eulogium apparently composed by himself. In 1408 his government extended over Âraga Gutti, Bârakalûr, Mangalûr and the Karṇâṭaka kingdom as far as the Western Ocean (Kp. 33), that is the whole of South Kanara below the Ghats, as well as Âraga above.

The only person whose position it is difficult to determine is Mârappa Voḍeyar's son Hariyappa. Voḍeyar of Âraga, mentioned in Kp. 7, with one of the supreme titles. In Mg. 58 more of the supreme titles are given to him, but he is called Mangarâj-âtmaja. Mg. 23 evidently refers to the same, though he is not there said to be of Âraga. Mârappa was next younger brother of Bukka I, and seems to have succeeded to the Kadamba territories on the West Coast. Thus must have been his son. Apparently he was the ruler of Âraga, though it is not expressly stated. Two of the three inscriptions in which he appears are dated, but only in the cyclic years (Vijaya and Nandana, ? 1407 and 1413), and there seems no room for him as ruler of Âraga except after those mentioned in the preceding paragraph.

There is one inscription that calls for remark, Mg. 87. In this, dated 1371, in the time of Bukka-Râya I, we have a Bôdha-mahâdêva on the throne of Durga. This it seems to me may perhaps be the donor of the Coorg inscriptions No. 8 and 9 (Vol. I).

Keladi, Ikkêri or Bednur.

There are several inscriptions of the Keḷadi kings, as they always call themselves, from the original capital and birthplace of the line, though the capital was removed thence first to Ikkêri and then to Bednur. They were the principal dynasty holding the Lingâyit faith. [1] The first prominent chief was Sadâśiva-Nâyaka, ruling from 1513 to 1545, who was granted the name by Sadâśiva-Râya of Vijayanagar in return for military services rendered in Tuluva or South Kanara. After the fall of Vijayanagar, Venkaṭappa-Nâyaka became independent and subdued most of the Kanara country. This brought him into contact with the Portuguese, who call him Venkapor, the king of Canara. He also kept at bay the forces of Bijapur. Sivappa-Nâyaka was the most celebrated king of the line. To him S'rî-Ranga-Râya, the last representative of the Vijayanagar dynasty, fled for refuge, and he not only invested him with the government of Belur and Sakkarepatna, but advanced upon Seringapatam, ostensibly to restore him to power. This expedition however was not successful. The dynasty was overthrown when Bednur was captured by Haidar Ali in 1763, who secured an immense booty valued at 12 millions sterling. The name of the city was changed by him to Haidar-nagar, the present Nagar.

The first inscriptions of the line in this volume are Sg 5 and Kp. 61, belonging to A D. 1621 and 1627. They are of the time of Venkaṭappa-Nâyaka, grandson of Sadâśiva-Nâyaka. The former records that he re-established S'ṛingêri (punar-pratishṭeyam mâḍida). The latter gives his titles,—Yedava-Murâri (said to be the names of two slaves belonging to the founder of the line, who on condition that their memory was preserved volunteered to be sacrificed for the establishment of his power, for which a human sacrifice was declared to be necessary); Kôṭe-kôlâhaḷa (disturber of forts); establisher of the pure vaidikâdvaita-siddhânta (this is the same as one of the titles of the S'ṛingêrigurus); devoted to faith in S'iva and the guru. The inscription records a grant for a maṭha to a guru who seems to have come from Triṇâmale (in South Arcot). It is signed śrî-Venkaṭâdri.

[1] The early Mysore kings were also Lingâyits, until they acquired Seringapatam, when they adopted the Vaishnava faith; but the ladies continued to wear the linga. The Coorg Râjas, too, were a Lingâyit dynasty.

We next come to Sg. 11 and 13, both of A.D. 1652. These are of the time of S'ivappa-Nâyaka, great grandson of Sadâśiva-Nâyaka. He was ruling Âraga, Gutti, Bârakûr, Mangalûr and other places, his kingdom extending to the Western Ocean. Âraga and Gutti or Chandragutti are above the Ghats, in Mysore, in the west of the Shimoga District: Bârakûr and Mangalûr (Mangalore) are below the Ghats, in South Kanara. These inscriptions record the restoration of the endowments of the S'ṛingêri maṭha, as described under that head.

In Kp. 60, of A.D. 1709, we have Basappa-Nâyaka, son of Chennamâji, the wife of Sômaśêkhara-Nâyaka, son of Sivappa-Nâyaka and grandson of Siddappa-Nâyaka, born in the line of Sadâśiva-Nâyaka. From the history of these kings we know that Sômasêkhara was murdered by his nobles, and his widow Chennamâji adopted Basappa. The present grant was made to a Lingâyit guru, one of whose titles is,—dyâvâ-prithvî-mahâ-mahattina voḷagâda, among the mahâ-mahattas of heaven and earth. He had the same name as the one in Kp. 61, and seems also to have come from Triṇâmale (in South Arcot). It is signed śrî-Sadâśiva.

Then follows Kp. 46, of A.D. 1719. This contains an order by Somaśêkhara-Nâyaka (II) regarding a grant of land for a Virakta or Lingâyit maṭha. An officer was sent from the presence, that is the court, to mark out the land in front of the people of the boundary villages on the four sides; after which he was to have this paper (kâgada) entered in the sênabhâva's account book (kaḍitta), and to return it to the donee. At the end are the words yathâ-prati, true copy.

S'ṛingêri.

There are over 30 inscriptions recording grants made by or under gurus of the S'ṛingêri maṭha, ranging in date from 1392 to 1758 A.D. The S'ṛingêri dharmma-pîṭha or religious throne was established, as is well known (see also Sg. 11), by S'ankarâchârya, the great S'aiva reformer of the 8th century. It is situated on the left bank of the Tungâ river, in a fertile tract near the Western Ghats. The celebrated scholar Mâdhava or Vidyâraṇya (forest of learning), author of the Vêdabhâshya, who was instrumental in founding the Vijayanagar empire in 1336, was the head of the establishment at that time (see Sg. 11). By his aid and advice, Hakka and Bukka, the first and third sons of Sangama, succeeded in establishing the new State; and Hakka, the first king, assumed the name of Harihara. His capital, which occupied a very ancient historical site on the Tungabhadrâ, was named Vidyânagara (city of learning), after the minister; but in course of time came to be called Vijayanagara (city of victory). Vidyâraṇya's brother Sâyana, the well-known commentator on the Rig-vêda, became minister to Sangama, the son of Kampa, the latter being the second son of the progenitor Sangama, and ruler of a territory he had acquired in the Nellore and Kadapa districts.

In gratitude for Vidyâraṇya's services, Harihara established the maṭha at S'ṛingêri in 1346 (see Sg. 11), and he and his brothers richly endowed it (Sg. 1). He also at the same time founded the agrahâras of S'ṛingêri and Vidyâraṇyapura, which adjoin one another. During the ascendancy of the Vijayanagar empire the religious establishment at S'ṛingêri continued to flourish under the royal patronage. But when that rule was overthrown by the victory of the confederacy of Musalman powers in 1565, and the Vijayanagar kings were driven to settle in more distant parts to the east, the influence of the maṭha was weakened. In fact the establishment seems to have been ruined, and the lands which formed its endowments were appropriated by any one who could seize them.

This state of things was eventually remedied by the Keḷadi kings, who had come into power in the north-west of Mysore under the protection of Sadâs'iva-Râya, the last king who had Vijayanagar for his capital. In 1621 Venkaṭappa-Nâyaka re-established S'ṛingêri (punar-pratishṭeyam mâḍida, see Sg. 5). And later on, in 1652, on the representation of Sachchidânanda-Bhârati, the guru at that time, who visited the king at the capital Bidarûr, that is Bednûr, for the purpose, S'ivappa-Nâyaka,—to whom in 1646 the last representative of the Vijayanagar line had fled for refuge from Chandragiri and Chingalpat on their being taken by the forces of Golkonda, and who invaded Mysore on the plea of restoring him to power, and gave him Belur and Sakkarepatna as an estate,—held an inquiry into the matter, rescued the lands of the maṭha from those who had unlawfully got hold of them and restored them to its possession and enjoyment (Sr. 11, 13). The Keḷadi, that is the Bednûr, kingdom having been conquered by Haidar Ali in 1763 and absorbed into the Mysore territories, the S'ṛingêri maṭha has received the full support and countenance of the Mysore Râjas, who make an annual grant for its support from the State.

The head of the S'ṛingêri maṭha is styled the Jagad-guru or guru of the world, and is possessed of extensive authority and influence. He wears on ceremonial occasions a tiara like the Pope's, covered with pearls and precious stones, said to have been given to him by the Peshva of Poona; and a handsome necklace of pearls, with an emerald centre piece. His sandals, which as usual with those of holy men consist only of a wooden sole, with a single peg that is held between the big toe and the next, are covered with silver. He is an ascetic and a celibate, and in diet very abstemious. He is specially chosen by his predecessor for the office in boyhood, and trained for the purpose to the highest point in all Hindu learning. On visiting any town he is borne along in an aḍḍa pâlki, or palanquin carried crossways, which prevents anything else passing, and is attended by an elephant and escort, and accompanied by a numerous body af Brahmans and disciples. Though his revenues are large, the expenses connected with the feeding of Brahmans, and the distribution of food and clothing on festival days to all comers of both sexes, exceed the income, and the guru is constantly engaged in long and protracted tours through various parts for the purpose of receiving contributions from his disciples, and settling religious disputes.

The full titles of the gurus as contained in these inscriptions run as follows :—śrîmat parama-hamsa-parivrâjakâcharyya-varya (chief âchâryya of the parama-hamsa sannyâsis); pada-vâkya-pramâṇa-pârâvâra-pâriṇa (who has seen to the farthest point of grammar, philosophy and logic); devoted to yama niyama and others the eight branches of Yôga; establisher of the pure Vaidik-âdvaita-siddhânta; establisher of the six dars'anas; disciple of the succession of gurus descended from the holy feet of S'ankarâchârya; (or) disciple in regular succession from Vidyâraṇya-svâmi. And the gurus are said to be seated on the Yôga throne, or to be ruling the Yôga kingdom.

The following are the gurus mentioned in the present inscriptions, with their dates :—

Vidyâtîrtha, Bhârati-tîrtha-śrîpâda, Vidyâraṇya-śrîpâda	A. D. 1346-1378		Râmachandra-Bhârati	1513-1524
Narasimha-Bhârati	1392-1406		Narasimha-Bhârati	1547
Râmachandra-Bhârati			Abhinava-Narasimha-Bhârati	1603-1621
S'ankara-Bhârati[1]	1407		Sachchidânanda-Bhârati	1629-1662
Chandraśêkhara-Bhârati[1]	1408-1416		Narasimha-Bhârati	1695
Purushôttama-Bhârati[1]	1418-1451		Narasimha-Bhârati	1758

This list, though not agreeing in every particular, is fairly in accord with the succession of gurus obtained from the maṭha as given in my Gazetteer of Mysore (revised edition, Vol. I, p. 473).

[1] These may be different names of the same person.

In Sg. 1 we have the record of the original endowments of the maṭha granted by Harihara and the other sons of Sangama and their relatives to Bhârati-tîrtha-śrîpâda, that is Vidyâraṇya or Vidyâ-tîrtha. It is dated in S'aka 1268 (A.D. 1346) and is thus one of the earliest Vijayanagar grants known. It professes to have been issued in celebration of the festival of Harihara's victory over all the countries from the eastern to the western ocean. In Kp. 30 we have a grant made in 1378 by order of Vidyâraṇya-śrîpâda.

In Sg. 29, of A.D. 1416, Pratâpa-Dêva-Râya is mentioned as in power, as well as the guru of S'ṛingêri. In Sr. 5, of 1621, Keḷadi Venkaṭappa-Nâyaka is said to have re-established S'ṛingêri; and the swâmi's chief disciple repaired and endowed the temple of Mallikârjuna. Sg. 11 and 13, of 1652, contain a summary of the history of the maṭha as regards its endowments, and relate how they were restored by Keḷadi S'ivappa-Nâyaka.

Most of the inscriptions relate to sale or transfer of lands; and many of them are engraved in small Nâgari characters, although the language used is Kannaḍa.

Balam.

This State, now called Manjarabad, with adjoining tracts above and below the Ghats, was bestowed by the Vijayanagar kings in 1397 upon Singappa-Nâyaka, one of their generals and son of an old palegar named Manchaṭya-Nâyaka. It remained in the hands of this family till the fall of Seringapatam in 1799. But in 1645 Belur and neighbouring parts were overrun by Sivappa-Nâyaka of Keḷadi or Bednur, who bestowed them on the fugutive Vijayanagar king who had taken refuge with him. In 1792 the Balam palegar Krishṇappa-Nâyaka joined the army of Parasu Ram Bhao co-operating in the advance of Lord Cornwallis against Seringapatam. On the conclusion of peace with Tipu Sultan he fled to Coorg, fearing the Sultan's displeasure. But the latter induced him to return, and gave him the government of the Aigur-śîme, which formed the south of Balam. The rest of the province was annexed to Mysore. Venkaṭâdri-Nâyaka, son of the above Krishnappa-Nâyaka, was in possession of Aigur-śîme in 1799 at the fall of Seringapatam, and not only attempted to maintain his independence but to recover the northern parts of Balam. He was captured at Uggihalli two years after, and was hanged as an example, contrary to the wishes of Colonel Wellesley.

The oldest inscription here of the Balam chiefs is Mg. 35, of the time of Manchaka-Nâyaka. It is not dated, but probably belongs to about 1400, and the chief may have been a grandson of the original holder of the estate. We then have Cm. 57, 58, 23, 124, 125 and 126, with dates ranging from 1514 to 1582. In these we have grants by Venkaṭâdri-Nâyaka, (or Venkaṭappa-Nâyaka), son of Yeṛa-Krishṇappa-Nâyaka. These names alternate throughout the history of the line, and make it difficult in the absence of dates to decide the period. Cm. 79, 29, 130, 145, Mg. 8 and Cm. 47 date from 1587 to 1615. Here we have Venkaṭâdri-Nâyaka's son Krishṇappa-Nâyaka. Next come Mg. 81, 82 and 84, all of 1675, in which appears Krishṇappa-Nâyaka's son Venkaṭâdri-Nâyaka. Lastly in Tk. 38 and 87, which probably belong to about 1704 and 1705, we have Krishṇappa-Nâyaka. There is nothing of importance in any of the grants. Tk. 38 is said to be a bhâshâ-patra.

Sante Bennur.

Sante Bennûr, which is in the Channagiri taluq of the Shimoga District, was the seat of a family of chiefs who had their origin in Basavapatna in the same taluq. They were feudatory to the Vijayanagar empire. When the Bijapur forces under Ran-dulha Khan captured Basavapatna in 1636, Sante Bennur was also taken, and the chiefs retired to Tarikere (in the Kaḍur District), with which they were afterwards identified, having Kaldurga as a fortress.

Their inscriptions in this volume describe them as of the Puvvali race, and as adherents of Hanumanta, the servant of Râmachandra. The succession given is,—

Kengappa-Nâyaka	Nichcha-Maduvaniga[1] Hanumappa-Nâyaka
Hire-Hanumappa-Nâyaka	S'arajâ-Hanumappa-Nâyaka
Immadi-Hanumappa-Nâyaka	Sîtarâmappa-Nâyaka

Hire-Hanumappa-Nâyaka's brother Bâlagiri-Nâyaka is said to have been like a right hand to vîra-Venkatapati-Dêva who was ruling in Penugonda. Sante Bennur was taken by the Chitaldroog chiefs early in the 17th century, and a hundred years later fell into the hands of the Bednur chiefs. It was one of the conquests of Haidar Ali in 1761, who annexed it to Mysore. The Tarikere chief was granted by him a maintenance allowance. But in the Mysore rebellion of 1830 the head of the family suddenly left Mysore and joined the insurgents, seizing upon Kaldurga and Kâmandurga in the Bâbâ Budan mountains.

Some of the grants are said to be made in the presence of the god Vîrabhadra of Kallatti (on the Bâbâ Budans), and in front of the temple of Basavêśvara.

Phalahâra matha.

There are four somewhat interesting though roughly composed inscriptions on copper plates belonging to the Phalahâra-matha at the Bâbâ Budan mountains. They are Cm. 111, 110, 103 and 109, of the dates respectively of A.D. 1698, 1702, 1707, and 1717. The first three are addressed by the Udâna-svâmi of the Vîra-bhikshavati-matha of S'rîśaila or Srîparvata to the great svâmi of the Phalahâra-matha of the Ghâlipûje-parvata, stating that as the two mathas are united, certain sects residing in specified directions (namely, south, west and north of the Hire-hole or old river, the Krishna) should be considered as adherents of the latter; and renouncing in its favour, throughout the Sâlivâhana country,[2] their tithes (of Rs. 2½) and offerings. The fourth is a grant, by representatives of the fifty-six countries, of certain mirâsi or dues to the Phalahâra-matha.

The Udâna svâmi's titles are,—âchârya of parama-hamsa sannyâsis; having crossed over to the farthest shore of grammar, philosophy and logic; lord of the throne of the Sun, which is equal to the great mountain Mêru. He is also called the Linga-chakravarti; of the sampradâya of the great Mallikârjuna-dêva; chief mahâ-mahattu of the earth; head of the five mathas and five houses of the earthly Kailâsa, which is S'rîśaila; and the Vîra-S'aiva prasanna. S'rîśaila or S'rîparvata (also called S'rîgiri) is a great holy place of S'iva worship, situated south of the river Krishna, some distance east of where the Tungabhadra joins it, in the Karnûl or Kurnool District. Cm. 109 is accordingly said to have been written in the presence of the Kannulla Babâna-dore, which apparently stands for the Navâb of Karnûl. In this the Udâna-svâmi grants to the svâmi of the Ghâlipûje throne various insignia of his office,—such as a palanquin with silver mountings, a pearl necklace, a golden umbrella and other things, ending with the five kinds of drums.

The latter svâmi is said to be,—seated on the throne of the four âchâryas; svâmi of the original throne of guru Dattâtreya's Palahâra-matha, which is also called the matha of Channa-Vîra-dêva, disciple of the ancient Phalahâra-dêva. The Virûpâksha-linga of the matha is said to have been born in the middle of the Ghâlipûje twelve yôjana mountains; to have been consecrated by Hanumanta, the servant of Râma; and to have granted a boon to Vîra-Ballâla-Râya, to whom are ascribed

[1] Daily a bridegroom.

[2] It is curious to find this name used at so late a date, S'âlivâhana being a corruption of S'âtavâhana, a dynasty of the 1st and 2nd centuries. But I have found an inscription of the 14th century dated in the S'âtavâhana S'aka.

the conquest of numerous countries and various capitals. The Ghâḷipûje mountains, also called the golden Chandradrôṅa, and Vêda-parvata, are said to contain the sanjîvana (a life-restoring elixir) and siddha-rasa (quicksilver); while a graphic description is given of the great caves, forests, wild animals, serpents and demons of the mountains; also of the medicinal plants and drugs found there; and of the deluging rains, and drenching fogs and mists.

It is not easy to understand all the mythological allusions, but the account of the natural features is most appropriate to these wild regions. The mountains are the highest in Mysore, and called Ghâḷipûje (or Vâyu) as being the haunt of the Wind demon; but the puranic name is Chandradrôṇa, the crater of the moon, the range being of crescent or horse-shoe form, enclosing the impenetrable forests of the Jâgar valley. Vêda-parvata is the source of the Vêdâvati or Haggari river, which flows into the Tungabhadra some distance west of Karnûl. The whole range is ordinarily known to Europeans as the Bâbâ Budan mountains, after the name of a faqîr who settled there and grew the first coffee in India from some berries he had brought from Mocha. But the cave occupied by his tomb is held by the Hindus as sacred to Dattâtreya, whose re-appearance at its mouth, into which he vanished in ancient times, is to herald the final avatâr of Vishnu, and the beginning of the millennium.

Madhvâchâryya.

Notice ought to have been directed in an earlier section to Mg. 89, the date of which is about 1240. It is an inscription on the top of a big boulder called the Bhîmana-kallu at the Ambâtîrtha in the Tungâ river. It states that the rock was brought there and set up with one hand by Madhvâchâryya. This was the reformer of the 13th century, who was the exponent of the system of dvaita or dualism, and founder of the sect of Mâdhva Brahmans. The circumstances under which he brought the stone here are thus related in the Madhva-vijaya.

tîrthârthaṃ prithutara-vapra-pâti-vâraṃ dhârâṇâṃ raya-sahana-kshamâṃ Mahêkshaḥ ।
ânîtâṃ daśa-śata-pumbhir atyaśaktyâ

lôkânâm upakṛitayê kutaś śilêyaṃ
ninyê nô iti janatâ jagâda tatra ।

Mahêksha (Madhvâchâryya) saw a big rock, capable of supporting the fall of water from a height, which had been brought by a thousand men for some tîrtha, and abandoned through utter inability. "Why was the rock not conveyed (to its destination) for the good of the people?" he inquired; when the crowd at the place replied, that there were no men able to convey it there, and that even if Bhîma were to try, it was doubtful whether he could do it or not. Whereupon he bore up the rock easily with one hand, as in the form of Hanumân he had borne up the mountain (Gandhamâdana), and placed it at the destined spot. And this rock in the Tungâ even now bears witness to his deed.

Mysore.

The only grant in this volume by the Mysore kings is Kp. 48, dated 17th November 1811. It is of interest as being the earliest grant I have met with made by the Mahârâja Krishṇa-Râja-Woḍeyar after he assumed the reins of government from the Dewân Pûrnaiya. The grant was issued from Bengalûru (Bangalore), and is dated according to both the Christian and S'aka eras. The order is addressed by the Mahârâja,—after whose name is the Arabic expression, "may God protect his country and his government,"—to the Amildar of Ganjûr, for communication to the Serishṭadâr. Timmaiya of Heche, in the Bagunji-mâgaṇi of the Koppa taluq, had come into the presence, and stated that he had erected a stone temple in Hedase in the Bagunji-mâgaṇi, and had set up therein the five gods Umâ-Mahêśvara, Mahâ-Gaṇapati, Durgamma, Gopâla-Krishṇa and Sûrya-Nârâyaṇa, besides building houses for six Brahmans in the temple precincts. He therefore asked for a grant of uttâr lands from the Sarakâr, to provide for the offerings and lights of the temple and for the support of the Brahmans. A grant of a village and land rated at a śist of 60 Bahâdri varaha was accordingly made to him as an inâm.

The copy of the sanad was ordered to be entered in the Shirasṭedar's daftar, and the original given to Heche Timmaiya. In proof that it was genuine, it is said to be signed by the king's own hand śrî-Krishṇa, and to be sealed with an ink seal, bearing in Bâlaband characters the impression śrî-Châma-Râja-Vaḍer's son Krishṇa-Râja-Vaḍer.

Architecture.

Mention may be made of a few of the principal buildings of architectural interest in this District. The most ornamental was probably the Amṛitêśvara temple at Amṛitapura, near Tarikere, now almost completely in ruins. It was erected, as Tk 45 informs us, in 1196, by Amita, a minister and general under Ballâla II. The style is Châḷukya-Hoysaḷa, but the elaborate ornamentation of the outer walls and some features of the elevation were of peculiar design, as may be seen from the illustration in the frontispiece. To the south of the main temple and at right angles to the shrine was a separate temple of Sarasvati. On the north, more to the front of the main temple but at a distance from it and forming part of the enclosure wall, was a large manṭapa or pavilion for the dancing girls. The extensive grounds were enclosed by a stone wall, surmounted with the rounded Hindu parapets, but a distinctive feature was that each circle of the parapets was elaborately sculptured on the outer face with figures or scenes in relief. Few if any of these remain intact.

At Vastâra is an old temple of Padmâvati, which contains fine colossal figures of the Sapta Mâtrikâ, and also of a king and his minister seated opposite each other. Who they were is not known. Though the building is only of mud, the interior walls were plastered and decorated with floral and other patterns in colours. It must, when new, have presented the appearance of a rich painted chapel.

The ruined temples at Sosevûr or Angaḍi must also have been fine buildings. There is a well executed image of Kêśava still standing in one of the Hindu temples, and there are large figures of the Sapta Mâtrikâ at the Vasantamma temple. But the finest and oldest sculpture is in the Jain bastis, probably of the 11th century. In addition to the massive seated images of Jina, in one of the bastis is a striking female figure representing a yakshini. Above her head is a beautiful leafy canopy, and studded over the whole are minutely sculptured arboreal animals, such as birds, squirrels, tree-frogs, lizards, &c.

The temple of Vidyâśankara at S'ringêri is a well designed and effective building. The style resembles that of the temples at Vijayanagar, and may therefore be described as Dravidian. It belongs to the 14th century.

P. S. With reference to the note on p. 7, a farther publication by Dr. Fleet has since appeared in Ep. Ind., Vol. VI, Part II, which, though it bears on its face the date April 1900, was not published till the latter part of November. I have also separately received a corrected copy of his article from Dr. Fleet at the end of February 1901.

This contains "a revised table of the Western Gangas of Taḷakâḍ, including the necessary alterations up to date" (p. 57). The table is based on what Dr. Fleet considers "genuine" records, as distinguished from those he regards as "spurious," which, as readers of his papers are aware, means all the copper plate grants. To state this view is to show its improbability, while the voluminous explanations needed to support it do not betoken a strong case. When Dr. Fleet first adopted this opinion (Ind. Ant., VII, 33) he pinned his faith to the Lakshmêśvara inscription, stating (Kan. Dyn. 1st ed., 12) " there can be no doubt whatever that the date of the Lakshmêśvara stone-tablet inscription is the true one for the third generation from the founder of the dynasty." I showed long ago (Coorg Ins., Intro., pp. 5, 9) that it did not maintain his views, and indeed was opposed to them. This inscription he now abandons (pp. 80, 81), and his having for so long kept to an erroneous opinion regarding it does not inspire much confidence in his judgment relating to others. However, he now adheres to the Vallimalai inscription (Ep. Ind., Vol. IV, p. 140) as positively as he did before to that of the Lakshmêśvara stone, saying (p. 63) " the first four generations of the family are enumerated in the Vallimalai inscription." This (as various other inscriptions do) omits for some reason one step in the succession But eager to seize on whatever seems to accord with his views, he adopts this as the genuine order of succession. S'rîpurusha, whose date is fixed even according to his own calculations (see p. 7 above), is pushed forward some forty years in order to fill up the gap created by leaving out one step. But as Dr. Fleet insists upon stone inscriptions alone as worthy of credit, he can now be referred to the Siragunda stone (Cm. 50). This is sufficient evidence, without alluding to the references in the Lakshmêśvara stone, to show that he is not on the right tack He also proceeds on the assumption that Satyavâkya and Nîtimârgga were titles of alternate kings, and not held by the same person. But here again he is mistaken, as he himself in fact admits (p. 69, note 4). He also " unhesitatingly " identifies Eṟeyappa with a Nîtimârgga, and calls him Nîtimârgga-Eṟeyappa, citing the Kaṭṭemanuganahaḷḷi stone (Mg. 103) as his authority. But we there find Nîtimârgga was the Permmânaḍi or supreme ruler, while Eṟeyappa was a provincial ruler under him. Moreover, Permmânaḍi and Eṟeyappa are farther on mentioned separately, as together (oḍan iḍdu) making the grant. They cannot therefore be the same person. There seems no doubt (as I have shown above, p. 9) that Eṟeyappa was a younger brother of Satyavâkya, the son of Nîtimârgga.

The discrepancies now pointed out suffice to show that Dr. Fleet's table of the Gangas is in need of considerable revision still. His rejection of the early genealogy is opposed to the testimony of the Siragunda stone (Cm. 50) The doubt he expresses as to a Vijayâditya being the son of S'rîpurusha is refuted by the Asandi stone (Kl. 145). Having sacrificed the ancestors the Gangas claim, Dr. Fleet seems yet unwilling to leave them without ancestry. For this purpose he proposes (p 72) to father them with the Satyâśraya-Dhruvarâja-Indravarman of a Goa grant in which the latter appears as ruler in Rêvati-dvîpa of certain provinces on the Western coast under the Châḷukyas. There is nothing whatever to connect him with the Gangas, who are not even mentioned ; on the contrary, he is said to be "an ornament of the original great Bappûra-vaṃśa." But the name Indravarman occurs among the Gangas of Kalinga, and this is the sole reason, as far as I can see, for the conjecture. The name Satyâśraya is distinctively Châlukyan, so much so that Dr. Fleet at first suggested that Indravarman was a son of Mangalêśa. This he now cancels (note 2). To show some connection however with the Gangas of Mysore, he is driven in desperation to suggest (p. 72) that "very likely" Bappur was another name of Kolar! This is directly in the teeth of all the evidence. He also wishes to make out (p. 72) that the Gangas of Mysore did not belong to the main line, but were chiefs of Kongal-nâḍ. But unfortunately for him the Gangas of Kaḷinga distinctly claim their origin from Gangavâḍi, while the rulers of Kongal-nâḍ were Âḷvas.

It is only necessary further to notice certain of the remarks he has made on my reply in Vol. IV of this Series (Intro. pp. 6-8) to his strictures in Ep. Ind. III, 159 ff. And first with regard to the cursive form of kh, which he said (p. 162) was "a leading test in dealing with southern records" and could not have been used before 804. This view was shown to be erroneous, and Dr. Bühler's testimony to the same effect was referred to. In reply to this Dr. Fleet says (p. 79), "I concede that this instance, adduced by Mr. Rice, is to be referred to probably the sixth century A.D. But it has absolutely nothing to do with the matter that we have in hand. It is a Grantha character,—a character of an alphabet which, though derived from the same original stock with the alphabet of Western India, was developed on totally different lines and at a much earlier period .... (It) has absolutely nothing to do with the development of the alphabet of Western India." It will not fail to be noticed how the ground is here shifted from Southern to Western India. Whatever may be the case as regards the latter, it is manifest that Mysore was fully exposed to the Pallava influences which prevailed on its eastern side, not to mention those of the Mahâvalis or Bâṇas, which were perhaps earlier. We have the testimony of the Tâlgunda pillar[1] as to the attraction exerted by Kanchi as a great seat of learning in the South in the 5th century, which led Mayûraśarmmâ to go there from Banavâsi. In the 8th century, again, Akalanka went from Sravaṇa Beḷgoḷa in Mysore to the Buddhist college at Ponataga in the North Arcot District for study. It is unnecessary therefore to enlarge upon this. Even supposing that it were Grantha, moreover, the letter is undoubtedly the same, as Tamil has no aspirated letters.

Again, I am charged (p 76) with giving "garbled extracts" from his statements regarding the period at which he imagined the southern dynasties to be engaged in furbishing up their pedigrees. This is not the case. I am incapable of doing such a thing. Any one having the references by him can satisfy himself on this point that my quotations are verbatim et literatim. In each case the name of the particular grant was omitted, as only the dates were in question; and in order to complete the statement, I added that relating to the Pallavas from the parallel passage in Dr. Fleet's Dynasties of the Kanarese Districts. But I see that by a misprint the index figure to the note was put at the beginning of this phrase instead of at the end of it, thus making it appear as if the whole quotation was from the same place. This was misleading.

Paḍiyaṛa-Dôrapayya's senior queen, Pâmbabbe,—female disciple of Nâṇabbe-kanti, (daughter) of Abhinandi-paṇḍita-dêva, the disciple of Guṇachandra-bhaṭâra, the disciple of Châṇdrâyaṇa-bhaṭâra, the senior disciple of Dêvêndrà-siddhânta-bhaṭâra, chief of the Dêśiya-gaṇa of the Koṇḍakundânvaya,—having made her head bald,[1] performed penance for thirty years, and keeping the five vows, ascended to the highest state. Written by her son Vidi ....

When blessing her with great gifts, the ? sheath-bearer Immaḍi-Dhôra loved her, and her king was giving her priceless treasures ; while the earth honoured her as Bûtuga's elder sister, saying "Jîya, what are your commands ?"—she replied " All that I have received is truly renounced as if never received :"—who can compare with Pâmbabbe in devotion to penance ?

Obeisance to S'ambhu, beauteous with the châmara-like crescent moon kissing his lofty head, the foundation-pillar of the city of the three worlds.

Entitled to the five big drums, mahâ-maṇḍalêśvara, boon lord of Dvârâvati-pura, sun in the sky of the Yâdava-kula, head-jewel of good warriors, a cage of adamant to those who take refuge with him, an elephant to hostile kings, fierce in war, champion over the hill chiefs, capturer of Kongu Nangali Gangavâḍi Noṇambavâḍi Uchchangi Banavâse Hânungal and Haḷasige, (was) the strong-armed Vîra-Ganga-Hoysaḷa-Dêva : (his praise).

In the Chaturmmukha mountain to the east of Tuṛuganûr did the S'iva worshipper Râma see Râmêśa, and there set up his image. His son was Îśâna ....

For the god Râmêśvara a grant was made of certain lands (specified).

Whoso seizes on land given by himself or by another, is born a worm in ordure for sixty thousand years, The sun and moon, wind, air and sky, earth and water, the heart and Yama, day and night, morning and evening, and justice,—these know the deeds of a man. To the man who guards this will be long life and the wealth of success ; to the sinner who, instead of guarding, is angry with it, will be the infamy of slaying seven crores of chief munis, cows and followers of the vêda in Kurukshêtra and Vâraṇâśi. Thus do these letters engraved on stone proclaim in the world.

Praise of S'ambhu. Praises of Prabhâsa-Sômêśvara.

In the Yâdava-kula was a king named Sala, who, on the muni saying poy Sala, slew the tiger; and all his line thence acquired the name of Poysalas. [After him was Vinayâditya], whose son was Eṛeyaṅga He had three sons—Ballâḷa, Biṭṭi-Dêva and Udayâditya. Of these the middle one became the chief, the celebrated king Vishṇu. Having subdued the hill country, did he stop? Taḷavana, Kâñchipura, Koyatûr, Male-nâḍ, Tulu-nâḍ, Nîlagiri, Kôlâḷa, Koṅgu, Naṅgali, Uchchaṅgi, the Virâṭa king's city, Vallûr,—all these he seized with his strong arm as if in sport. His own country he gave to Brahmans and the temples, and ruled over the foreign countries he had won—Vishṇuvarddhana. The three oceans being his western, eastern and southern boundaries, he destroyed all the hostile kings and made the Perddore (or great river) his boundary on the north. His son (omitting laudations) was Nârasiṃha, whose wife was Êchala-Dêvi; and they had a son Ballâḷa-Dêva.

When (with usual titles) Hoysala Ballâḷa-Dêva, in the capital Dôrasamudra (on the date specified, 21st August 1173) was celebrating the festival of his coronation, he made, for the decorations of the god Saurâshṭra-Sômanâtha, a grant of Kuppehâḷa in Âsandi-nâḍ, free of all imposts, to continue as long as sun, moon and stars. (Boundaries of the village. Usual final verses.)

And Nâga-Dêva, son-in-law of Mâḷgi-Jîya, worshipper of the feet of the god Saurâshṭra-Sômanâtha, constructed a tank and made a grant of lands (specified) for the god Nandikêśvara.

Praise of S'ambhu, and of Kali-Sôyi-ballaha. His descent was as follows ;—The Yâdava named Sala became Hoysala from his slaying a tiger in the presence of Vâsantike of S'aśakapura on the holy muni saying hoy Sala. In that line arose Vinayâditya, whose son was Ereyanga, whose son was Vishnu, whose son was Nârasimha, whose son was Ballâla, whose son was Râya-Nârasimha, the setter up of Chôla-Râya, the day of judgment to Makara and other kings; the confiner within narrow limits of the Pândya empire. His son was vîra-Sômêśvara.

When (with usual titles) Hoysala vîra-Sômêśvara-Dêvarasa was in the residence of Kannânûr, ruling the kingdom in peace and wisdom :—

In his kingdom, reverenced by all the world, his heart rejoicing in the S'iva doctrine, far from pride, shone Kumâra-Dêva ; whose descent was as follows :—In the Balegâra-agrahâra, delighting in the Gangânvaya, purifier of the Vishnuvriddha-gôtra, was a Brahman named Mañchi-bhatta. His son was the S'iva-yôgi, Siddha-Kumâra-munîndra. Then there were Kumâra-Dêva's gurus, Ugra-Dêva and Nannega-Dêva. (Their praises)

Kumâra-Dêva erected in Hiriya-Dêvanûr a temple to Siddhêśvara (its praises). Having fixed on an auspicious time, he set up therein the god Siddhanâtha, and the râja-guru Chandramauli-Dêva with all the S'iva assembly having come there and performed all the appointed ceremonies, released for the god and for Kumâra-Dêva the vantha-dere (or tax). The Brahmans of Dêvanûr, known as Lakshmî-Nârâyana-pura, are the protectors of the work of merit for Siddhêśvara.

Praise of S'ambhu

In the celebrated Yâdava-vamśa was born a king named Sala, who, by slaying the tiger at the muni's exclamations of poy Sala, gained that as the name of his family. After several of these brave ones, with the tiger crest, had ruled the kingdom in Sosavûr, there arose (omitting laudations) Vinayâditya, whose son was Ereyanga, whose son was Vishṇu. As if to show that none of the Yâdavas that had been before, or that were to come, could compare with him, he overspread the earth with his valour,—vîra-Vishṇuvarddhana-Dêva. Tulu-nâḍ, Male-nâḍ, Konkaṇa, the two Kongas, Anga, the Pâṇḍya land, Siṃhala, Chôḷa's country, the Andhra territory, Kâñchi-pura, together with the Kuntala country, Tereyûr .... he made to submit to forced labour and ruled over them,—what kings were equal to him? Nangali, Kongu, Singamale, Râyapura, Talakâḍu, Roddam, the Chengiri abode, Kollagiri, Ballare, Vallûru, Chakragoṭṭa, Uchchangi, Virâṭa's city, Bankâpura, Banavâse, Kôvatûr (did he capture) with exceeding bravery. When (with usual titles) Hoysaḷa vîra-Ballâḷa-Dêva, putting down the evil and upholding the good in Gangavâḍi, Noṇambavâḍi, Banavâsi, Hanungal, and the capital of the two Six-hundreds, was in the residence of Lokkuguṇḍi, ruling the kingdom in peace and wisdom :—

A dweller at his lotus-feet, the great master of feudatories, the grinder of great feudatories, was Chaṭṭaya-Nâyaka of Nirugunda, (his praises). His descent was as follows :—The son of Barmma,—who, while the king Âhavamalla-Dêva was looking on in Kalyâṇa, fought in a great fight, and when, by his impetuosity, the dagger snapped, smote his opponent with his hand and caused the blood to run down his cheeks, and thus received the name of tala-prahâri,—was Gaṇḍama. He obtained from Âhavamalla the name upon name of tala-prahâri and doḍḍ-anka-baḍivan. To him and to Murddiyakka was born a son Âhavamalla. His wife was Honnavve, and they had a son Mâcha, to whom king Vishṇu, on his slaying Barmma, the son of Rêvi-Seṭṭi, in the camp, gave the name of sitagara-gaṇḍa. To him and Mâliyakka was born Malla. He slew Rêvuka, and captured two elephants in the fierce war with Changâḷva : and without hesitation charged on his horse, pierced Changâḷva's proud elephant, and captured his umbrella. His wife was Sômiyakka, and their eldest son was Âditya.

The great minister, sarvvâdhikâri, master of the robes, master of the company of the titled, was Amitayya-Daṇṇâyaka (his praises). His descent was from the fourth caste, in which was born Chetti-Seṭṭi, whose wife was Jakkavve, and their son was Hariyama-Seṭṭi. His wife was Suggavve, and they had four sons, Amṛita-chamûnâtha, Kallayya, Masaṇayya, and Basavayya. In Lokkuguṇḍi, which was his birth-place, Amṛita-daṇḍâdhîśa built a temple, made a large tank, established a satra, formed an agrahâra, and set up a water-shed.

His guru's descent was as follows :—Mêghachandra's disciple was Prabhâchandra-siddhânta-dêva. His son was Jinachandra, whose disciple was Nayakîrtti-paṇḍita-dêva, whose son was Chaṭṭiya Nêmaya Kereyaṇa.

The great minister Amitayya-Daṇṇâyaka, with his four brothers (named), set up the Yekkôṭi Jinâlaya in Okkalugere, and certain Nâyakas (named) and all the people and farmers being present, made for the eight kinds of ceremonies for the god S'ântinâtha, and for the food of the ascetics, a grant (details given) (on the date specified), washing the feet of Nayakîrtti-paṇḍita. (Usual final verses)

The opening portion corresponds generally with No. 36 above, except that vîra-Ballâḷa-Dêva was ruling the Gangavâḍi Ninety-six Thousand in the residence of Dorasamudra.

The worshipper of his feet, the great master of feudatories, the grinder of great feudatories, was Chaṭṭayya-Nâyaka of Nirugunda. (His praises and genealogy as in No. 32 and 36 above.) Chaṭṭa's wife was Chandavve, and they had a son Harihara, whose wife was Kâchavve. They also had a son-in-law, the feudatory Malla, who seized the top-knot of Pâṇḍya's goddess of valour, pulled it off and brought it to vîra-Ballâḷa-Dêva.

The descent of their guru was as follows :—Worshipper of the feet of the god Mudiniga-Lakshmaṇêśvara was Siṅgarâsi-paṇḍita ; his son was Ballarâsi ; his son was Mâdhava-Jîya, whose younger brother was Chaṭṭa-Jîya.

Chaṇḍavve-Nâyakiti, with her son-in-law Mallaya-Nâyaka and her daughter Kâchavve-Nâyakiti, in memory of the death of her husband Chaṭṭaya-Nâyaka, erected a S'iva temple in Okkalagere, and made a grant for the service and offerings, and for the food of the ascetics.

Certain other grants, by individuals, for the same.

Corresponds with No. 37 above, and carries on the genealogy of the Chaṭṭa family to a great length.

Chandala-dêvi's daughters were Dêmale and Kâchale. Praises of Nêmaṇayya, who, by his wife Pôchale, had a son Kereyaṇa. His wife was Arasiyakka, and they had a son Kereyayya, whose younger brothers were Ajjuṇayya, Bemmabôka, and Nêmaṇa. The latter had a son Dêvaṇa, whose wife was Bammale. Dêvaṇa's younger brothers were Kerega, Chaṭṭaṇa and Bammaṇa.

Descent of their gurus, as in No. 37 above.

The Heggaḍe Dêvaṇṇa and Kereyaṇṇa, in memory of the death of their governor Chaṭṭaya-Nâyaka, set up a liṅga and, united with Chandavve-Nâyakiti and a number of others (named), made a grant for the decorations and offerings of that god Vîra-Chaṭṭêśvara, and for the food of the ascetics, (on the date specified), washing the feet of Balla-Jîya.

Praise of S'ambhu.

In the celebrated Yâdava-vamśa was born the king Sala, who, by slaying the tiger at the muni's exclamation poy Sala, acquired the name Poysala as a family name. When many others of these brave ones distinguished by the tiger crest had ruled the kingdom in Sosavûr, there was born Vinayâditya. His son was Ereyanga, whose son was the king Vishnu. Tulu-nâd, Male-nâd, Konkana, the two Kongus, Anga, the Pândya territory, Simhala, Chôla's country, the Ândhra district, Kâñchi-pura, together with the Kuntala country, he raised tribute from and compelled to render forced labour, thus did the king Vishnu rule, what kings can compare with him ? (His praises). His wife was Lakshmi-Dêvi, and they had a son Narasimha-Dêva. (His praises). The Maleyâlas, Kongu, the Vanga king, the Tuluvas, the Pândya, Paundra and Andhra kings, the Chôlas and Lâlas, ... the Yavanas and Sakas, the kings of Simhala and the seven islands in the middle of the sea, trembled before him, what others were so bold that they could withstand Nârasimha?

When (with usual titles) the mighty Hoysala Nârasimha-Dêva, putting down the evil and upholding the good in the land bounded by Hima and Sêtu, was ruling the kingdom in peace and wisdom :—

A dweller at his lotus-feet, was Nâka, sarvvâdhikâri and chief minister in king Nârasimha's house. His descent (given at great length) was as follows :—Devoted to the Vêdas was the Brahman Gôvinda, whose son was Nâga-Rudra. The latter's younger brother was Maddimayya or Maddi-Râja whose wife was Mâkâmbike. They had four sons—Gôvinda, Nâkarasa, Kâlidâsa and Bûcha. Of those four, Nâka was celebrated (his praises). His wives were, the junior, Boppiyakka, and the senior, Dêvaki, by whom he had a son Bûchi. To secure his fame by works of merit, Nâki, having gained permission from his ruler, established this Brahmasamudra for twelve Brahmans, wherein might be continually heard the sound of the Vêda recited by those Brahmans, and erected therein a S'iva temple. And (on the date specified) he made a grant for the temple of certain lands (specified), and washing the feet of Trilôchanâchâryya, the śrî-karana heggade Nâkimayya made over to him that temple of the god Nâkêśvara. Praise of the Jina śâsana.

Various titles and epithets of Vishṇuvarddhana. He seized the central ornament of the neckace of Mâlava, swollen with pride ; terrifying Chakrakûṭa, he pursued and captured Sômêśvara's elephants ; and then did he stop ?—pursuing after Adiga, who hesitated, thinking "He will not do what he says"—he captured his country and his (capital) Taḷavana-pura, the abode of the goddess of victory. The lion of the Hoysa ḷa king's valour, having sported in plunder at Talakâḍ, attacked the lofty elephant Uchchaṅgi, calmly marched by Banavâse, with daring seized Beḷvala, and sprang forward with joy to the Perddore unshaken, planting his foot on Hânuṅgal, thus striking fear into the hostile kings.

When, with such astounding valour, the strong-armed Vîra-Gaṅga Tribhuvana-malla Hoysaḷa Vishṇuvarddhana-Dêva, putting down the evil and upholding the good in all the countries beginning from Kañchi as far as the Herddore, including Koṅgu, Naṅgali, Gaṅgavâḍi, Noṇambavâḍi, Banavâse, Hânuṅgal, Halasige and Beḷvala,—was in the capital Dôrasamudra, ruling the kingdom in peace and wisdom :—

A dweller at his lotus-feet,—Sarasvati, so much of whose perfection in the fine arts was derived from the celebrated Ajitasêna-bhaṭṭâraka that you became a goddess : this exaltation is not yours, it is due to his greatness. Adding to the worth so acquired, by the glory of severe penance, called by all the world the gaṇadhara of the Kali-yuga, was Mallishêṇa-Maladhâri. Whose opinions would lead him to encounter the skillful oft-refuting logician, S'rîpâla-traividya, commentator on prose and poetry, rejoicing in unbroken victory ? At the courts of the Chôḷa and other kings had he defeated many and put them down, S'rîpâla-traividya-dêva, a thunderbolt to the mountains other creeds. A brilliant light in the sky of the Jina-dharmma, of good life, a friend to the blessed (and so on), was the son of Chandraprabha, the muninâtha Vâsupûjya, an ocean of the siddhânta.

A lay disciple of the Aruṅgalânvaya of the Dramila-saṅgha, which had come down increasing from Bhûtabali and Pushpadanta-bhaṭṭâraka, from Samantabhadra-svâmi and Akalaṅka-Dêva, from Vakragrîvâchâryya, from Vajranandi-bhaṭṭâraka, and Kanakasêna-Vâdiraja-Dêva, from Vijaya-bhaṭṭâraka, from Dayâpâla-bhaṭṭâraka, from Vâdirâja-Dêva, from Ajitasêna-bhaṭṭâraka, from Mallishêṇa-Maladhâri-svâmi, from S'rîpâla-traividya-dêva, from Vâsupûjya-siddhânta-dêva,—was Nârasiṅgha-Hoysaḷa-Gâvuṇḍa. (His praises). His wife was Keḷḷe-Gauṇḍi. Praise of Kadamba-Seṭṭi, whose wife was Chaṭṭiyakka. Praise of Nanni-Seṭṭi.

Hoysaḷa-Gavuṇḍa, son of Chaṭṭave-Gavuṇḍi, the daughter born to Lôka-Gâvuṇḍa and Mâkave-Gavuṇḍi, in memory of his mother's death, erected a basadi, and in the presence of all the residents and farmers of the town, divided certain land (specified) equally to the basadi and the temple, washing the feet of Ahôbala-Paṇḍita. And (on the date specified) endowed the basadi with land obtained from the hands of Nârasiṃha-Hoysaḷa-Dêva. (Usual final verses)

Praise of S'ambhu.

In the Yadu-vamsa arose (omitting laudations) Vinayâditya, whose wife was Keleyabbarasi. Their son was Ereyanga, whose wife was Êchala-Dêvi, who bore three sons,—Ballâla, Vishnu and Udayâditya. First of all taking into his arms the wealth of the Hoysana kingdom, which was his inheritance, he brought under his command all the points of the compass, and capturing Talakâdu, became the first to the Ganga kingdom,—the promoter of the Yadu-vamsa, the king Vishnu. The Tulu country, Chakragotta, Talavana-pura, Uchchangi, Kôlâla, the Seven Male, Kañchi, Kongu, the noisy Hadiyaghatta, Bayalnâd, Nîlâchala-durgga, the great Râyarâyapuri, Tereyûr, Kôyatûr, the Gondivâdi-sthala,—all these he took by a frown,—the mighty king Vishnu. By Lakshmâmbike he had a son Nârasimha, whose wife was Êchale, and their son was vîra-Ballâla-Dêva, a lion to the elephant Pândya.

When the refuge of all worlds, favourite of earth and fortune, the mahârâjâdhirâja paramêsvara parama-bhattâraka, sun in the sky of the Yâdava-kula, perfect head-jewel, râja of the Male râjas, champion over the hill-chiefs, fierce in war, unassisted brave, Sanivâra-siddhi, giridurgga-malla, in activity a Râma, self-contained hero, smiter on the cheek of Bhillama's army, driver off of Jaita-râhuta, hunter of the lines of chiefs, receiver of a boon from the goddess Vâsantikâ, the Yâdava-Nârâyana, the pratâpa-chakravartti Hoysana vîra-Ballâla-Dêva, was in the residence of Halla-ûr, ruling the kingdom of the earth in peace and wisdom :—

A dweller at his lotus-feet, the great minister, great master of the robes, chief favourite, was Kumâra-Paṇḍitayya-Daṇṇâyaka. A dweller at whose lotus-feet, Hodeya-Biṭṭayya, having constructed a tank in Biṭṭayyanahaḷḷi of the Kaḷikaṭṭe-sthaḷa, set up the god Sômanâtha, washing the feet of Chika-Jîya. And the Râya, Noṇabeya-Nâyaka, with his younger brothers and all the subjects and farmers of the Chaḷukiya-viti, made a grant of land (specified) for the decorations, festivals and offerings of that Mâchêśvara. (Usual final phrases).

The beginning corresponds with that of No. 124 above. To Nârasiṃha-prabhu and to Bijjale-Râṇi was born Sôyi-Dêva. Born with rejoicing, he speedily subdued the Chôḷa king and the foremost leaders (pûrvva-râyaram) of the Pâṇḍya king, and calmly protected the earth with affection.

When (with usual titles, as well as) the uprooter of the Magara kingdom, the displacer of the Pâṇḍya kingdom, the establisher of the Chôḷa kingdom, the niśśaṅka-pratâpa-chakravartti Hoysaḷa-vîra-Nârasiṃha-Dêva, was in the residence of Dôrasamudra, ruling the kingdom in peace:—

A dweller at his lotus-feet, was the great feudatory Chikka-Noṇabeya-Nâyaka, whose greatness was as follows:—To the feudatory Mâcha and to Bommale and Châbale were born Noṇaba, Bomma and Chalukeya. Noṇaba's wife was Bommale, to whom was born Noṇaba, and also Baicha and Kêśava. When of these (with titles as in Nos. 104 and 111 above) Bommarasa-Noṇabeya-Nâyaka was ruling the kingdom in peace:—

A dweller at his lotus-feet, was the great head-merchant Noṇabi-S'eṭṭi (his descent and praises as in No. 124 above). In order to increase the fame of himself, his wife and sons, he set up a S'iva-liṅga in the name of his grandfather Mâchi-S'eṭṭi, and with the consent of the Râya-Nâyaka Noṇabeya-Nâyaka and his younger brothers (named), he set up that god Mâchêśvara (on the date specified) at the time of the moon's eclipse, in the agrahâra of Brahmalâpura, otherwise Hêraḍigaṭṭa, which he had established in order to bring fame to his mother Bommale-Nâyakiti. And for the decorations, festivals, offerings and temple repairs of that god, Chikka-Noṇabeya-Nâyaka and the other Nâyakas, with all the Brahmans, and all the chiefs, farmers and subjects of the Chalikeya-vitti, uniting with one consent with the holders of rent-free lands, made a grant (specified).

Whatever tax may be imposed on the temple of the god Mâchêśvara by the order of the king or the chief, or whatever loss or injustice may arise from lapse of time, the Brahmans will make it good and protect this gift. The tax on the maṭha is released. (Usual final phrases). The money for booths, and measures of oil, will belong to the god.

Praise of S'ambhu.

First taking into his arms the wealth of the Hoysaḷa kingdom, which was his inheritance, he brought under his command all the points of the compass, and capturing Talakâḍu, became the first to the Gaṅga kingdom,—the promoter of the Yadu-vaṃśa, the king Vishṇu. To Êchala-Dêvi and to king Narasiṃha was born the powerful Ballâḷa. Trampling on Chôḷa and Kaḷiṅga (or? Chôḷa-Kaḷiṅga), thrashing and slaying the Mâḷava army, harrassing the .... of Nêpâḷ, plucking up Pâṇḍya and attacking his rear-guard, the brave king Ballu (subdued) by his valour the mightiest who came against him in war, and nourished the growing vine of his fame in the world. Kêtala-Dêvi, your name being celebrated from Sêtu to Hima, can other shameful queens for a moment compare with you?—as if the stars are noticed after the moon has risen on the earth.

When (with usual titles) the niśśanka-pratâpa-chakravartti Hoysaḷa vîra-Ballâḷa-Dêva was in the residence of Hallavur, ruling the kingdom in peace and wisdom :—

A dweller at his lotus-feet was the great minister Râmayya-Daṇṇâyaka, the generous Kêśava-Dêva, whose greatness was as follows :—(Omitting laudations) the son of Mâdi-Gavuṇḍa and Mâkka-Gavuḍi was Honna-Gavuṇḍa, whose wife was Kâḷa-Gauḍi, and their sons were Honna-Gauḍa and Mâdi-Gavuṇḍa. Masaṇa-Gavuṇḍa's son was Honneya-Nâyka, whose wife was Kâla-Gauṇḍi. Mâdi-Gavuṇḍa erected a S'iva temple. And various Gauṇḍas (ten named) of Mattiyahaḷḷi in the Chaḷikeya-vṛitti being present, (on the date specified) they made a grant of lands (specified) for the offerings and perpetual lamp of the god Kalêśvara, washing the feet of Tippa-Jîya and Mâda-Jîya.

The temple was built by Balôja.

Invocation of Prasanna-Mâdhava.

Usual account of the origin of the Yâdava-vaṃśa and rise of the Hoysalas. Sala, at the bidding of the muni, who said hoy Sala, slew the tiger in S'aśapura and acquired the name of Hoysala. Then there arose Vinayâditya, whose son was Eṛeyaṅga. His wife was Êchala-Dêvi and their son was Vishṇu, whose crowned queen was Lakmâ-Dêvi, and she bore a son Nṛisiṃha. His wife was Êchala-Dêvi, and they had a son Ballâḷa. (His praises, among which are) a thunderbolt to the mountains the Chôḷa, Varâḷa, Lâḷa and Magadha kings, to Vaṅga, Kaḷiṅga, Koṅga, Nêpâḷa, Turushka and Sêvuṇa. His wife was Baichala-Dêvi (her praises).

When the refuge of all worlds, favourite of earth and fortune, the mahârâjâdhirâja paramêśvara parama-bhaṭṭâraka, (with other usual titles), the niśśanka-pratâpa Hoysala chakravartti (or emperor) of the south, vîra-Ballâḷa-Dêva, was in residence in his own capital Dôrasamudra, ruling the kingdom in peace and wisdom :—

Considered as dwelling at his lotus-feet, the sons of Chaḷkeya-Nâyaka, Nandi-Gôkula-Nârâyaṇas, (with other epithets), were the feudatories Noṇamba and Mâchiga (Then follow names of four Gâvuṇḍas and their fathers).

These and other nâḷ-prabhus were governing the Magare Three-hundred, in the Chaḷki-vṛitti of which was the celebrated great agrahâra Prasanna-Mâdhavapura, which is Kêsiyahaḷḷi (its praises). In it were born to Châmavve and Nâga-Dêva three sons, Nâga-Dêva, Sômanâtha and Malla, of the Gautama-gôtra. With these there were forty-two who made Mâdhavapura distinguished, and Mâdiyakka's daughter Baicha-Dêvi erected in it the temple of Prasanna-Mâdhava, named after her mother.

(On the date specified) Baichala-mahâdêvi, the wife of the mighty Hoysaṇa emperor of the south, vîra-Ballâḷa-Dêva, having erected the temple (as above), made a grant of lands (specified) for it, and obtaining a grant for them on a copper śâsana signed by the king's own hand, made it over to the forty-two.

(Usual final verses). Nârâyaṇa is (my) refuge.

Praise at great length of the god Sômanâtha-Paramêsvara. May he ever protect Balla-Dêva.

In the Yâdava-kula there was Saḷa, to whom the muni, on seeing a tiger spring out, said poy Saḷa, on which he slew it and thus acquired the name of Poysaḷa. In his line arose Vinayâditya, praised by all the world. His son was Ereyanga, whose fame extended from Hima to Sêtu. Of the three kings who were his sons, Vishṇu, the middle one, became the chief. Having subdued Maleya, did he stop ? Taḷavana, Kañchi-pura, Koyyatûr, Male-nâḍ, Tuḷa-nâḍ, Nîlagiri, Kôḷâla, Kongu, Nangali, Uchchangi, Virâṭa-Râja's city, Vallûr,—all these did he subdue by his power as if in sport, who could compare with the king Vishṇu ? The western, eastern and southern boundaries of the lands he ruled being the three oceans, he made the Perddore his boundary on the north, destroying all his enemies. His son was Nârasimha, a lion in war, whose wife was Êchala-Dêvi, and they had a son Ballâḷa Dêva.

When (with usual titles) the niśśanka-pratâpa Hoysaṇa vîra-Ballâḷa-Dêva was in the capital Dôrasamudra (on the date specified, 22nd of July 1173) celebrating the festival of his assuming the crown, and ruling the kingdom :—

Praise of Chaṭṭaya-Nâyaka of Nirggunda, who was the ruler of Hiriyûr (its praises). Sanka-Gavuḍa, the great nâḷ-prabhu of that Hiriyûr, made a grant of land (specified) for the god Sômanâtha or Sômaśiva, washing the feet of Hamparâsi-guru.

Praise of Boppa-Gavuḍa, son of Sanka-Gavuḍa. That Boppa-Gavuḍa, repairing the temple of the god Sômanâtha, obtained from the hands of the pratâpa-chakravartti vîra-Ballâḷa-Dêva a grant of Âladahaḷḷi, to provide for the decorations of the god. (Usual final verses).

Praise of S'ambhu. Obeisance to Viriñchi, Nârâyaṇa, S'aṅkara.

In the Yâdava-kula was born Saḷa, who, at the yatipati's exclamation of poy Sala, slew the tiger and thus became Poysaḷa. First of all taking into his arms the wealth of the Hoysaḷa kingdom which was his inheritance, he subdued all the points of the compass, and taking Taḷakâḍu, became the first to the Gaṅga kingdom,—the promoter of the Yadu-vaṃśa, the king Vishṇu. His son, born from his wife Lakshmî, was Narasiṃha. To him and the senior queen, his crowned consort, was born Ballâḷa-Dêva.

When (with usual titles) Tribhuvana-Malla, the pratâpa-chakravartti Hoysaḷa-vîra-Ballâḷa-Dêva was ruling in peace and wisdom the Seven-and-a-half-Lakh kingdom of the earth under the shade of his sole umbrella, (to continue) as long as sun, moon and stars;—

A dweller at his lotus-feet, known in the time of Eṟeyaṅgarasa as subjecter by force of enemies who would not submit, and Death to proud enemies who withstood him, was Vaijarasa. To describe his bravery:—When ? Aggada-râya ran off into the Bêḍarabaṅki forest, in front of Hemmâḍi, with a single arrow from his bow he pierced his skull and made it go on without stopping and hit the eye of a kite flying in the sky, to the great astonishment of all beholders,—the celebrated king Vaija. For this he received from king Hemmâḍi the title of kaṇṇambu. (eye arrow).

To S'rînâtha-bhûpâla and his wife Nâgaḷe was born Vaija-bhûpâlaka. And to Vaija-maṇḍalika and his wife Vaijala-Dêvi, in response to their daily prayer to their goddess Padumâvati, she bestowed on them the boon of a son,—Barmma-bhûpa. To describe his bravery :—As to his family, an ornament of the Gaṅga-vaṃsa (&c.), in firm conversation having the power of ? the fifty-two, was the king Barmma. (Further praises, among which he is called the Gaṅga-Râghava). To the famous Bamma-bhûpa and Gaṅga-mâdêvi was born a son Narasiṃha (his praises).

When, famed throughout all the world, offspring of the Gaṅga line, Koṅguḷivarmma dharmma-mahârâjâdhirâja, boon lord of Kôḷâla-pura, pratâpa-Mâhêsvara, lord of Nandagiri, (with many other epithets, see No. 156, including) receiver of a boon from the goddess Padmâvati, with these and many other names and titles, the mahâ-maṇḍaḷka Nârasiṃha-Dêvarasa was in the residence of Âsandi, ruling the kingdom of the world in peace and wisdom :—(On the date specified) he made a grant of land (specified) to provide for the offerings to Sûryya-dêva (the Sun-god) of ...... haḷḷi, washing the feet of Mallikârjjuna-guru, son of Bappa-Jîya.

And after that, Vîra-Ballaḷa Dêva's senior jewel treasurer, Siṅgayya, made a grant of land (specified) for the same god.

And after that, Âdi-S'eṭṭi, son of Mahâdêva-S'eṭṭi of Âsandi, made a grant (specified).

And after that, the treasurer Siṅgayya's son, S'aṅkara-Daṇṇâyaka, and a number of others (named), the chiefs and farmers being present, repaired the temple of that Sûryya-dêva, and to provide for all decorations, made a grant of Siḍilanahaḷḷi (details specified), washing the feet of Mallikârjjuna-guru.

Obeisance to S'aṅkara.

What were the abilities of Nṛiga, Nahusha and other kings of the former age compared with the ability of Vinayâditya in the Kali age ? All the sons of the hill kings, rubbing their heads, rose up and cast themselves at his lotus-feet. On the heads of those who would not submit, he laid his sword ; on the heads of those who yielded, he laid his hand. To Vinayâditya and to Kelayabarasi was born Eṛeyaṅga (his praises). The flowers offered at the feet of S'rîvallabha he ever wore on his head ; from his breast the eyes of S'rî shone upon his adamantine shoulders ; the sound of his great drums, when he marched forth for war, roused up the lions sleeping in the chains of mountains that bear up the earth. To him and to Êchala-Dêvi were born three sons,—Ballâḷa, Vishṇu and Udayâditya. First taking into his arms the wealth of the Hoysaḷa kingdom which was his inheritance, as his power increased he brought all the points of the compass under his orders, and seizing Talakâḍ, became the first to the Gaṅga kingdom,—the promoter of the Yadu-vaṃsa, the king Vishṇu.

Obeisance to S'iva. Confirmed.[1] Obeisance ever to the triad Hara, Nârâyaṇa and Brahma ; shining in happiness with the trident, the discus, and the rosary (respectively) in the hand.

By—a collection of hundreds of pious great works of merit, of hereditary fame for great bravery and valour gained in war, protector and proclaimer of the excellent Brahman faith, kind to all goodness, like a moon shining on the waterlilies the minds of the twice-born, the learned and his friends,—the eldest son of Krishṇavarmma-dharmma-mahârâja, who was sovereign of the southern region adorned with his outspread umbrella, and performer of the horse-sacrifice,—of the Mânavya-gôtra and a Hâritiputra, versed in the views he had adopted on the sacred writings ; by the Kadamba Vishṇuvarmma-dharmma-mahârâja,—with the permission of his grandfather S'ântivara-varmma dharmma-mahârâja, who was master of the entire Karṇṇâṭa region of the earth, adorned by Vaijayanti, which was glorious with eighteen chieftains enriched with the swift spoils of war,—the third year (of his reign) being current, on the 5th (day) of the bright fortnight of the month Phâlguṇa, to (certain) Brahmans,—the Kurukutsas Bhavâryya, Kôlanâryya, S'ivâryya, Yajñâryya and S'arvâryya ; the Hârita Mèruśarmma ; ...... the Kâśyapas Bhavâryya, Harâryya and Haryâryya, favourites of their lord ; .... .. the Atrêya Lêvâryya ; the two Vâśishṭas Yuvâryya and Yuktyâryya ; the Vatsas Paṇḍâryya, Yajñâryya, Nâgâryya and Bhritâryya ; the two Kauśikas Bhavâryya and Sômâryya ; the Kauṇḍinya Boppaśarmma ; the Hârita Sômaśarmma ; the Paurukutsa Bhṛitâryya ; the Bhâradvâja Bhûtaśarmma :—to these and others (to the number of) eighty-five were given in shares, in the Sindhutbayâ-râshṭra, with the view of gaining without fail full and final emancipation in the next world, the Kataṭṭâka village ; also, bordered by the Nandapada road, from the bridge built over the Karṇṇêsaka river,.. . . , one hundred nivarttas. With pouring of water and gift (of a coin) the tract called Attemara-vishṭika having been given, this copper śâsana was granted.

Whoso through his covetousness, bewilderment or anger causes it to be ruined, will get the fruit of murdering Brahmans, women, cows, mother, father, priest, or brother of seducing the wife of his guru, or ruining one's family, with other such impious acts ; and will be guilty of the five great sins and doubly heinous crimes combined.

Whoso from attachment and faith maintains it will derive the benefit thereof.

Moreover it is said :—The earth has been enjoyed by Sagara and many other kings ; whosesoever was at any time the land, his was then the fruit. Whoso seizes on land bestowed by himself or by another will get hell for sixty thousand years.

Praise of S'ambhu. When Sala, an ornament of the Yadu-vamśa, was worshipping (the goddess) Vâsantike of S'aśakapura with sandal, flowers and incense, a tiger sprang out of the forest; on which the holy Jina muni gave him his fan (kuñcha), saying poy Saḷa (strike, Saḷa!), from which time forth that name of Poysaḷa was the designation of the Yadu kings. That Sala's eldest son was Vinayârkka, whose son (omitting laudations) was Eṛegaṅga, whose son was Vishṇu, whose son was Narasiṃha, whose son was Ballâḷa. His son, who on seeing the commanders of the army of the haughty Sêvuṇa king coming against him, being enraged, saying "I will show them the terror of my arm; bhai, bhai!" set the lusty elephant on which he was mounted towards them, and slew the undoubted heroes Vikramapâla and Pâvusa mad on war,—was Nṛisiṃha. H s son was Sôma, the deliverer of the Chôḷa kingdom.

When (with usual titles), the uprooter of the Magara kingdom, the establisher of the Chôḷa kingdom, the deliverer of the Pâṇḍya kingdom, the niśśaṅka-pratâpa-chakravartti Hoysaḷa vîra-Sômêśvara Dêvarasa was in the residence of Kaṇṇanûr, ruling the kingdom in peace and wisdom:—

A dweller at his lotus-feet, was Beṭṭarasa-Daṇṇâyaka, whose descent was as follows:—a chief minister to king Vishṇu, the foremost among the Yâdavas, was S'rîdhara-daṇḍanâtha. His sons were Malyaṇa, Dâma-rathini and Kêśi-Râja. Among them, to Malla-rathini were born Beṭṭa-chamûpa and Kêśi-Râja-daṇḍâdhîśa (his praises). To Kêśava-chamûpati and his wife Padme were born Balla-chamûpati, mantri-Mâdhava, and Beṭṭa-chamûvara.

Among them, distinguished by many heroic qualities, Beṭṭarasa-Daṇṇâyaka, in order that he might obtain all prosperity, (on the date specified) in the presence of all the Brahmans of Pratâpapura, which is Ammaḷe, of the paṭṭaṇa-sâmi Sire-Padmaṇṇa and all the citizens,—deposited ten gadyâṇa and from the land paying fixed rent belonging to the village headman Mâchayya (and a number of others named) of Ammaḷe, appointed a rent-free estate for the temple endowments of that village, (namely) the gods of the five maṭhas (12 named), the two basadis, and all the temples in Balâri; the people of Ammaḷe agreeing that it should be free from all stoppages or releases, justice or injustice, whatever might come.

The poet Chêrey-Allâḷa-budha, a Dâmôdara to poetry, composed this with reverence; who will find fault with the work of poets?

Further praises of the Hoysaḷa kings, and of Beṭṭarasa and his brothers.

Usual account, in Sanskrit verse, of the rise of the Yadu-kula and the Hoysaḷas, to Ballâḷa.

Overthrown in battle, Pâṇḍya abandoned his unshaken hill, and forsaking his prancing horse and the throne on which he sat, took refuge in the middle of a forest, even there apprehensive of death and consumed by fear; thus does king Ballâḷa's astounding valour triumph. The king of birds (Garuḍa), who soars at will over the three worlds, is unable to fly over the highest peak of Pâṇḍya's splendid droog; yet from desire for that hill of Uchchaṅgi, he captured it without trouble, and tossed it about as if playing at aṇṇekal or tirekal[1];—how formidable was the king Ballâḷa.

When (with usual titl s) Hoysala vîra-Ballâḷa-Dêva, protecting with the might of his arm a dominion bounded east by the lower ghâṭ of Naṅgaḷi; south by Koṅgu, Chêram and Anamale; west

Obeisance to Bhava (S'iva), who was fixed in the heart of Mârkkaṇḍêya. He who is the remover of ignorance, his feet beautiful and beloved by all people, the celebrated one having the auspicious name of Kalaśa ; who bears the word Kamaṇḍalu (as his name) born from Surapa (Indra), says the world ; from him as its source, auspicious (bhadra) with high (tuṅga) waves washing away the fear of sin from karma, is the Bhadrâ, and superior (to all other rivers) in velocity and sound, joined to the feet of Rudra,[1] the Tuṅgabhadrâ ; brought by the prayer of the celebrated Tṛiṇabindu-muni, and its greatness extolled in the Skanda-purâṇa. Kalaśabhava (Agastya), Bharadvâja and other great munis daily performed penance on its banks, which are studded with numerous S'iva-liṅgas ;—renowned in the three worlds, how I can describe the Tuṅgabhadrâ ? Mârkkaṇḍêya and others were unable to set forth its greatness, how can those of inferior knowledge extol the pride of so great a river. In this kshêtra, by the favour of S'iva, the wise Mârkkaṇḍêya gained victory over Death. Vibhâṇḍaka's son, the muni Risyaśṛiṅga, here performed penance, whence a great mountain sprang up. Any one but once drinking its water has all his sins removed ; but having been praised by celebrated munis in the purâṇas, why now again praise anew the Tuṅgabhadrâ ? which, honoured by all the world, ever unites with the world-renowned Vêdâvatî.

In this pure kshêtra, surrounded by all the gods, dwells Mârkkaṇḍayêśa, the lord of Pârvvati. By Kumbhabhava (Agastya) was this liṅga set up, and daily worshipped by Mârkkaṇḍêya-muni, ever granting the desires of the faithful.

Celebrated for their firm faith in its lotus-feet, were the head-jewels of kings, the Ballâḷa line of the Yâdava-râjas, whose rise we will relate. Lord of S'aśaka-pura was the king named Sala, a lion in the forest the Yadu-kula, from whom the name of Hoysaḷa descended to all his line. In it (omitting laudations) arose Vinayâditya, whose son was Ereyaṅga. He had three sons,—Ballâḷa, Vishṇu, Udayâditya. Of these three, Vishṇu became the chief. His son was Narasiṃha, whose wife was Êchala-Dêvi, and they had a son Ballâḷa.

When, (with usual titles), Hoysaḷa vîra-Ballâḷa-Dêva was in the residence of the capital Dôrasamudra, ruling the kingdom of the world :—(On the date specified) he granted for the service of the god Mârkkaṇḍêśvara of Khâṇḍeya, land yielding 50 gadyâṇa of fixed rent in the Khâṇḍeya agrahâra, and made it over to the S'iva-yôgi Mâdhava-Dêva of the . . . . agrahâra in Banavase-nâḍ. Also, for sandal, 1 gadyâṇa ; for cloths for the Brahmans, 2 gadyâṇa ; for illuminations on the S'ivarâtri, 1 gadyâṇa : altogether 54 gadyâṇa.

And heggaḍe Bijjaya of Ammali gave 8 gadyâṇa for a śatra. (Some other grants).

And the chief managers in Khâṇḍeya were Pârśva-Dêva, Vishṇu and Êcha-Râja (their praises).

[1] The Bhadrâ runs through a spot called Rudrapâda at Kalas'a.

Certain Hebbâruvas (named) and all the Brahmans presented oil for the lamps at the S'ivarâtri illuminations.

Resplendent is Mârkaṇḍeyêśvara, resplendent is the god Janârddana, resplendent is their śâsana as long as moon and stars endure. Surrounded by the ocean which contains the jewel island that is the couch of S'rîpati, is Jambû-dvîpa, in the middle of which ever shines Mêru, to the south of which is the Bhârata-vishaya, in which is the Kuntaḷa-vishaya, where shines the Gaṅgavâḍi-vishaya, fertile and filled with good people.

To describe the glorious descent of the rulers of that Gaṅgavâḍi:—(Here follows the usual account of the rise of the Yadu-vaṃśa and the Hoysaḷas, to Ballâḷa). When, (with usual titles), Hoysaḷa vîra-Ballâḷa-Dêva was in the residence of the capital Dôrasamudra, ruling the kingdom of the earth in peace and wisdom :—

A dweller at his lotus-feet, was the Heggaḍe of the jewel treasury, Kêśi-Râja, who was of the Kaśyapa-gôtra, the son of Mâchi-Râja and Nâgâmbe. In order to provide for the gods Mârkkaṇḍêśvara, Janârddana and Bikêśvara daily offerings of 3 balla, 2 perpetual lamps, 3 garlands for meal times, and for the tolasi altar he had erected on the bank of the Tuṅgabhadrâ, for the fireplace of the anusṭhâna maṭha, and for feeding six chief Brahmans,—Heggaḍe Kêśiyaṇṇa, brother-in-law of Mallayya Heggaḍe of the jewel treasury, together with all the chiefs and farmers of the Talige-nâḍ Thousand land, the Eḍavale Seventy, the Hoṟavale Thirty, the Voḷaguṇḍa Thirty and the Kadagula Thirty, (on the date specified), made a grant of the consecrated food, the fixed rent, the petty taxes, intestate property, and all the dues of Hirikere in Eḍavale.

To describe the greatness of that tîrtha :—To gain immortality even by bathing in the river of the gods (the Ganges) is difficult ; but by only a sip of water in the palm of the hand from this great river men may obtain immortality : what simile then can be found for the combination of all good fortune, the Tuṅgabhadrâ ? Praise of S'ambhu. Among the Poysalas, lords of Dvârâvatî, having the tiger crest, was born in S'aśapura the king Vinayâditya. (The following portion corresponds with Kaḍûr No 117 above, down to Vishṇu.) Chôḷa's ? scarecrow, Mâḷava's cut-throat, a Mâkâḷi in pursuing and eating up Lâḷa, a lusty elephant in trampling on Varâḷa, an arrow in the bowels of Khacha, a whip for the back of Nêpâḷa, even now is he approaching—such was the agitation that the king vîra-Vishṇu created in the territories of hostile kings. A thunderbolt to the mountains hostile kings, when king Vishṇu roaring rushes forth, flying panic-stricken with fright, saying 'here he comes, there he comes', the whole world seems filled with his form to the eyes of the kings,—what a manifest proof that all the world is Vishṇu-maya. His wife was Lakshmâ-Dêvi, to whom was born the king Narasiṃha. (His praise).[1] His son was the king Ballâḷa.

When (with usual titles) the pratâpa-chakravartti Hoysaḷa vîra-Ballâḷa-Dêva was in the residence of Dôrasamudra, ruling the kingdom in peace and wisdom :—

Dwellers at his lotus-feet,—all the Brahmans (with praises) of the immemorial agrahâra Lakshmîpura, which was Lokki, with certain others (named) of its hamlet Sâdarahaḷḷi, having (on the date specified) erected a temple and set up the god Brahmêśvara,—for the daily offerings, lights, incense, Chaitra purification, and temple repairs of that god, the farmers made a grant of land (here follow details).

After their death, certain others (named) put up a kaḷaśa on the temple and set up this śâsana. Written by Mallayya, son of Mâdimayya, treasurer of Lokki.

bers of the same body, the people in the three directions, south, west and north from the river Krishṇâ at Hirravale,[1] —the agents and ministers who have received consecration at Paruvata, the Âres, merchants and traders, farmers and Reḍḍi cultivators, the Kuñchigaru and the rest of the people, as well as those who travel (? as pilgrims) to Paruvata,—should pay their tithes and offerings to the Svâmi enthroned at the Gâḷipûje mountain : they need not pay to Paruvata. The suḍugâḍu-siddas and others (several castes named) in these three directions should take their tithes and offerings to the Svâmi of the Gâḷipûje throne, and there perform their devotions and illuminations. If in future we also accept offerings from these people, we are excommunicate from the throne of the Sun at S'rîsaila.

(And) the vîra-bhikshavati Udâna-svâmi honoured the svâmi of the Gâḷipûje throne with the following :—a palanquin with silver mountings, a pearl necklace, a golden umbrella, the double châmaras, a makara canopy, ... for the feet, a Mukkanna drum, a Basava drum, a Nandi flag, bhêri, dyenka, and the five kinds of drums. These have we honoured and granted.

If in future, throughout the S'âlivâhana country, we accept the tithes and offerings written in the said copper deed of gift, we are excommunicate from our throne of the Sun and are traitors to the god Mallikârjuna. Other usual imprecations.

Witnesses,—the Trimûrtti, sun and moon, the eight regents of the cardinal points. Business witnesses,—Vîrapa-S'eṭṭi, son of Mallapa-Seṭṭi, of the Kannulla peṭṭa, Nañjappa-S'eṭṭi, Raḍḍi Mallapa.

Embraced by the arms of S'rî, may Hari ever grant abundant prosperity. May Kêśava protect you, in the lotus of whose navel is the world-creating Vidhi, on his breast S'rî and the kaustubha, in his hands the discus, lotus, club and conch-shell, manifesting his power. Whether holding the śankha or the kapâla, why make any difference? whether the chakra is in the hand or the tris'ûla, why distinguish between the weapons? in token of which they assume one form with two hearts, the joyful Hari and Hara,—may they ever protect the three worlds.

From the lotus navel of the lord of Lakshmî was born Sarôjâsana (Brahma); from him the great ṛishi Atri; from Atri's eyes, Chandra; from him, Budha; from him, Purûrava, Nahusha, Âyus and Yayâti; from him Yadu. From Yadu many Yâdavas were born. Victorious is Murâri (Kṛishṇa), able in bearing up the burden of the earth in his powerful arms; from him many illustrious kings arose, destroyers by their arms of powerful enemies. Among such kings at a certain time arose Sala, with rays of glory like the moon. An ornament of the Lunar line, his valour dried up the countries of his enemies. While he was protecting the earth, promoting merit, a head-jewel of Yâdava kings, a chintâmaṇi of good qualities, the smoke of the sacrifices offered by Brahmans ascended in such a cloud that the peacocks danced thinking it to be the rainy season. Once when he was passing through the forest, an ascetic, terrified at the appearance of a tiger, called out hoy Sala (strike, Sala); on which he at once at the muni's exclamation slew the tiger, and it became his crest, and Hoysaḷa his name. Verily thou shalt become a celebrated man, shalt be the founder of a family, and be as renowned as the enemy of Mura (Kṛishṇa):—thus by the power of his penance did he (the muni), proficient in the âgama, predict; from which he (Sala) gained double glory.

In his line arose Vinayâditya (his praises); from whom sprang Yareyaṅga (his praises). From him sprang Ballâḷa, Vishṇu and Udayâditya. Of these, Vishṇu, though the middle one, was by his qualities the chief. Born like another manifest Vishṇu, churning with the mountain of his sword the ocean of hostile kings, he gained horses, elephants and jewels, and the Lakshmî of victory was seized by him. On simply hearing in the distance the sound of his drums, of the hostile kings some swoon away, some desert their kingdoms, and not even looking at their wives and female apartments hasten to hide themselves anywhere ; who has not heard of his fame ? While he was protecting the earth with his powerful right arm, instability was only in the wind ; foul scum, in the water ; exaltation, in the mountains ; pride, in the elephant ; slipperiness, in women's hair ; hardness, in their breasts ;—nowhere else were they to be found.

Moreover, a tiger to the deer hostile kings, a spear to the breasts of hostile kings, a Mahêśvara to Madana the hostile kings, a cage of adamant to refugees, a fire of the last day to the Chôḷa race, poison to the Kêraḷa king, a Kâla-Bhairava to the Lâḷa country, born for the destruction of the Mâlava king, a wild fire to the forest the Koṅgâḷva king, a submarine fire to the ocean the Baṅgâḷa[1] king, dweller in S'aśakapura, adorned with all good qualities, obtainer of a boon from the goddess Vâsantikâ, delighting in good works, a bee at the lotus-feet of Mukunda, ever associating with the good, a Purandara in fame, a Mandara in courage, the vine of his fame spread to all the points of the compass, discerner of the inner thoughts of men, like the sun in the rays of his fame, like the moon in being a joy to the eyes of all people, like S'akra in destroying the forces of his enemy, like the wind in causing all to live, like Brahma in giving joy to hundreds of the learned (or gods), like Nârâyaṇa in displaying the qualities of the best men, like S'ankara in the promotion of merit, like Dhruva (the pole star) in maintaining an immovable state,—such was the boon lord of Dvârâvatî-pura, the Yâdava Nârâyaṇa, the capturer of Koṅgu Naṅgali Talakâḍu Gaṅgavâḍi Noḷambâvadi Banavâse Hânuṅgal and Huligere, the strong-armed Vîra-Gaṅga pratâpa-Hoysaḷa-Vishṇuvarddhana : to describe the greatness of whose fame ;—Pushing away Chôḷa, terrifying Khasa, being angry with the Mâlava king, making the Aṅga king tremble, swallowing up the Kaḷiṅga king, tormenting the Kêraḷa king,—in highest pride, the fame of king Vishṇu dances over all quarters.

Sheltered at his lotus feet, and thus filled with all wealth and greatness, victorious is Râyaṇa-daṇḍanâtha, whose fame was spread to all points of the compass. The greatness of his descent who is able to describe ? only he who could hold the ocean in the hollow of his hand. Just as from the lotus-navel of Purushôttama (Vishṇu) was born Vidhi (Brahma), and from him Kaśyapa, whose history and glorious qualities not even Îśa is able to praise ; so from him, even a greater race of chief Brahmans sprang, the head of which line was S'iva-Râja. From him, by Kâḷikâmba, was born Châvuṇḍa-Râja ; the waves of the milk ocean of whose fame so spread into all quarters, that the young chakôra birds ran to drink it, taking it for moonlight. From Châvuṇḍa-Râja, by Attikâmba, was born Kâlimayya. From him, by Châmâmbikâ, was born Râya. (His praises). Of the Kamme-kula and Kâsyapa-gôtra, to describe that Râyaṇa-daṇḍanâtha's elder brother and son :—Malli-Dêva and Vishṇu-daṇḍâdhipa (their praises).

Having such an elder brother and son, Râyaṇa-daṇḍanâtha, considering that dharmma is the source of seen and unseen happiness, made Morale in Dêvaḷige-nâḍ an agrahâra, and distributing it in shares among relatives and Brahmans, set up the god Kêśava. On which, Vishṇuvarddhana-Dêva coming to worship the god, sat down in the temple, and with pleasure made, for the decorations of the god, for singing, drums and dancing, and for temple repairs, a grant of lands (specified), and (on the date specified), pouring water with his own hands, made an offering of them in the presence of the feet of the god Kêśava. (Here follow the details of boundaries, and usual final verses).

From him, by Lakshmî, was born the king Nṛisimha (his praises). From him, by his crowned queen, was born the king vîra-Ballâḷa (his praises).

Dwellers at his lotus-feet, were the Bôvas (or foremen) of the big storehouse of Legaḷe. To describe their greatness :—Here follow verses in praise of Mâdi-Bôva, Ponneya-Nâyaka, Hariya-Bôva, and Chikka-Mâdi-Bôva.

Praise of S'ambhu. Obeisance to Kali-dêva and S'iva.

When, (with usual titles), Hoysala Nârasimha-Dêva was in the royal city Dôrasamudra, ruling the kingdom in peace and wisdom :—(on the date specified) he made a grant of the Muguli tank of that town for the worship, ceremonies and offerings of the god Kêśava of Vishnuvarddhana-Kêśava-pura, which is the Morale agrahâra in Dêvalige-nâd.

The grant formerly given to the Kali-dêva whose temple Râyana-dandanâtha had erected, being unjustly taken away, Kanakavve pointed out and recovered. And on the application of Kanakavve, the king Nrisimha granted the Adigere of that town for the offerings to Kali-dêva of Meda-Morale Praise of Râja-dandâdhinâtha. Her father the heggade Chaundamayya, her mother Chandramatî-dêvi, her son Kâva-Râja, her younger brother Malli-Dêva, the greatness of Kanakavve, the poet Kâlidâsa alone can fitly praise. May Kali-dêva of Morale look favourably on Kâma, and grant him health and happiness. The linga which was split in two, he wonderfully joined together, and established therein the Kali-dêva in Morale. Further praises of the king and the god.

[1] This is the last date that appears in the inscription, but it goes on with references to a later period, and the concluding portion is built into the ground.

Dêva and herself both being present, she bestowed on him in marriage Dêkave-daṇḍanâyakiti, together with the lordship of Sindageṟe in Âsandi-nâḍ, in the S'aka year 969, the year Sarvvajit, &c.

To that Poysaḷa king and to Keleyabbarasi was born Vîra-Gaṅga Eṟeyaṅga ; who was a third Mâruti, a fourth fierce flame, a fifth ocean, a sixth flower-arrow, a seventh universal emperor, an eighth mountain chain, a ninth lusty (regent) elephant, a tenth treasure,[1]—who is equal to praising Eṟeyaṅga-Dêva? To him and to Êchala-Dêvi were born Ballâḷa, Vishṇu and Udayâditya. However much they gave away, however many they slew, could others gain such renown for might and valour ? for in simple truth king Ballâḷa alone was generous, Ballu-Dêva alone a hero.

While in peace and wisdom he was in the residence of the capital city Beluhûr, ruling the kingdom,—to Châmave-daṇḍanâyakiti, (the wife) equal to a second Lakshmî, of Maṟiyâne-daṇḍanâyaka, were born these three—Padmala-Dêvi, Châvaḷa-Dêvi and Boppâ-Dêvi. These three virgins, growing up skilled in art, singing and dancing, considered worthy to be the queens of three separate royal capitals, Ballâḷa-Dêva wedded in one pavilion, in the S'aka year 1025, the year Svabhânu, &c ; and as wages for their wet nursing, again granted the lordship of Sindageṟe to Maṟiyâne-daṇḍanâyaka of the second generation.

(Here follow verses in praise of king Vishṇu, among which are)—Whatever lands had acquired a name, whatever countries were known by description, whatever kings were enumerated, he subdued in the sport of his victorious expeditions and brought all the world as far as the four oceans into subjection,—the ornament of the Kshatriya-kula, the king Vishṇu.

When (with a great number of titles and epithets, among which are) a skilful four-faced (Brahma) in creating anew a world adorned with temples of Vishṇu, Îśvara, Vijaya-Nârâyaṇa and other gods for mountains, and with Yâdava-jaladhi and Vishṇu-samudra for seas ; turning instantly to the Sun to purify himself when he but glanced at the beautiful women of the inner apartments of mighty kings whom he seized in battle ; rejoicing in the royal spoils of horses, elephants and all manner of jewels won by the might of his arm from the evil disposed Aśvapati, Gajapati and other kings ; a Bhairava of the last deluge to Chôḷa ; a lion to the elephant Kêraḷa ; a submarine fire to the ocean the Pâṇḍya-kula ; a wild fire to the leaves of the vine, the fame of Pallava ; a s'arabha to the lion Narasiṃhavarmmâ ; causing Kalapâla and other kings to fall (like winged white-ants) into the lamp of his unshaken valour ; having made proclamation of his victories over numerous kings by sound of drum in Kâñchî-pura ; having the wives of kings as servants in his house ; having squeezed Madhurâ-pura in the palm of his hand ; having destroyed Jananâtha-pura by his general ; with these and other names and titles, the capturer of Kañchi, Vikrama-Gaṅga Vishṇuvarddhana-Dêva, puting down the evil and upholding the good in the Gaṅgavâḍi Ninety-six Thousand, the Noḷambavâḍi Thirty-two Thousand, and the Banavase Twelve Thousand, was ruling the kingdom in peace and wisdom :—

Dwellers at his lotus-feet, renowned as holding the rank of great ministers of the whole kingdom : well born ; worshippers of the feet of Arhat-paramêśvara ; adorned with all good qualities ; their brows adorned with the half-moon diadem of mahâ prachaṇḍa-daṇḍanâtha, a rank descending from the line of the capturer of Kañchi, Vikrama-Gaṅga Vishṇuvarddhana-Dêva ; jewelled earrings to the Lakshmî the pure syâd-vâda ; rejoicing in daily anointings and festivals of the Jina pûjâ ; delighting in the four manner of gifts ; eyes to the doctrines of Akalaṅka ; bound to others by love and friendship ;—the great ministers Maṟiyâne-daṇḍanâyaka and Bharatêśvara-daṇḍanâyaka, without any disagreement between themselves, were embodiments of the same good qualities :—(Here follow verses in praise of them and their family ; which say that) Maṟiyâne was like the paṭṭod-âne (or state elephant) to Vishṇuvarddhana. His wife was Jakkanave. Bharata's wife was Hariyale, whose guru was Mâghanandi-brati, her father the Mârâya (i. e. the king)

[1] Each of these is one more than the recognized orthodox number.

Thus (with various epithets) Bharataṇa-daṇḍanâyaka, the daṇḍanâyaka who loved the capturer of Kañchi, Vishṇuvarddhana-Dêva's daughter, and his elder brother Maṛiyâna-daṇḍanâyaka, adorned their inherited rank of great ministers. (Further verses in their praise.)

Their descent was from the Bhâradvâja-gôtra, in which was Dâkarasa, who held the rank of lord in both the Gaṅga kingdom and the Poysaḷa kingdom. His wife was Êchiyakka, and they had two sons, Nâkaṇa and Maṛiyâne. Maṛiyâne made many conquests for the Hoysaḷa king. His two wives were ... . Of them, Dêkavve-daṇḍanâyakiti bore two sons, Mâchaṇṇa and Ḍâkarasa-Praise of Mâchaṇa........

Praise of the Jina śâsana.

When the refuge of all the world, favourite of earth and fortune, mahârâjâdhirâja paramêśvara parama-bhaṭṭâraka, ornament of the Satyâśraya-kula, glory of the Châḷukyas, śrîmat Tribhuvana-Malla-Dêva's victorious kingdom was growing on all sides, to continue as long as sun, moon and stars :—

And, a dweller at his lotus-feet, (with usual titles) śrîmat Tribhuvana-Malla, the capturer of Talakâḍu Koṅgu Naṅgali Gaṅgavâḍi Noḷambavâḍi Banavase Hânuṅgal and Halasige, the strong-armed Vîra-Gaṅga Hoysaḷa-Dêva, was in the residence of the capital Dôrasamudra, ruling the kingdom of the earth in peace and wisdom :—

Dwellers at his lotus-feet,—sons of Ḍâkarasa-daṇḍanâyaka the son of the great minister the senior Maṛiyâne-daṇḍanâyaka, and brothers-in-law of Gaṅgapayya-daṇḍanâyaka, Bâcharasa-daṇḍanâyaka and Sôvarasa-daṇḍanâyaka,—the great minister, senior treasurer, Maṛiyâne-daṇḍanâyaka and the great minister, the daṇḍanâyaka Bharatamayya, (on the date specified), among the great gifts made with the tulâ-purusha, received from the hands of Vishṇuvarddhana-Hoysaḷa-Dêva certain lands (described) in Savagônahaḷḷi, for the basadi of Sindaṅgeṛe their dwelling place.

(Here follow a great number of skilfully composed verses in praise of Bharata ; among which are)—Jinapati being his god ; Vishṇu-nṛipâla his ruler ; the minister praised by all the world, Ḍâkarasa his son ; his wife, Duganabbe ; Mâṛiga, his elder brother ;—who in the world can describe the greatness of Bharata ? When the Kṛita-yuga comes again, in order that he might have seed from which to raise up the best men, has Bidi (Brahma) preserved Bharata-Râja-daṇḍâdhipa.[1] All his wealth for Jina mandiras, all his love for the subjects, all his good will for the worship of Jina-râja, all his generosity for the company of the good, all his gifts of food for holy munîndras,—did he devote with great joy, the chamûpa Bharata. May your good fortune continue for a thousand years, chamû-prabhu Bharata.

The âcharyyas of the Mûla-saṅgha, Dêsiya-gaṇa, Postaka-gachcha and Koṇḍakundânvaya were Kuḷachandra-siddhânta-dêva ; his disciple (with praises) Mâghanandi-muni ; his disciple, Gaṇḍa-vimukta-bratîśa.

His son, inheriting the qualities of his father, possessing a character for learning and modesty, having obtained the honours of the kingdom only for the sake of the good government of his subjects, a touchstone for (testing) gold the learned and poets, skilled among those who expound and practise the science of politics, author of a treatise on the law of adoption (dattaka-sûtra), was s'riman Mâdhava-mahâdhirâjaḥ.

His son, uniting the qualities of his father and grandfather, having entered into war with many elephants (so that) his fame had tasted the waters of the four oceans, was śrîmad Harivarmma-mahâdhirâjaḥ.

His son, devoted to the worship of Brahmans, gurus and gods, praising the feet of Nârâyaṇa, was śrîman Vishṇugôpa-mahâdhirâjaḥ.

His son, whose head was purified by the pollen from the lotuses the feet of Tryambaka, having by personal strength and valour purchased his kingdom, daily eager to extricate the ox of merit from the thick mire of the Kali-yuga in which it had sunk, was śrîmân Mâdhava-mahâdhirâjaḥ.

His son, the beloved sister's son of Kṛishṇavarmma-mahâdhirâjaḥ,—who was the sun to the firmament of the auspicious Kadamba-kula,—his mind illumined with the increase of learning and modesty, of indomitable bravery, reckoned the first among the learned, was śrîman Koṅgaṇi-mahâdhirâjaḥ, named Avinîta.

His son, having the three powers of increase, who had brought anxiety to the face of Yama on account of the smallness of the residue left after the countless animals offered to him as a tribute (namely) the brave men consumed in the sacrifice of the face of the many wars waged for Andari, Âlattûr, Poruḷare, Peḷnagara and other places, author of a commentary on fifteen sarggas of the Kirâtârjjunîya,—was named Durvvinîta.

His son, the lotuses of whose feet were yellow with the swarming bees the lines of the crowns of savage kings rubbing against one another, was named Mushkara.

His son, of a pure wisdom acquired from his being the abode of fourteen branches of learning, distinguished for his skill among those who teach and practise the science of politics in all its branches, a rising sun in dispersing the clouds of darkness his enemies, was named S'rîvikrama.

His son, whose broad chest bore on itself the emblems of victory in the shining scars of wounds received in many battles inflicted by the tusks darting like lightning of huge elephants, possessed of the essence of all the sciences, having gained the three objects of worldly pursuit, of virtuous life and daily increasing glory, was named Bhûvikrama. Who, moreover, had conquered the Pallavêndra king in a terrible battle in (the place) named Viḷanda, trodden to powder by the feet of a hundred elephants maddened with the streams of blood issuing from the door of the breasts of the warriors forced open by all manner of weapons ; called the râja-S'rîvallabha, in the enjoyment of fortune obtained by victory in a hundred fights.

His younger brother, whose lotus feet were irradiated with the brilliance of the myriad jewel suns in the diadems of great kings bending down before him, the self-chosen lord of Lakshmî, was named Nava-Kâma, beloved by the good (śishṭa-priyaḥ), his fame in destroying the hosts of his enemies being the theme of song.

Of that Koṅgaṇi-mahârâja whose other name was S'ivamâra, the grandson, the groups of the toes of whose feet were illuminated with a rainbow light from the rays of the numerous jewels set in the bands of the crowns of prostrate kings ; who had fixed his faith on Nârâyaṇa ; raging with fury in the front of war horrid with the assault of heroes, horses, men and elephants ; terrific in anger, (or, Bhîmakôpaḥ) ; no less a captivator of the glances of young women the most skilled in the joyful art of love than a subduer of the world, laden with spoils of victory gained in many most arduous wars, a lion to the herd of elephants the hostile kings, a lion among kings (or, Râjakêsarî). Moreover, a sun greatly illumining the clear firmament of the Gaṅga race, a terror to hostile kings, a protector of the fortunate ways of good men, having obtained a good kingdom, a king of superior qualities among all kings, ever victorious is the râjâ S'rîpurusha, a head-jewel among princes. To women a Kâma (Cupid) ; in the use of the bow, the son of Daśaratha (Râma) ; in valour, the son of Jamadagni (Paraśu Râma) ; in great wealth, Balâri (Indra) ; in great glory, Ravi (the sun) ; in government by himself, Dhanêśa (Kubêra) ; of a mighty and splendid energy ; the benefactor of all things living, whom the poets daily praise as the creator Brahma, the master of his people :—

By him, the middle of whose palace echoed the sounds of the holy ceremonies which accompanied his daily rich gifts, whose first name was S'rîpurusha, by Pṛithivi-Koṅguṇi-mahârâjaḥ,—seventy two beyond six hundred S'aka years having passed, (and) the twenty-fifth year of his increasing and glorious reign being current,—residing in the Maṇṇe village, in his victorious camp,– on the tenth (day) of the bright fortnight of Vaiśâkha, under the constellation Uttarâ-Phalgunî, on Monday, at the entry of the sun into the sign Vṛishabha (Taurus)—

To S'iva-śarmmâ, Dêva-śarmmâ, Ajja-śarmmâ and Mâdhava-śarmmâ of the Aṅgîrasa-gôtra ; to S'rîdhara and Mâdhava of the Vâsishṭha-gôtra ; to Sôma-śarmmâ of the Kâśyapa-gôtra ; to Kumâra-śarmmâ of the Bhârâdvâja-gôtra :—to these before named and others, one hundred and twenty Brahmans, skilled in all learning, versed in the vêda and vêdâṅga, acquainted with the dharmma-śâstra and samaya,—

In the Sindâ-vishaya, in the western portion of the Maṇale Government (âḷke) Three-hundred, on the east bank of the Peṇṇe river,—daily protected by the officers of Koṅgaṇi-mahârâja, to ward off the troubles (or attacks) of Mûrllappa (or Mûrbbappa)-Râja,—up to the boundary formed by the outposts of the cavalry (lit : the tracks of the horse), the village named Bellûr, with freedom from all (taxes), was given, with pouring of water.

Witnesses of the gift :—the existing officials of the Ninety-six Thousand country.

Moreover,—The troubler of the bounty bestowed by the Mahârâja, may he go to ruin, with his sons, cattle and relations. Whoso there may be, whether of our race or another's, may he preserve this as effectually as if his own gift. Whoso through avarice, ignorance, carelessness, or enmity seizes upon this, will incur the guilt of the five great sins and ruin all his line.

Moreover there are the ślôkas uttered by Manu :—

To make a gift oneself is easy, to protect another's difficult : but of giving or protecting, protecting another's gift is more meritorious than giving. Whoso takes away land given by himself or by another, is born a worm in ordure for sixty thousand years. Whoso unjustly takes away land or causes it to be taken away, both he who takes it and he who causes it to be taken will be burnt up, to the seventh generation. The seizer on land and he who causes it to be seized, are born of weak mind and dark understanding, as brute beasts, subject to the nets of Varuṇa. Call not poison, poison ; a Brahman's property is the true poison : for poison kills a single person, but a Brahman's property (if seized upon, kills) sons and grandsons. Enjoyment of a Brahman's property through desire burns up to the seventh generation : but enjoyment of it by force (burns up) ten former and ten coming generations. He who receives land and he who bestows it, they have both performed works of merit and will dwell for ever in svargga. By many kings has the earth been enjoyed, Sagara and others ; whosesoever at any time is the earth, his is then the reward.

By Viśvakarmmâchâryya, skilled in all the arts, including painting, was this ṣ'âsana written. Four kaṇḍuga of rice (land) and two of grain land were given (to him).

Sister's son of king Vinayâditya of the Dattâḷvara-vamśa, was Mâra, the son of Mayûravarmmâ. A sun to the lotus the celebrated S'ântara-kuḷa, a large garland to the breast of the lady the Kâdamba city (pattana), a shining royal swan to both banks of the Tungâ river, his fame spread to the points of the compass,—thus does Mâra shine. The fishes its eyes, the ruddy geese its breasts, the lotuses its face, the bees its curls, the long waves its arms, the sport of beautiful swans its pastime,—thus does the meritorious stream of the Tungâ flow on. The famous Kuntala country, which is Mâra's mistress, has the Sahya mountains for her breasts, adorned with the shining garland the Tungâ, on which are the Sphaṭika and other tîrthas, which take away the sins of the people of the world.

Obeisance to Gaṇâdhipati. Invocation of the Boar, in whose tight embrace the Earth ever rejoices.

There is—born along with the kaustubha, the kalpa-dru and kâmadhênu, the younger brother of Ramâ,—the lord of ambrosia (the Moon), sprung from the milk ocean. In that line arose the king Yadu. From whom was descended Vâsudêva (Krishṇa) who protected the earth. In his line was born the king Sangama ; whose sons were Harihara, Kampa, Bukka, Mârapa and Muddapa. Of these five, Bukka was the chief, like Arjuna the middle Pâṇḍava. As the point of his sword danced about, the Turushkas shrank up, the Konkaṇa S'ankapârya fled with haste from the field of battle, the Andhras sought the shelter of caves, the Gurjaras were enfeebled, the Kâmbhôjas lost their courage, the Kaḷingas suffered defeat,—râjâdhirâja râja-paramêśvara, punisher of kings who break their word, terrifier of foreign kings, Suratrâṇa of Hindû râyas, he was in Vijayanagarî which he had made his capital. His queen was Gaurâmbikâ, and their son was Harihara, distinguished for his bestowal of the sixteen great gifts. After some years, to him and to Pampâ was born a son Bukka, who rejoiced the Brahmans with the sixteen great gifts.

(On the date specified) Bukka-Râya-mahârâya, on the bank of the Tungabhadrâ, in the presence of Virûpâksha, made to various Brahmans, a grant of Hâlumuttûr, otherwise called S'akaripura,

Having the supreme profound syâd-vâda as a fruit-bearing token, may it prevail, the doctrine of the lord of the three worlds, the Jina doctrine. Obeisance to Âdi Varâha; may he grant prosperity, in whose tight embrace the Earth ever rejoices. Obeisance to S'ambhu, his lofty head kissed by the châmara-like crescent-moon, the original foundation-pillar of the city of the three worlds.

(On the date specified), at the time when the cattle-rope to champions over hostile kings, Bommala-Dêvi's son Vîra-Bhairarasa-Voḍeyar was on the throne of Kârakaḷa, protecting the kingdom in peace and wisdom: And his younger sister Kâḷala-Dêvi was protecting the Bagunji-śîme in her own right:—She made a grant for the daily service of her family-god Pâriśva-Tîrthankara of Kallabas i, as follows;—When her daughter Râmâ-Dêvî died, she performed the following work of merit in her name:—To provide for 2 offerings of rice daily, 15 kha of bhatta, added to 40 kha previously received, both together 55 kha; and for 2 perpetual lamps, 24*ga* in money a year;—she made grants of lands (specified in detail), with the witness of the former ministers of the Bagunji-śîme, the Brahmans, the cultivators, the nâḍ .... and all others.

And the boatman Voḷiya having formerly made a grant (specified) for the amṛita-paḍi of the god of Kallabasti, she added to it (as specified), and obtaining the king's [approval], had the stone śâsana engraved. Usual final verses, among which is,—Whoso coming after, maintains a grant with desire, will time upon time gain the reward of sacrifice; of this there is no doubt.

Verses on the merit of grants of land. Praise of the Boar and of S'ambhu.

For the Tortoise set up in the year Vibhava &c, and the gods Umâ-Mahêśvara, mahâ-Gaṇapati, Durgamma, Gopâla-Krishna, and Sûrya-Nârâyaṇa, set up in the year Prajôtpati &c, in the stone temple which had been created,—the ruling mahârâja Kṛishṇa Râja-Voḍeyar issued an order for uttâr lands as follows:—

[1] Mahârâ arâja Krishna-Râja-Vadêr-Bahâdar, khalâdralâhu mulakuhu vo sultanatahu, caused to be written and sent to the Amildar named Managhûr Faiz of Ganjûr, for communication to the Seristedâr, to be carried out in a hobli of the Koppa tâlûq of the Maisûr Government, the following order :—

Timmaiya of Heche in the Bagunji-mâgani of the said tâlûq having come in to the presence, and stated that he had erected a stone temple in the Hedase village on the bank of the Sîtâ river in the Bagunji-mâgani, and set up therein the five gods (as above named), besides building houses for six Brahmans in the temple precincts,—and petitioned that a grant of uttâr lands might be made by the Government to provide for the offerings and lights of the temple and for the livelihood of the Brahmans,—having taken Heche Timmaiya's petition into consideration,—in order to provide for the worship, offerings, and lights for the said five gods, and the other purposes, we have on this date granted as inâm the Pâlyada-Maki village in the Bagunji-mâgani, rated at a sist of 36 Bahadri ga ; and besides this, waste land on the bank of the river near this village, on which the trees may be cut down and the land brought into cultivation, rated at a sist of 24 ga ; both together an uttâr of land rated at 60 Bahadri varaha. The grant is repeated three times in various ways.

The copy of this sanad will be entered in the Shirastedâr's daftar, and the original sanad given to Heche Timmaiya. Dated 17th November, San 1811 Isavi ; the year Prajôtpatti, Mârgaśira ba 1 : camp Bengalûru. Written by Surapa munaśi.

That this grant of an inâm of land and village rated at sixty Bahadri varaha, written in the king's own hand, may be carried out,—it is signed S'ri-Krishna, and sealed with an ink seal, bearing in Bâlaband letters the impression śrî-Châmu-Râja-Vadêr's son Krishna-Râja-Vadêr. It is entered in the five daftars of the revenue accountants. Usual final verse.

Obeisance to Ganâdhipati. Praise of S'ambhu.

(On the date specified) when the râjâdhirâja mahârâja râja-paramêśvara vîra-pratâpa Harihara-Râya-mahârâya was on the throne of Vidyânagara, protecting in righteousness the duties of all castes : And at the time when, by that mahârâya's order, Sâbanna-Vadêr was ruling the Âraga kingdom ;—to Râmachandra-Sarasvati-Vadêr of Pratâpa-Hariharapura-Mâdhava, that Sâbanna-Vadêr granted this lease on a stone śâsana, the details of which are as follows :—

When vîra-pratâpa Harihara-Râya-mahârâya granted to Râmachandra-Sarasvati-Vadêr, free of all imposts, Pratâpa-Hariharapura-Mâdhava named after himself, and favoured him with a copper śâsana,—in order that the rents of that Madharahalli and its associated places might not be mixed together, that mahârâya favoured me with an order to separate those belonging to the place that was granted. Acordingly, summoning the Âraga châvadi Sannanna-heggade and Vîra-heggade of Kelabhâgi Kârabayal in Sâtalikke-nâd belonging to the Âraga-venthe-kampana, I directed them to separate the rents of the place granted. And the separation they made was as follows:—(here come the details), altogether 53 honnu 3 pana from 12 villages. And according to the accounts of the nâd-śyânabhâva Sâyappa, 215 varaha 2 hana from the fixed rent was made over to Râmachandra-Vadêr, to continue as long as sun and moon, together with all the lands and rights (specified) pertaining to these villages, to be enjoyed free of all imposts by Râmachandra-Sarasvati-Vadêr and his disciples in regular succession.

This stone śâsana was written by Râmanna. Sâbanna's signature.

Obeisance to Gaṇâdhipati. May the lord of Vâṇî, friend of the lotus, and the gods beloved by Gaurî and S'achî, ever grant protection to all the worlds. May Hari protect you, dark as the waters of the ocean, whose arms hardened with the blows of the bow S'ârṅga are the four pillars of the maṇṭapa of the three worlds.

(On the date specified), when the mahârâjâdhirâja râja-paramêśvara, subduer of hostile kings, champion over kings who break their word, vîra-pratâpa Harihara-mahârâya was in Vijayânagari in the presence of the god Virûpâksha, protecting the duties of the various castes, and ruling the empire in peace and wisdom :—And, at the time when, by that mahârâya's order, the Brahma-Kshatri, a son of Hêmâdri, an initiating priest for all gifts, a sun to the lotus the line of Sankapa and Râyapa, son of a chief Brahman minister, proficient in learning, a royal swan in the lotus pond of the learned, a moon to the chakôras poets, spring to the jasmin his mother's family, a moon to the ocean of nectar his father's family, remover of the poverty of his servants, a flamingo at the lotus feet of Kriyâśakti-guru-munîśvara, devoted to the worship of Triyambaka, the son of Virupâmbikâ,—Viṭhaṇṇa-Voḍeyar was protecting the Âraga kingdom in righteousness;—all the cultivators of the three cities of all the nâḍs of the Eighteen kampaṇa of the Âraga-vênṭhe, agreeing among themselves, with one accord, made, to the recipient of the ascetic virtues (named), restrained by the six rites, follower of the Ruk-śâkhâ, Viṭhaṇṇa-Voḍeyar of the Bhâradvâja-gôtra, a grant of land as follows:—In the Maḍavaḍi-nâḍ of our Âraga-vênṭhe, 6 villages (named), together with their 5 hamlets (named) according to the sênabhôva's account, rated (details given) altogether at 150 honnu; which we (as aforesaid) have purchased at the price of the day, paying 500 varaha, and obtaining the consent of the people of Menasûr and Dânamûla; and have made over (with all details, as usual) to Viṭhaṇṇa-Voḍeyar, to be enjoyed as long as sun and moon endure. The grant is repeated three times. Written by the sênabhôva Maduvaṇṇa. Signatures.

May it be unobstructed. May he protect you, the supreme Boar, on the tip of whose tusk the Earth acquired glory, resembling a bee on the white kêtakî blossom. May he protect the three worlds, the giver of supreme wealth, son of a god, the young Gaṇâdhirâja; the points of whose teeth look like the froth from the milk of Gauri's breast. May the Sun (Sûryya Nârâyaṇa) preserve the three worlds from calamities; whose rays in succession cause heat, rain and cold.

There is, truly great, the king Harihareśvara; the seat of whose lotus feet was surrounded with the crowns of kings. The glory of his lotus feet was irradiated with the lustre from the rows of gems set in the crowns of lines of kings, while with the qualities of Surabhi (the cow of plenty) Harihara protected the world, and his brilliant fame shone to the farthest limits of the ocean.

There were his two ministers, of good descent, worthy, renowned for their glory, named Sankapa and Râyapa, of the Bharadvâja-gôtra; whose gifts of food and gold are even now famous, being hymned in the three worlds as the removers of the great poverty of the Brahmans (bhûsura). Of those two, the minister Sankapa obtained unusual good fortune, his son being the great minister Bommaṇa; who, though the son of S'ankara (S'iva), was born from the womb of Lakshmî (otherwise, fortune); and though he was Mahâsêna (the destroyer of Târaka), was the cause of pleasure to Târaka (otherwise, to his protector). Faith in Sûryya Nârâyaṇa pervaded his thoughts, words and deeds; if not, how would he be able to burst through the disk of the sun (to go to the world of heroes)? From him (was born) the chief minister Viṭhṭhala, ever beloved, versed in the sciences and arts, like the chintâmaṇi which sprang from the milk ocean, or the jewel worthy to adorn the breast of Mâdhava (the kaustubha). Some yôgis took him for Krishṇa; certain learned men, for Râmachandra; some truthful ones, for Yudhishṭhira; the performers of rites, for Svâyambhuva; supplicants thought him the tree of plenty; enemies, a consuming sun; his subjects, as their father (tâta):—such a mine of good qualities was Viṭhṭhalâdhîśvara. The golden mountain (Mêru), though fixed for the security of the world, is hostile (vipaksha, otherwise, without wings); the ocean, though profound, is ever inwardly cold (jaḍa); the cloud, though the giver of water (or life), is dirty in colour: but Viṭhṭhala-mantri, though like them in the world, is free from every evil quality. The Sun, Moon, Mars, Mercury, Jupiter, Venus do I think him, but never Saturn.[1] The hêmâdri gift did Viṭhṭhala-mantri but once make, and forthwith there was a hêmâdri gift from house to house of all the Brahmans. The Rik its branches (otherwise, of the Rik-sâkha), faith in S'iva its leaves, true fame its blossoms, just gifts its fruits, frequented by beautiful birds (otherwise, able Brahmans);—thus shone the form of Viṭhṭhala-mantri, like the tree of merit. An abode of all learning and fortune, appointed by his king to the government of the Âraga-dêśa, he was protecting with unfailing greatness all merit, fame and progress.

(On the date specified), at the time when,—with the signs of the goddess of victory acquired by his arm, which resembled Âdisêsha in bearing up the burden of the earth, the empire of the mahârâjâdhirâja paramêśvara vîra-pratâpa Harihara-mahârâya; his wonderful character, which filled the earth with the odour of the gifts made by his hands, dyed as it were with sandal and red lead from unmeasured merit, being sung by the women at all the points of the compass; distinguished for his proficiency in the science of music and poetry approved by all the learned; a jewel from the ocean the womb of the fortunate Virupâmbikâ; adorned with devotion to his father as with a garland of pearls;—Viṭhṭhala-Voḍeyar, by the order of Harihara-Râya, was protecting the kingdom of Âraga:—the cultivators of the three cities of the Eighteen-kampaṇa-nâḍ of that Âraga kingdom, having agreed together, gave to Viṭhṭhappa-Voḍeyar a deed of sale of land valued at 150 honnu in the lot of Masiga-Gauḍa of Menasûr in Maḍavaḍi-nâḍ, and all the rights (specified) in the irrigated land of the ? hundred villages, and various other rights (specified), and released from the hand of the owners the claims to the land.

And that land in Meṇasûr-bâge, which, with the consent of the women, men, son-in-law's descendants (or descendants in the female line), and all other claimants, was acquired by us from the cultivators of the Eighteen-kampaṇa, have we formed into an agrahâra named Bommaṇâpura, and bestowed in the following shares. (Here follow details of the names &c. of the donees). Altogether 4 shares for the temple and 50 shares for the Brahmans; total 54 shares, which were made over on the bank of the western stream (paśchima-vâhini) of the Tungabhadrâ near that Bommaṇâpura, at the auspicious time of the gôvatsa-dvâdas'î,[1] with usual details.

Be it fortunate. Be it well. (On the date specified), to Viṭhṭhaṇṇa-Voḍeyar, various Brahmans (named) gave a deed of sale on stone as follows:—The ? âgâmi land in the Meṇasûr-bhâgi in Maḍavaḍi-nâḍ of the Âraga-dêśa, which was granted to us by the officers of Meṇasûr in Maḍavâḍi, the land on the ? Chêra stream (hoḷe), bounded as follows (here follow the boundaries), this land which, being without tax for tank or channel but fit for cultivation, we Brahmans formerly purchased, giving to the nâḍ officer a present, including the cost of inscribing a śâsana, of 12 honnu,—causing this sum to be given back in full, the land on the Chêra stream, with the consent of the wives of the Brahmans, their sons, relations, and heirs, we have granted by deed of sale with a stone śâsana. Witnesses and their signatures. Usual final verses.

[1] In the Nirṇaya-sindhu the rule laid down (as brought to notice by my Assistant) is—Kârtika-kṛishṇa-dvâdas'î gôvatsa-samjñâ. But the date given at the beginning of the inscription (line 12) is Mârggas'ira bahuḷa 12. This may perhaps be reconciled by the following quotation from the Dharmâbdhi-sâra:—Kârtika-kṛishṇâshṭamî kâlâshṭamî I iyam pûrṇimânta-mâsa-pakshê Mârgas'îrsha-kṛishṇâshṭamîty uchyatê II On the other hand, this same authority has Âs'vina-kṛishṇa-dvâdas'î gôvatsa-dvâdas'î.

Obeisance to Mûkâmbikâ. Praise of S ambhu and of the Boar.

[1](On the date specified), at the time of the moon's eclipse,[2] the chief âchâryya of the parama-hamsa sannyâsis, who had seen to the farthest point of grammar and logic, devoted to yama niyama and others the eight branches of yôga, the establisher of the pure Vaidikâdvaita-siddhânta, the establisher of the six darśanas, disciple of the succession of gurus descended from the holy feet of S'ankarâchâryya,—initiated by the lotus hands of Abhinava-Narasimha-Bhârati-svâmi,—Sachchi-dânanda-Bhârati-svâmi of S'ṛingapura, gave to all the learned Brahmans of Vidyâraṇyapura, belonging to various gotras, sûtras and śâkhas, a copper śâsana of a rent-free agrahâra as follows :—

Formerly, the (original) guru of our line, author of the Vêda-bhâshya,—Vidyâraṇya-śrîpâda, out of charity to the world, through the boon abtained by virtue of his penance from (the god) Virûpâksha dwelling on the banks of the Pampâ, having founded Vidyânagara,—for the protection of cows, gods and Brahmans performed the coronation anointing of Harihara-mahârâya to the throne.

After which, at the time when the râjâdhirâja râja-paramêśvara, a sun to the waterlilies the race of hostile kings, vîra-pratâpa Harihara-mahârâya was protecting the Karṇâṭaka kingdom in peace and wisdom,—he made petition at the feet of Vidyâraṇya-śrîpâda, representing that in S'ṛinga-pura, in (connection with) the dharma-pîṭha (or religious throne) established by S'ankarâchâryya, there must be a maṭha and agrahâra,—for the worship of the gods Mallikârjuna, Vidyâśankara-svâmi and S'âradâ-amma in the maṭha, and for the performance of the religious duties of the vêdas and śâstras, he set apart certain landed property, established the agrahâras of Sṛingapura and Vidyâraṇyapura, and forming 250 shares, made them over to the feet of Vidyâraṇya-Bharatî-svâmi.

[1] The opening portion is written first in Sanskrit and then in Kannaḍa.

[2] This is omitted in the Kannaḍa here, but is given at the end.

In course of time the whole of that having become dispersed and the common people (prajâ-dharmadavaru) themselves being in possession ; when the Yadava-Murâri, Kôṭe-kolâhala, establisher of the pure Vaidikâdvaita-siddhânta, protector of cows gods and Brahmans, devoted to faith in Siva and the guru,—Keladi Sadâśiva-Nâyaka's great-grandson, Keladi Sivappa-Nâyaka, was protecting Âraga, Gutti, Bârakûr, Mangalûr and other places, a kingdom extending to the Western Ocean, ... and was preserving the religious establishment of Sṛingapura,—in the lands formerly granted by the king for the maṭha, agrahâra and temples, those common people having made areca plantations, gained large profits, and mortgaged and sold them to one another, without as was due making over the money to the maṭha, agrahâra and temples,—S'ivappa-Nâyaka, inquiring into the whole matter, put them down, and the lands the profit of which they had been enjoying he made over to us, when we visited Bidurûr, in the presence of Chandramaulêśvara, in order that the religious duties of the maṭha, agrahâra, temples and other (institutions) might be carried on as long as sun and moon endure.

And apportioning the money according to the 250 shares formerly fixed for S'ringapura and Vidyâraṇyapura, and also for the maṭha, agrahâra and temples, as well as for the Nrisimhapura agrahâra established by the parama guru,—gave us directions to distribute the shares so that all the religious duties might be completely performed.

In accordance with the instructions also given by him for the restoration, we have made a distribution of the lands as follows ;—(here follow very long and minute details). Altogether lands and gardens (specified) yielding a revenue of 1434 varaha 7½ haṇa, which pertained to the maṭha and temples, we have distributed and set up boundary stones. These lands, free of all imposts, with all rights pertaining thereto (specified), may you and your descendants enjoy in peace, as long as sun and moon endure. If from any circumstances you should come to have no means of subsistence, mortgage sale gift or exchange should be arranged with those of your own caste or relations who are without shares and are śrotriyas, and so the service of the god and other religious duties be continued, the property not being used for any other purpose.

Such is the copper śâsana of the Vidyâraṇyapura agrahâra on the bank of the Tuṅgabhadrâ. Witnesses,—Sun and moon, &c. Usual final verse.

Praise of S'ambhu. Usual account of the rise and genealogy of the Hoysalas, to Ballâla. Of Ereyanga's sons only Vishnu is mentioned. When Biṭṭiga appeared on the field of battle as a jeṭṭiga (or wrestler), Kanchi turned its back, Kongu at once left the place, the great Virâṭa-kôṭe cried out, Kôyatûr was tossed about and ruined, the famous Chakragotta gave way, the Seven Konkaṇas cast away their weapons and fell into the sea. Of Ballâḷa it is said that the lusty elephant Chôḷa, the mighty lion Simhaḷa, Sêvuṇa ever a śarabha, these three kings he will not be without so smiting their heads as to force them into their bodies,—what can I say of this royal bhêruṇḍa, this royal emperor, this king Ballâḷa in battle.

Be it well. A dweller at the lotus feet of (with usual titles) the nis'śanka-pratâpa-chakravartti vîra-Ballâḷa-Dêva,—was Nâgi-Gâvuṇḍa ; to describe his descent. To Kêta-Gauḍa and Mâri-Gauḍi was born Nâga-Gavuṇḍa. His sons were Mâḷa-Gavuṇḍa and Mâka-Gauḍa. Verses in praise of their valour. To Mâḷa-Gâvuṇḍa and to Nâga-Gâvuṇḍi were born Sâvanta-Kêta, Chaṭṭeya, Barmmeya and Mâkaṇa. Praise of Kêta's valour. To Mâka-Gâvuṇḍa and to Keḷḷa-Gâvuṇḍi was born Sâvanta-Barmma ; his praises.

Victorious in the world is the S'iva śâsana, borne on the heads of mortal celestial and divine kings, ever bestowing fortune by the increase of works of merit.

The chief of generals Amita may he preserve as long as the constellations endure,—having the amṛita of song in being hymned by Nârada, having the amṛita of sweet favour in the beautiful smiles of Gauri, having the amṛita of speech in the praises of Indra,—Amṛitanâtha, the lord of the three worlds. Vishnu, who from the bright rays of Siri's lotus eyes falling on him, looks like Îśa ; and Îśa, who from Girijâ's glances of favour falling on him, looks like Vishnu ; so that the devotion of their followers is confused between them,—the gods Hari and Hara, may they ever protect Amita. That the king's commands should be borne as ornaments on their heads by the bowing sons of Kshatriyas, and be as chains of mountains guarding the country in the four quarters,—the valour to so bring the earth into subjection to Ballâḷa-Dêva, belongs to Amita,—can it belong to others ?

To describe the descent of that niśśanka-pratâpa-chakravartti :—In the middle of the milk ocean which is celebrated for the birth of the amṛita, the moon, Lakshmî, the kaustubha, the pârijâta, Airâvata, Uchchaiśrava, and the apsaras,—like a ship laden with Siri, the kaustubha jewel, Hari, the śankha and chakra, was S'êsha ; and in that milk ocean the stem of the god's navel lotus rose up like the mast ; while born in it Brahma was like the helmsman. From Brahma's mind were born seven munis. Among them Atri, as if envious of Vishnu for having made Brahma to be born from his lotus navel, caused the Moon to be born from his lotus eyes, a purer place of origin. A joy to the eyes of the Moon, a present help to the god of love, bright with the rays of the moon, was born the son of king Nrisimha, a light to the Lunar race. That son of a king, by his delight in the study of elephants, was celebrated in the world as Budha, who was like the elephant-riding chakravartti Ballâḷa. His son was Purûrava. To him and to Urvvasi of the world of gods was born the celebrated Âyu. His son was Nahusha; his son Yayâti. And after several others had been born, Yadu was born in the Sôma-vamśa. From his greatness the Sôma-vamśa acquired the name of Yâdava. In that Yâdava race arose Sala, who, when he was worshipping the goddess Vâsantikâ in the celebrated S'aśaka-pura, a tiger with rolling eyes, terrific aspect and immense body, leaped forth; seeing which, the muni gave him his fan (kuncha), saying poy Saḷa (strike, Saḷa!), after which, the name of those Yâdava kings became Poysaḷa. As if laughing at the bravery of killing a lion with an arrow, he killed the tiger with the seḷe (or cane), and this became the ensign of the Poysaḷa race. Here follows the usual genealogy of the Hoysalas.

Of Ballâḷa (Vishnu's elder brother) it says that he drove back in battle the force which came to attack him, so that even the Mâḷava emperor Jagadêva, whose proud elephant he made to scream outsaid "Well done, horseman" to which he replied "I am not only a horseman: I am vîra-Ballâḷa," and by his slaughter excited the astonishment of the world. When Biṭṭiga appeared as a wrestler on the battle field, Kanchi turned its back, Kongu at once left the place, the great Virâṭa-kôṭe cried out, Koyatûr was tossed about and ruined, Chakragoṭṭa gave way, the Seven Konkaṇas cast away their weapons and fell into the sea. As long as king Vishnu was on his expedition of victory, what kings could stand before him?—as when that king Râma came they turned to works of charity, so the foreign kings occupied themselves with the tulâpurusha, hiraṇyagarbha, and the building of temples. The while he himself erected so many temples that the stars can be more easily numbered, constructed innumerable tanks and founded innumerable agrahâras. His son Nârasimha defeated Pâṇḍya, who had taken up a position and sounded his drums, and choked up the Tungabhadrâ with the corpses of his great army. After various praises of Ballâḷa, it says,—The lusty elephant Chôḷa, the great lion Simhaḷa, Sêvuṇa ever a śarabha, these three kings he will not be without so smiting on their heads that they sink into their bodies, this royal bhêruṇḍa, this royal emperor, a Ballâḷa in the battle. The wild fire Ballâḷa's fury burns up the forest Sêvuṇa's army with sounds (various imitative words are given) that terrify the wild animals. Farther verses describing the fighting with Sêvuṇa.

Be it well. When, (with usual titles), the niśśanka-pratâpa-chakravartti Hoysaḷa vîra-Ballâḷa, Dêva, having returned from a season of victorious expeditions to the north for the purpose of putting down the evil and upholding the good, was in the residence of Haḷḷavûr, otherwise called Vijayasamudram, ruling the kingdom of the world in peace and wisdom:—

From the bright rays of the toe-nails of his feet, a celebrated new pârijâta brought into blossom in a beautiful character, with sprouts full of mercy, honoured by the assembly of the wise,—Be it well. A king's house filled with immeasurable merit, a gaṇḍa-bhêruṇḍa, a master of all manner of designs, a jewel lamp in the council of the Yâdava kings, a minister who was an embodiment of the praise of the world, a judge over the chiefs, as a saviour the sole refuge,—was Amita, profound as the ocean. To describe the descent of that head-jewel of daṇḍanâthas. Praise of Chaṭṭa-Seṭṭi, whose wife was Jakkiyakka. Their son was Hariyana-Setti; (his praises). His wife was Suggiyakka, and their son was Amritêśvara-daṇḍanâyaka. Verses in his praise. What he said was in one place like a copper śâsana, in another place like a stone śâsana: in giving and protecting he was like a nara-s'âsana (or human śâsana), while the tongue that uttered his praise was a permanent copper śâsana. He constructed a tank in Belvaḷa, like an ocean newly created by Brahma; and another in Gaduge. And in Amritasamudra he erected a splendid temple of Amṛitêśvara; its praises.

Praises of Amṛitêśvara-daṇḍanâtha's brothers, Kalidêva, Masaṇayya, Basava, and of himself.

Be it well. (With numerous epithets, including) obtainer of a boon from the god Amṛitêśvara, the cause prosperity to the kingdom of the niśśanka-pratâpa-chakravartti vîra-Ballâḷa-Dêva who was the sun in the sky of the Yâdava race; a jewelled tôraṇa for the auspicious home of the goddess of victory; a pârijâta from the ocean the womb of Suggâmbika, who in all beauty was like the moonlight of the autumn moon to the waterlily the fourth class (chaturtha-kuḷa); a jewel-mirror in which the circle of clever ministers might daily view the art of making peace and war, of promoting destruction, alliance or dissension; a jewel ornament to the Yâdava camp; a deadly râkshasa to the Chôḷa general; a Trinêtra to the Madana the Mâḷava general; a thunderbolt to the mountain the Gûrjjara general; a gaṇḍa-bhêruṇḍa to royal generals; a swan ornament to the Chôḷa girls; a star garland to the Kêraḷa women; exciting the love of the disdainful Mâḷava women; an earring to the affectionate Karṇṇâṭa women; a Kêdâra to the chief Jangamas; a benefactor of all people,—the possessor of such greatness, Amṛitêśvara-daṇḍanâyaka set up in Amṛitasamudra in the Kaggiya-vritti the god Amṛitêśvara, and (on the date specified), in the presence of the god Vajrêśvara, with worship of his feet, having received it with pouring of water from the hands of the pratâpa-chakravartti vîra-Ballâḷa-Dêva,—for the decorations and illuminations of the god Amṛitêśvara which he had made, for the Chaitra purification, for the god's pûjâri and servants, for gifts of food to Brahmans, and for temple repairs, granted agrahâra Huṇiseyakaṭṭe in Âsandi-nâḍ, with all ceremonies.

Here follow a number of other grants for the same god by various people.

And heggaḍe Jakkaya (also called the minister Jakka, son of Rudrayya) having caused the temple of Amṛitêśvara to be made with great beauty by order of Amṛitêśvara-daṇḍanâyaka, he being pleased, gave him 12 kambha of rice-land by the Ganga pole. Also 60 kambha for the davasigas, and 40 for the offerings to the god. Altogether one matta twelve kambha.

And all the townsmen having grain shops in Dôrasamudra (a number named) made contributions for the god.

Usual final verses.

The Bhâḷanêtra of great poets, the friend of good poets, Jannayya's poetry. The coiled leaf in the ear of Sarasvati, of pleasing form, Lokkiguṇḍi Mahadêvaṇṇa's disciple Nâkaṇṇa's writing. The confounder of titled engravers, the sculptor Mallôja's engraving. Great good fortune.

Certain gauḍas (named) made grants to certain Brahmans (named) of Amṛitêśvara-pura.

(On the date specified), from the hands of all the Brahmans of the immemorial agrahara Amṛitakêśavapura, which is Kûṭanamaḍuvu, the great master of the robes Kaḷuva-Sâyaṇṇa purchased certain land (specified), and on account of the eclipse of the sun on that day, made a grant of it to provide for the offerings of the god Amṛitakêśava. Great good fortune. Usual final verses.

Praise of S'ambhu. (On the date specified), all the Brahmans of the above agrahâra (see No. 52) assembling at the council place, and agreeing among themselves, apportioned the fixed rate for their villages as follows :—Vokkunda Mâvinakere, 65 shares ; Doḍḍêri Bîchanamâni, 68 shares ; Voḷḷeyamâni Voravanakeṛe, 65 shares ; . ḍinâreya Kurava, 45 shares ; Sîgeyakôṭe Kaṭeyahaḷḷi Malleyaṇahaḷḷi, 57 shares ; altogether 300 shares. According to this fixed rate they will construct tanks and channels in their villages, and establish gardens and storehouses. The fines and other imposts (named) of their villages belong to the respective villages. The fixed proportion according to this rule will be observed for ever, as long as sun and moon endure. Whoever transgresses this rule incurs the wrath of the emperor vîra-Nârasimha-Dêvarasa, and of Sôvala-Dêvi,[1] and is excommunicate from the three hundred and from the thirty-two thousand. Usual final verses. Great good fortune.

(On the date specified), the same Brahmans granted 2 shares in Malleyanahaḷḷi as gauḍike-umbaḷi to Honna-gauḍa Ballayya.

55

Praise of S'ambhu. (On the date specified), the same Brahmans, assembled in council, in the presence of the great minister Harihara-daṇṇâyaka, to continue as long as sun moon and stars, separated the villages of the desired shares (ichhâ-vṛitti) and apportioned them as follows[2] :—

Between Ubbaravaṇi and Kêtanakere, which are outside the villages previou ly apportioned, there being no one to look after (the land) and as it is going to ruin, the following division, fixed for ever and agreed to, is made from the desired shares in Ubbaravâni, Kêtanakeṛe and the other places :—for the daśaka (or ten) of Susvari-n ttavarddhana and those of others (named) who remain in Vokkunda, Mâvinakeṛe and Kêtanakere, altogether 61 shares, those Brahmans will not open the sluice of the Basavaiya tank and will stop the flow of water. (Here follow similar arrangements regarding other villages). Altogether 300 shares.

[1] Sôvala-Dêvi was Nârasimha's sister.

[2] It is very difficult to understand all the arrangements and to find the meanings of the terms in which they are expressed.

The sollama, biṭṭi (forced labour), and pûrbbâya (former taxes) received from the palace, will be divided and settled at (or ? according to) the 300 shares. If apûrvvâya (new taxes) are received, they will be settled at the shares. If on the part of the king the kiṟukula, ... the three hundred must not say they belong to the land and deduct them from the fixed rent. Fines, faults, watchmen, plunder by Bêḍars, trouble from robbers, belong to the Brahmans of the several villages ; the three hundred have nothing to do with them. They must not seek to make out that they have agreed to remain separate from the desired shares and are the same as the numbered ones of the same caste. For sales, gifts and injuries, the loads of palmyra leaves and the lots are the measure.

Such are the fixed apportionments made by the three hundred by mutual agreement, to continue as long as sun moon and stars. So that they may construct tanks and channels in their respective villages, establish gardens and storehouses, and live in peace, has this samaya-sâsana been made.

Whoso transgresses this rule incurs the anger of vîra-Nârasimha-Dêvarasa, and the anger of Sôvala-Dêvî, and is excommunicate from the three hundred and from the thirty-two thousand. Usual final verse.

In the following year the Brahman shareholders of certain other villages (named) seem to have made similar agreements.

Praise of S'ambhu. The valiant Saḷa, born in the Yâdava-kula, on the yatipati in terror calling out poy Saḷa, slew it at the bidding of the muni, and became Poysaḷa. First of all taking into his arms the fortune of the Hoysaḷa kingdom, which was his inheritance, as his power increased he imposed his commands on all the points of the compass, seized Talakâḍ and became the first to the Gaṅga kingdom,—the promoter of the Yadu-vamśa, the king Vishnu.

When, (with usual titles and various other epithets), Tribhuvanamalla, the pratâpa-chakravartti Hoysaḷa-vîra-Nârasimha-Dêva, [protecting] the Seven-and-a-half Lakh country, for as long as sun moon and stars endure, under the shadow of his sole umbrella, was ruling the kingdom in peace and wisdom:—

A dweller at the lotus feet of that maṇḍalêśvâra,—in the time of king Ereyanga a subduer by force of enemies who would not submit, was Vayijarasa in the world. To describe the pride of the strength with which he exerted himself:—when Aggaḍa-Râya ran into the Bêḍarabanki forest, in front of Hemmâḍi he aimed an arrow at him from his bow, which not only went through his skull, but continuing on, to the amazement of the spectators, hit one eye of a kite that was flying in the sky,—this famous king Vayija. For this extraordinary feat he received from Hemmâḍi-Râya the title kaṇṇ-ambi (eye arrow),—how can I describe the pride of Vaijarasa's achievements in the world? To Vayija-maṇḍalika, from his saying this is my deity, the only light of my family, character and power,—and to his wife Vayijala-Dêvi, from her daily worshipping her deity the goddess Padmâvati,—was born a son, the brave king Bamma. To describe his descent,—an ornament of the Ganga-vamśa, (with other praises).

[1] There is a discrepancy between the number and the name of the year.

Be it well. When, born in the Ganga line famed throughout the world, Kongulivarmma dharmma-mahârâjâdhirâja, boon lord of Kôḷâla-pura, obtainer of a boon from the goddess Padmâvati, the Ganga Gângêya, jayad-uttaranga, a tree of plenty to supplicants, pratâpa-mahêśvara, lord of Nandagiri, among men a Mândhâta, to enemies a Pârttha, a chief among champions, having the crest of a lusty elephant, in liberality gold, a sun to the lotus the Ganga-kula, a champion in the line of battle, a gallant in the battle field, warrior with the bow, the eye-arrow lord, a sun in discharging arrows, in war a jattalaṭṭa, a mill-stone to enemies, a cage of adamant to refugees, to enemies a regent elephant, a terror to foreign armies, an ocean of truthfulness, a sun among warriors, guardian of refugees, deceiver of the false, pardoner of those who submit, approver of what is,—with these names and titles, the mahâ-maṇḍalika Bammarasa-Dêva, putting down the evil and upholding the good, was in the residence of Âsandi, ruling in peace and wisdom a kingdom which was extending an all sides, to continue as long as sun moon and stars :—

A dweller at his lotus feet, (with various epithets) was Kêta-Gauṇḍa. The most faithful to the Gangânvaya, and to the original linga, to Hiriya-Kêta-Ganḍa and to his Ganga wife Mallayavve was born a son Haryama-Gauḍa. To his younger brother Chikka-Kêta-Gauḍa and his wife Kâḷa-Gauḍi was born Kêta-Gauḍa. (On the date specified), at the time of the sun's eclipse, he set up a S'ivalinga, and for the decorations of the god Bhîmêśvara, the worship at the three times, the perpetual lamp and temple repairs, washing the feet of Malluka-jîya, made a grant of land (specified). This much, in the presence of Sôma-jîya, son of Malluka-jîya, the nâḷ-prabhu Hariyama-Gauḍa and others (named), and all the subjects, he gave to his sister's son Kalla-jîya as the dowry of his daughter Masanauvve. Praise of S'ankara and S'ambhu.

Usual account of the Hoysaḷas (including the mention of Vishnu's capture of Talakâḍ), to Narasimha, the son of Ballâḷa.

Be it well. When, (with usual titles, including) the uprooter of the Magara kingdom, the displacer of the Pâṇḍya kingdom, the establisher of the Chôḷa kingdom, the nissanka-pratâpa-chakravartti Hoysaḷa vîra-Nârasimha-Dêva, with the Seven-and-a-half-Lakh country under the shadow of his sole umbrella, was ruling the kingdom in peace and wisdom:—

A dweller at his lotus feet, having the title of eye-arrow, to the king Vayjaṇa and to his wife Anganâ was born the king Nâḍa. To Nâḍaṇṇa and to his wife Nâgale, by the boon of the three-eyed god, was born the king Vayja. From his ever saying this is my deity, the light of my family and character, to Vayja-maṇḍalika, and to his wife Vayjala dêvi, from her daily worshipping her deity, the goddess Padmâvati, was born the brave king Bamma. To the famous king Bamma and his wife Ganga-mahâdêvi was born Narasimha.

Be it well. To the great nâḷ-prabhu Âdi-Gavuḍa of Mudugere in Âsandi-nâḍ, and to Mâki-Gavuḍi were born Baḷa-Gavuḍa , Chila-Gavuḍa and Râma-Gavuḍa ; their praises. These three, with their sons (named), set up the god Nârasingêśvara and (on the date specified), at the time of the eclipse of the sun, together with the people of the nâḍ, made grants of land (specified) for the ceremonies of the god. And in the year Nandana (1233 A.D.) Râma-Gavuḍa, on the nâḍ-gaudas granting him an umbali in Âsandi-nâḍ, made it over to the same god, besides other lands (specified). Bâcha-Gavuḍa also made a grant of land (specified). This Râmayya will carry out.

Be it well. The ruler of Dvârâvatî-puri was Yadu, in whose family was born the victorious Krishṇa; and in that family were born the king Ballâḷa, his son the king Nârasimha, and his son, a moon to the lotuses the mouths of hostile kings, the king Saumya-Dêva.

When he was ruling, the .... of Pâṇḍya, the disturber of ...., of great glory, Nṛisimha himself dwelt in Abhinava-Ambujanmanilaya-puri, in the region where Sêtu (or the bridge) was built over the ocean, along with 104 Brahmans settled there. And whatever strings of titles have been applied to him by Vâlmîki, Vaiyâśaki, Byâsa, Agastya, Pulastya, S'aunaka and other chief paurâṇikas, or have been repeated by the original great poets, and handed down, the parrots in cages there recited with devotion. May that Nṛisimha protect you, who tore open the entrails of the Daitya with his nails, in order to preserve his faithful ones. Another verse to the same effect.

Be it well. In the 5th year of the pratâpa-chakravartti Hoysaṇa vîra-Sômêśvara-Dêva's reign, the year Vikâri, &c. for the gods Abhinava-Chennakêśava and Yôga-Narasimha of the immemorial agrahâra Lakshmî-Narasimha-pura, which is Baggavaḷḷi, to provide curds, rice and offerings, to continue as long as sun and moon,—Nityânanda-prabhu's disciple Uttamânanda-svâmi gave 10 ga. Here follow the names of other contributors and the amounts they gave.

A bulbous root to the vine the fame of the Nâhusha-vamśa was Yadu. In his family was born the enemy of the Daityas. And in the same family was born the king Ballâḷa; from him the subduer of his enemies, the king Nârasimha; and from him the destroyer of the valour of his enemies, the king Sôyi-Dêva. His son, was the great Nṛisimha ...... whose son, was the śarabha to the lion his enemies, the king Ballâḷa. When he was ruling the earth, in this town (the god) Lakshmî-Nṛisimha was established, for whom the learned men of the place performed the Aindra festival.

'Ho! god Hari, what is this that is said?'—'Lakshmî, this is the festival of the Indra-paksha; its merit is such that the performers easily go to ...., dear one'. 'Who are the performers, lord?'—'Chief Brahmans, learned men.'—'Where are such to be found?'—They adorn the council of the learned in Kamalâ-Nṛisimha-pura'. 'How wonderful! when the splendid Brahmans are in the holy temple, at the moment when the Aindra festival is celebrated, each one is so filled with joy, that they contribute funds by the hundred. How can I describe the fruit of this? Where else can such merit be obtained in the three worlds?'—

At such a conjunction, the chief Brahmans being filled with joy, made gifts of gold for a fund; whose names are here given. Be it well. In the 6th year of the pratâpa-chakravartti Hoysaṇa vîra-Ballâḷa-Dêva's reign, the year Durmmukhî, &c. for the god Panchikêśvara of the immemorial agrahâra Lakshmî-Narasimha-pura, which is Barggavaḷḷi, the following gave money to form a fund. (Here follows the list of contributors, with the amount each gave).

III. Inscriptions in the Mysore District, Part I. 1894. Price Rs. 12.

'The numerous and various points of interest which the new epigraphic discoveries in Mysore offer, entitle Mr. Rice to the hearty congratulations of all Sanskritists, and to their warm thanks for the ability and indefatigable zeal with which he continues the Archæological explorations in the province confided to his care."—Dr. G. Bühler, in Academy. "Splendid work, of monumental character, which will bear your name to uttarâni yugâni."—Professor A. Weber. "Supplies a great desideratum, as it contains S'aka dates for several Chôḷa kings whose inscriptions in the Madras Presidency are only dated in year of the reign." Dr. Hultzsch, in Report for 1894-95. "The volume redounds to the credit of the author .....His work is always thorough, and in all the volumes he has published he has shown a comprehensive grasp of his subject, and placed before his readers most useful lucid and detailed reports"—Madras Mail.

IV. Inscriptions in the Mysore District, Part II. 1898. Price Rs. 10.

"The volumes contain an immense amount of most valuable information.—" Professor Kielhorn. "A review of the whole field seems to show that despite all drawbacks and disadvantages there is promise in the literary activity of India to-day. And in forming this estimate we have taken no account of such official works as Mr. Rice's Inscriptions in the Mysore District (Part II) and ......, which are in themselves sufficient to make the year memorable."—Madras Mail. "Mr. Rice's labours in this direction are simply invaluable."—Report on Publications in Mysore for 1898.

"Models of administrative research"—Sir W. W. Hunter in Preface to Imperial Gazetteer. "Mr. Rice has done his work well. He combines a comprehensive grasp of his entire subject with the faculty of lucid exposition, and also a careful attention to details"—Academy. "A mine of information about the country. Evidently written con amore, it shows great care and research; great knowledge of the language and literature of the country and a thorough appreciation of the subject in hand"—Calcutta Review.

Mysore, a Gazetteer compiled for Government. Revised Edition, 1897. In 2 volumes. With Maps and Illustrations. (Archibald Constable & Co, Westminster). Price, half morocco, Rs. 20 ; full cloth, Rs. 18.

" A work of great magnitude and research, very carefully prepared and edited."—Dewan's Address to Representative Assembly, 1898. "The name of the author is sufficient guarantee for its excellence and accuracy"—Athenæum. "Another proof (if further evidence were required) that good work gets found out. Mr. Rice himself remarks that when he first published his book he little thought he would ever be called on to issue a second edition. But during twenty years his Account of Mysore has served as a guide not only to the administrative staff, but also to the British investors who have sent their capital to the gold fields and coffee plantations of that State. It is difficult, indeed, to name a subject of interest, whether from the official, the antiquarian, or the industrial point of view, which does not find patient and thorough treatment in his volumes."—The Times.
